WASHINGTON JARRED BY MINNESOTA VOTE; JOHNSON LEAD GROWS

Observers Find In His Victory by 85,000 a Warning to Administration for 1924.

MAY ELIMINATE HARDING

La Follette Is Expected to Fight for the Presidency, With the Prospects of a Rift.

REACTION AGAINST TARIFF

Adams Says That the Unrest Will Pass, but Hull Predicts a Growing Revolt.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—The election of Magnus Johnson, Farmer-Laborite, in Minnesota, to succeed the late Senator Knute Nelson, a conservative Republican, is, in the opinion of political observers here, the most significant development since the 1922 elections, which reduced the large Republican majority in Congress to a small one, with the balance of power resting with the radicals, headed by Senator La Follette.

Administration commentators say that the rout of the Republicans in Minnesota and the elimination of the Democratic Party there were due to unrest and economic reactions prevalent in that State and the other farming centres. The farmers find themselves compelled, under the tariff law, to pay big prices for commodities which they purchase, with wheat selling at or under $1 a bushel, and the prospect that it will fall to 90 cents if the crop reports are verified.

This unrest exerted its force against the party in power. Governor Preus, although he sought to repudiate the tariff and ignore the national Administration, was unable to combat effectively the deep-seated revolt against present conditions and the Republican Party. Some Republican observers say that prosperity will be present next year and that wheat prices will be better, and they are hopeful that opposition to their party will lessen.

Other observers say that the drift has been away from the Republican Party for the last year. The November election in 1922 showed that the voters were dissatisfied with the national Administration when the Republican majority in the Senate fell to ten and the House majority dwindled from 168 to eighteen. Since that election Alva Adams has been appointed to succeed the late Senator Nicholson in Colorado and Johnson will take the seat of Senator Nelson.

Taken as a Warning for 1924.

This drift away from the policies of President Harding is interpreted by the cool-headed Republicans as a warning for 1924. They say that unless there is an unexpected development in the next year, including some economic phenomenon which will aid the farmers, there appears to be little hope of the Republicans winning in 1924 with a conservative nominee such as Harding. The unrest sweeping the country, in their opinion, cannot be halted by the next Congress because the Administration will be powerless there. More than thirty House Republicans are followers of La Follette and in the Senate the present Republican majority of six is overbalanced by ten or twelve La Follette adherents. Control of the next Congress will rest, therefore, with the Democrats and the radical Republicans.

President Harding's World Court proposal, it is feared in some circles, went to oblivion with the Minnesota election.

The political complexion of the Senate as the result of the election of Johnson will be: Republicans 50, Democrats 43, Farmer-Laborites 2, Republican vacancy 1. The vacancy is caused by the death of Senator Dillingham of Vermont, who will be succeeded by a Republican.

In the Republican majority of six are counted such radicals as La Follette, Norris, Brookhart, Ladd, Norbeck, Shipstead, Fraser and Dill. Since the drift is so strongly away from conservative methods, Borah, Johnson of California and McCormick are counted upon as certain to join the radicals and farm bloc group in many legislative proposals.

La Follette May Seek Presidency.

In the next session of Congress, beginning on the first Monday in December, Republican leaders expect to see La Follette start his fight for radical railroad legislation and open his campaign for the Republican nomination for President. That he feels encouraged sufficiently by the Minnesota election to go after the nomination was admitted here today by his friends. Some other Republicans believe that Johnson of California, when he really sniffs the radical-progressive air, will "feel the urge" and also enter the lists.

The present condition is pictured as similar to that in 1912. In truth, the progressive-radicals are believed by some politicians to be stronger than in 1912. That is the reason, they say, why men like Johnson and Shipstead were elected in Minnesota, Brookhart in Iowa and Fraser in North Dakota.

President Harding, some say, may not even be a candidate for renomination. He has never indicated that he would be, but said that he would make his present trip to test sentiment. The test has been made and he may find personal reasons to refuse to seek another nomination.

Conclusions of the Chairmen of the national parties on the Minnesota election are:

John T. Adams, Republican National Chairman: "At hand from the Minnesota election indicate that out of a total of approximately half a million, the Demo-

McAdoo Not Sure He Has a Hat To Throw in Presidential Ring

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—William G. McAdoo tried today to avoid discussing political questions. He was here as a witness in the Morse conspiracy trial and spent most of his time with a statistician, who is said to be preparing for him information on the railroads, which he is reported to favor putting under Government control or operation.

"Will you be a candidate for President?" he was asked as he emerged from the court.

He smiled only in answer.

"When are you going to throw your hat in the ring?" was another question.

"I will not admit that I have a hat for that purpose," he replied.

Managers for McAdoo are said to be much worried over the progress the campaigns of Underwood and Ford are making.

JUDGE WARNS JURY IN ANDERSON CASE

Cautions Them Against Letting Newspaper Statements Influence Their Action.

ANDERSON WRITES SMITH

Wants Open Inquiry on Banton's Acts—District Attorney Says He Is Lying.

The controversy between William H. Anderson, Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League in this State, and District Attorney Banton and Assistant District Attorney Pecora reached such a stage yesterday that Judge McIntyre of General Sessions entered the room of the Grand Jury which is hearing testimony in charges against Anderson.

In connection with his visit it was rumored that there had been a rift in the relations between the assistant prosecutor and some members of the jury, who were said to be out of harmony with the proceeding. It was reported that the jurors had been impressed by a statement issued by Anderson the day before. Anderson in his statement charged that District Attorney Joab H. Banton had conspired with O. Bertsall Phillips, formerly financial representative of the league, to railroad him to prison on Phillips's allegations and that the prosecutor entered the alleged conspiracy with a view to causing the Democratic Party to nominate him for Governor at the convention in Syracuse last September.

Prior to Judge McIntyre's visit Pecora had been closeted with the jury for more than an hour, while three witnesses were waiting outside.

Judge McIntyre Warns Jury.

Judge McIntyre's stay with the Grand Jury was of short duration, however, but shortly after 2 o'clock they filed into his court, where they were addressed by Judge McIntyre as follows:

"I wish to state once more that nothing under your consideration should be controlled, influenced or biased by any statements contained in any newspapers concerning a certain case which you are now considering. There may be more publications, and in all probability there will be another one today. I want to say that you should pay no attention to them at all, but you should be guided and controlled only by the evidence that is adduced before you in the Grand Jury room.

"We do not want anything to happen in this case that is not legal. We do not want any evidence creeping into the Grand Jury room, or any facts, I might say, that had no relevancy to the issue at all. The only statements which should guide you in your conduct are those given in testimony taken from witnesses who appear before you for your consideration. Facts contained in newspapers are not legal evidence and should not be considered by the Grand Jury. Now you may continue."

It was recalled that the presence of a Judge in the Grand Jury room during an inquiry was an unusual thing, one of the rare occasions of which such a thing had happened before being the appearance of the late Supreme Court Justice Weeks before the Almirall Grand Jury more than two years ago, when that body was investigating allegations against the City Administration.

HEAD OF MINE UNION OUSTS LOCAL LEADER AS TOOL OF SOVIET President Lewis Takes a Stand Against Radicalism in Nova Scotia.

REVOKES UNION CHARTER

Calls Chief of Canadian Strikers a Revolutionist—Speaks of 'Your Masters in Moscow.'

HE DENOUNCES FANATICS

Says United Mine Workers Can't Be Used by Foes of Established Institutions.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 17.—Declaring that the United Mine Workers of America is not a political institution and "cannot be used to promote the fallacious whims of any political fanatic who seeks to strike down the established institutions of his Government," John L. Lewis, President of that organization, today revoked by a telegram the charter of District No. 26, embracing the Nova Scotia bituminous fields, and established a provisional district organization to function in that field under the direct authority of the international union.

District President Daniel Livingstone, now in jail on the charge of "spreading false reports," was summarily removed from office, as were District Vice President Alexander McIntyre, Secretary Treasurer J. B. McLachlan and Alexander Stewart, member of the International Executive Board.

Mr. Lewis this afternoon made public copies of the 1,200-word telegram he had addressed to President Livingstone.

The Nova Scotia coal strike was a sympathetic move in support of the steel mill workers of the British Empire Steel Corporation, Ltd. This company has a wage agreement with the United Mine Workers applying to its coal mines. Two weeks ago 6,000 of the 12,000 miners in the district went on strike in protest against the presence of military force called in to maintain order about the steel mills. The union officials pulled maintenance men from the mines, and also called off men engaged in fighting a disastrous fire in a dump in which several hundred thousand tons of coal were stored. During the early days of the strike Livingstone was arrested and locked up in jail in Halifax. This resulted in 1,400 more miners going out.

Lewis Called Strike Illegal.

President Lewis immediately sought to have the men return to work. He wired Livingstone advising him that the strike was illegal and indefensible, and directing that work be resumed at once. At a meeting a week ago yesterday the District Board refused to call off the strike.

Following a visit here yesterday of international representative Silby Barrett of Glace Bay, the revocation of the charter was decided upon. Barrett was designated as President of a provisional district, created by Lewis today to embrace the jurisdiction of former District 26 and sweeping powers were given him under the International Union, to reorganize the district and get the men back to work.

It was recalled today that this is the third time in the Administration of President Lewis that he has revoked district charters. The first was in 1919, when the charter of District 18, embracing the Northwestern Canadian fields, was revoked because of the allegiance of the officers to the "one big union" idea. Similar action was taken against District 14, in the Kansas coal fields in 1921, for participation in an unauthorized strike. In both instances the districts were re-organized by provisional officers named by the International.

Unusual importance attaches to the Nova Scotia action today by reason of its possible bearing on the anthracite wages negotiation, which were in progress here last wek and which will be resumed next Monday morning. Lewis and the other representatives of the United Mine Workers are making a strong effort to secure complete recognition of the union in the anthracite fields and has urged upon the operators that such recognition will enable union officials to discipline their members and prevent recurrence of unauthorized strikes in the anthracite re-

Bergdoll Expected to Serve His Sentence And Thereby Save His $1,300,000 Estate

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Grover C. Bergdoll, draft dodger, now living in Switzerland, is expected to return to the United States through the importunities of his mother, who is going to Europe to visit her son.

Mrs. Bergdoll told Government officials that she is anxious for her son's return and that she wants him to serve his sentence. This was the situation Chester N. Farr of Philadelphia, her counsel, outlined to Alien Property Custodian Miller, who then consented that the State Department issue Mrs. Bergdoll a passport.

Government officials today said that if the fugitive should return and serve his sentence there would be no claim against his $1,300,000 estate, which is now held in custody by the Alien Property Custodian. Unless this is done, it is pointed out, this money may go to pay claims of Americans against the German Government.

While it is known that Bergdoll is not anxious to serve his sentence, his lawyer said that his funds, as well as those of his mother, were getting low and necessity is forcing this man without a country to return to the land where he refused to respond to the colors.

Because of financial stress here and Bergdoll's inability to earn any money abroad, Government officials appear to be confident that the fugitive will return with his mother, serve his sentence and have his property restored.

The Amended Trading with the Enemy act in one section reads:

"No person shall be entitled to the return of any property or money under the provisions of this act who is a fugitive from justice from the United States, or any State or territory thereof."

PHILADELPHIA, July 17.—Mrs. Emma C. Bergdoll was in high spirits today in expectation of a trip to Switzerland to visit her son. Passports for the trip were received by Mrs. Bergdoll yesterday from Washington. She will spend some time in Germany before going to Switzerland, where Grover C. Bergdoll is staying. She has not advised him of her plans for a visit, declaring that she wanted to surprise him.

During her absence another son, Erwin, will look after his mother's farm and financial affairs. Erwin recently was released from the Federal prison at Leavenworth after serving a term for draft dodging.

POLICEMAN SHOOTS GIRL IN HER HOME

VICTIM SITTING UPSTAIRS

She Has Little Chance of Recovery—Policeman Suspended and Locked Up.

Policeman Francis Rogers of the Parkville Station was locked up in the Classon Avenue Station in Brooklyn last night on a charge of having shot and dangerously wounded 15-year-old Rose Altimari in her home on the second floor of 827 Kent Avenue, Brooklyn. According to Inspector Conboy who caused an investigation to be made, the girl was shot while she sat at a table in her home after Rogers, alleged to have been under the influence of liquor, had fired a bullet through the ceiling of a store below.

The police investigation revealed that Rogers, who was assigned to bicycle duty, was brought in an automobile to the store by three men, who left him immediately on turning him over to the care of James Yule, who conducts a pastry business in the place. Yule, it was said, led Rogers, who was in uniform, to a chair in the rear of the store, and returned to the counter to wait on some customers.

About five minutes later, it was alleged, Yule heard a pistol shot coming from the rear room. He ran back to find Rogers clumsily trying to restore his pistol to its holster. Yule was alleged to have started to question Rogers, when the policeman, mumbling unintelligibly, brushed past him to the street entrance and disappeared.

A few minutes later the parents of Rose, who works for a clothing manufacturer in the daytime and attends the continuation course at Public School 69, rushed to the street and announced that the girl had been shot. A policeman summoned an ambulance from the Cumberland Street Hospital and the girl was hurried to the institution unconscious.

Examination of the girl by Dr. Tower revealed that a bullet had passed through her right hip into the abdomen, and it was believed the girl had little chance of recovery. When word to this effect was conveyed to the Parkville Station detectives were sent out to investigate. They reported later to Lieutenant Keith, who was on desk duty, and Captain Drennan, that Rogers was suspected of having shot the girl.

No information could be obtained from the lieutenant or captain about the shooting, but later, when it was learned that Inspector Conboy had ordered the investigation, he revealed that Rogers, who is 29 years old and the son of the late Battalion Chief William Rogers of the Fire Department, had been arrested at his home at 1,786 Coney Island Avenue.

Rogers had been taken to the Parkville Station and then to the Classon Avenue Station, where he was locked up on the charge of shooting the girl. About two and a half hours after the shooting Second Deputy Police Commissioner Daly ordered the accused policeman suspended from duty.

6 POSING AS POLICE GET $50,000 IN SILK

Two Flee When Real Patrolman Appears and Stolen Truck Crashes Into Store.

ONE CAUGHT, LOOT SAFE

Driver and Helper Taken Away in Car by 4 of Band—Second Robbery of Kind in 2 Days.

A truckload of silk, valued at $50,000 was stolen in the Bronx yesterday by six men, one of whom wore a fake policeman's uniform, with a counterfeit badge. All of them were in a touring car with a Police Department marker.

Four of the men "arrested" the driver of the truck and his helper, and drove them about the Bronx, holding them until they received word from "headquarters" that the men were all right and should be let go. The other two started to drive off with the silk, but had to abandon the truck and its loot when a motorcycle policeman came along. The robbers jumped off the truck, letting it smash a water hydrant and run up on the sidewalk, endangering passers-by. One of them was caught after a chase and was held without bail.

The police think that the same band which attempted this daring robbery was guilty of a successful $60,000 silk robbery in lower Manhattan the night before last, when a truck was held up, the driver and his helper ordered out of it, and the truck and its load stolen.

Drove Truck From Holyoke.

The truck held up yesterday was owned by William Skinner & Son, silk merchants and manufacturers at Fourth Avenue and Seventeenth Street. George and Leo Labonte, brothers, of 18 Lynn Street, Holyoke, Mass., were on the truck. They left one of the company's mills at Holyoke with a full load of silk on Monday evening, on the way to the main office of the company here.

Driving all night, they reached 168th Street and Boston Road about 6:15 o'clock yesterday morning, when they saw what seemed to be a Police Department automobile, in which were a policeman in uniform and five men. The car was going in the opposite direction and, after passing the truck, turned around and overtook it. The "police man" leaned out of the car and ordered the truck driver to stop.

"Where's your bill of lading for this load?" the "policeman" asked.

"I haven't got any," replied Leo Labonte. "We never carry bills of lading, and I've been driving this route a long time."

"Well, you've got to have one," the "policeman" insisted. "You men get down out of that seat."

The driver said he thought the men with the "policeman" were detectives as two of them displayed badges, so he obeyed. Three of the men, he said, drew their revolvers.

"Drive the truck down to headquarters at once, and we'll meet you down there," the man in uniform ordered. Two men then boarded the truck and drove away. The brothers were then put into the automobile with the other four robbers and after driving for a time up and down several streets they were taken behind the Yankee Stadium and told to "beat it" after one of the robbers had made a pretense of telephoning Police Headquarters from a drug store.

Meanwhile, a taxicab driver who had seen the hold-up had called Patrolman John O'Connor of the Morrisania Station. O'Connor got into the taxi and caught up with the truck. Directly they saw the policeman the robbers jumped from the truck and ran in opposite directions. The truck ran up on the sidewalk at 169th Street and Boston Road, broke a water hydrant, crashed into a plumber's supply store, breaking the plate glass window and stopped with its nose in the showcase.

One Caught After a Chase.

One of the robbers escaped, but the other was followed by a crowd, headed by the policeman, who caught him hiding in a cellar at Third Avenue and 169th Street. The robber surrendered when O'Connor drew his pistol. He was taken to Police Headquarters, where he said he was Jack Ransman, a peddler, of 308 East 101st Street. Arraigned in Morrisania Court later on the charge of robbery, he was held without bail for examination tomorrow. The police said their records showed he was arrested in 1917 on the charge of grand larceny and for carrying a pistol, but was discharged; was held by a magistrate for burglary in June, 1922, but not indicted by the Grand Jury, and was arrested for robbery last September, but the charge was dismissed.

The $50,000 silk robbery on Monday night occurred at Leroy and Varick Streets. Raymond Miller of 3 Garfield Place, Paterson, N. J., a driver, and Jacob Nevin of 189 Sheridan Avenue, Paterson, his helper, had driven the truck from Paterson to New York, and had backed up to unload when four men drove up in an automobile. Getting aboard the truck with drawn revolvers, three robbers forced Miller to drive to Greenwich and Bethune Streets, while the fourth followed in a car. Then the driver and his helper were put into the automobile and driven to Dyckman Street, where they were put out. When they got back downtown the truck had disappeared. It was found yesterday in Glendale, Queens, but all the silk was gone.

EX-EMPRESS CARLOTTA DYING NEAR BRUSSELS

King Albert Hastens to the Death-bed of His Aunt, Mad Widow of Maximilian.

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

BRUSSELS, July 17.—The former Empress Carlotta of Mexico, a melancholy heroine of one of the adventurous episodes of the nineteenth century, is dying at her château of Bouchout, near Brussels. The ex-Empress is 83 years old and has been mad since June 19, 1857, when her husband, the Emperor Maximilian, was executed at Queretaro, Mexico.

Locked up in her stately castle, she has not moved through the events of half a century, which have destroyed the Hapsburgs and Hohenzollerns.

Carlotta was carefully guarded during the German occupation, the Kaiser ordering that full attention be given to her wants.

Her nephew, the King of the Belgians, hurried to Bouchout today. He is said to be very fond of the gentle old woman, who thinks she is still in Mexico.

Pershing at 63 Puts in Hard 18-Hour Day; Sleeps 4 Hours, Then Goes to Work as Usual

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—War Department officials and Army officers alike today were marveling at the strength and endurance demonstrated yesterday by General John J. Pershing, 63-year-old Chief of Staff and General of the Armies.

Though General Pershing will be automatically retired for age within a little more than a year, the manner in which he went through a hard day's program yesterday has convinced many of his admirers that he is fit for many more years of service.

The program involved a long ride to Camp Meade, Maryland, and Gretna, Pa., with a return trip to Washington, and included inspections of troops on horseback in a soaking in an unexpected thunder shower, and a luncheon, consisting of a bottle of pop and a hot dog sandwich.

Though he did not get back to Washington until 2:30 A. M. and it was after 3 o'clock when he got to bed the General was up to breakfast at 7 o'clock and was in his office at 9:30 this morning.

Incidentally the General flew the flag of Chief of Staff for the first time since the days of General Peyton C. March. It consists of a red and white field, placed diagonally, with the United States coat of arms in the centre, and with stars in each of the four corners.

The General's program was as follows:

8 A. M.—Left Washington by automobile for Camp Meade.

10 A. M.—Arrived Camp Meade and reviewed, on horseback, the students at the Citizens' and R. O. Training Camps. Requested the army band to play "Yes, We Have No Bananas," which was done.

1 o'clock—Lunched on a bottle of pop and a hot dog sandwich.

1:30 P. M.—Left by automobile for Gretna, Pa.

3:30 P. M.—Reviewed troops during thunder storm which soaked him to the skin. Before changing clothes, he inspected the cavalry in barracks.

7 P. M.—Changed to civilian clothing and dined with the Twenty-eighth Division, Pennsylvania National Guard, addressing the division.

9:30 P. M.—Left by automobile for Washington, arriving 2:30 A. M.

2 A. M.—Went to bed.

7 A. M.—Breakfast.

9:30 A. M.—At his desk in State, War and Navy Building.

$750,000 SWINDLE IN STOCKS CHARGED TO A FILM CONCERN

President Said to Have Pocketed $475,000 and Spent Remainder in Promotion.

FURTHER SALES ENJOINED

Motion Picture Producing Company of America Hasn't Made a Picture, State Says.

HOPE TO MAKE FULLER TALK

Think Complete Confession Is Only Way Out of Jail for Himself and McGee.

A motion picture company that never produced a picture, but sold $750,000 worth of stock to the public, was put out of business yesterday by the Attorney General's office under the Martin law. Supreme Court Justice John Ford granted a temporary injunction restraining the further issue and sale of stock, and set a hearing for Friday morning on the State's application to make it permanent.

The injunction was issued against the Motion Picture Producing Company of America, Inc.; the National Exchange, Inc.; Johnson & Hopkins, Inc., and Walter L. Johnson, President of the three companies, all of 398 Fifth Avenue.

Deputy Attorney General John J. Dwyer, who has charge of the Martin law campaign against bucket shops and blue-sky stock promoters, charged that Johnson had pocketed $475,000 of the $750,000 received from stock sales, and had used the remaining $275,000 to pay salaries, office rent, promotion expenses, &c. Mr. Dwyer said that the companies have no assets, but owe $25,000 besides the capital liabilities of $750,000, so that there is no chance for the stockholders to get any of their money back.

"They organized the Motion Picture Producing Company first," Mr. Dwyer said, "and sold $300,000 worth of stock, although they never produced a complete picture. They merely did parts of pictures. Johnson & Hopkins were selling agents for the stock. When they got all they could out of the producing company they organized the National Exchange, which was to distribute films, and sold $350,000 more of stock in that.

"The par value of the Motion Picture Producing Company stock was $1, but Johnson & Hopkins sold 100,000 shares at $2 a share. They kept $100,000 themselves and put $100,000 in the treasury of the producing company. The par value of the National Exchange common stock was $10, and the preferred $10. Johnson & Hopkins sold it in units, consisting of one share common and one share preferred, keeping all but $175,000, which they turned into the treasury."

Deputy Attorney General Abraham Rosenthal, who conducted the investigation and submitted the petition on which the injunction was granted, reported in the petition that the Motion Picture Producing Company was incorporated in Delaware in 1919 with a capital of $500,000, while the National Exchange was incorporated in the same State later with a capital of $5,000,000. The entire capital of the original company was to be in common stock, while the National Exchange was to have 300,000 shares of 8 per cent. cumulative preferred and 200,000 shares of common. He said that Johnson & Hopkins was organized to sell stock in the other two companies.

Mr. Rosenthal alleges that Johnson & Hopkins wrote themselves an option for 35,000 units of the National Exchange common and preferred at $5 a unit, one-quarter of the par value, and re'd the 35,000 units to the public at from $10 to $20 a unit. He adds that officials of the producing company admitted that it had never produced a complete motion picture, and that Johnson & Hopkins admitted taking the $475,000 from the sale of stock, and turning over only $275,000 to the treasuries of the two other companies. Mr. Rosenthal says in his petition that the companies have debts for merchandise amounting to $25,000, have no assets and are insolvent.

Hope to Get Fuller to "Confess" All.

A full "confession," including an explanation of the missing papers mysteriously returned, information concerning the supposed persons "higher up" in the alleged bucket shop ring and the production of the suspected "hidden assets" of the bankrupt brokerage firm of E. M. Fuller & Company, must be made before Edward M. Fuller and William Frank McGee, the partners in

Infected by Furs, Woman Wins Damages in a London Court

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Co.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 17.—In the London County Court today the Judge gave a verdict for damages against a costumier who had sold a coat with a fur collar to a woman who claimed that she had contracted dermatitis from the garment. The Judge said there was almost an epidemic of "fur dermitis," and a hospital surgeon said King's College Hospital had between thirty and forty cases, all due to wearing cheap furs.

Mark Schriber, importer of Fur skins, said those supplied to the defendant costumier came from New York and were guaranteed free from disease. They were known as "beaver coney."

"That means, I suppose, common rabbit skins," said the Judge.

An analytical chemist, called for the defense, said he found that it was only in Belgian and German dyed skins that there was anything wrong. This generally was due to insufficient washing after dyeing. American skins did not show any defects, he said.

SUES TO DISSOLVE HARVESTER COMPANY

Daugherty Asks Court to Split It Into Three Parts Under Sherman Anti-Trust Law.

SAYS A MONOPOLY LOOMS

Price Advantage Is Charged, but President Legge Answers Competition Is Real.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Attorney General Daugherty filed a petition today in the Federal District Court at St. Paul demanding that the International Harvester Company be separated into three independent corporations, with different stockholders, owners and officials, as suggested in the Federal Trade Commission report to the United States Senate May 4, 1920.

The action was taken, said the Attorney General in his petition, because the original decree dissolving the International Harvester company, which was entered Nov. 2, 1918, was inadequate to achieve its purpose, namely, to restore competitive conditions in the United States in the interstate business in harvesting machines and other agricultural implements.

In this typical anti-trust case, Mr. Daugherty asked the court to decree that the Harvester company is "still a combination in restraint of interstate trade and commerce, and still is monopolizing and attempting to monopolize said trade and commerce in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust law, and contrary to several opinions, orders and decrees of this court."

"Even though a test period has elapsed since the original dissolution decree was entered, the aim of the decree had not been accomplished," Mr. Daugherty said, and therefore "the United States now has the right to such further relief as may be necessary to restore competitive conditions in interstate trade and commerce in harvesting machines and other agricultural implements, and to bring about a situation in harmony with law."

The Attorney General alleged that unless the combination was dissolved "the monopolistic control exerted by the defendant would increase and the vision of complete monopoly, which the organizers of the company had in 1902, would be completely realized and the farmers of the United States would be deprived of free and open competition in the manufacture and sale of harvesting machines."

The supplemental petition, signed by Mr. Daugherty, A. T. Seymour, assistant to the Attorney General; Guy D. Goff, J. A. Fowler, W. F. Martin, & F. Meyers, special assistants to the Attorney General, and Lafayette French Jr., United States Attorney at St. Paul, is directed against the International Harvester Company of America, the International Flax Twine Company, the Wisconsin Steel Company, the Wisconsin Lumber Company, the Illinois Northern Railway, the Chicago, West Pullman and Southern Railroad Company, and the officers and Directors of these companies.

In a statement detailing the history of the case, the Department of Justice said today:

"Litigation involving the International Harvester Company dates back to 1911, when the Government, on the verge of filing a petition asking for the dissolution of the company as a combination in restraint of trade, consented to enter into negotiations with officials of the company with a view

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 17.—Governor Smith listened for an hour or more today to pleas of a special committee of the Board of Estimate, headed by Mayor Hylan himself. He was told that special legislation was the only means of keeping the city buses moving following court decisions which have outlawed them.

Governor Smith gave no inkling of his intentions, but said after the hearing that he might reach a decision before the end of this week.

Mayor Hylan professed to feel very hopeful after the hearing, which was behind closed doors in the Governor's inner sanctum. The Mayor wanted an open session, but the Governor would not have the reporters present. The only statement regarding what took place was made public by the Governor himself after all others had been pledged to secrecy. What the Governor said was not revealing.

Before the Governor does anything in the situation, described by the Mayor and his colleagues as critical and verging on tragedy, there is every reason to believe that he will seriously attempt a task, regarded as hopeless, and try to bring about some measure of harmony and co-operation between the city administration and the Transit Commission. In this connection it was pointed out here tonight that by Governor Smith that he had the power to remove both the elective city officials and members of the commission.

The gravity of the situation, as outlined by the Mayor, in the opinion of many observers, may prove a helpful factor in achievement of the purpose with which Governor Smith is credited. The opinion is expressed that with Chairman McAneny of the Transit Commission admittedly of conciliatory mind and ready to co-operate, Mayor Hylan, rather than forego continued operation of his buses, may sink his personal prejudices and meet the commission half way should the Governor point the way. Governor Smith will leave for New York City tomorrow afternoon and may remain there over the week end.

The Mayor Still Belligerent.

Mayor Hylan before the Governor, however, maintained the familiar belligerent note and gave no indication that he thought the Transit Commission could be of any help in the bus tangle. The Mayor insisted that, even if the commission, to help out, might grant the certificates of convenience and necessity, essential to operation of buses under existing laws and court decisions construing them, the Board of Estimate would not have power to award franchises except to corporations which would leave the board at the mercy of the "traction crowd and their friends."

Before going into the hearing, Mayor Hylan announced that he would open his up-State campaign for the election of an Assembly pledged to his public utility program, in Ogdensburg, St. Lawrence County, on Friday night at an "Old Home Week" celebration. The Mayor said that his theme would be transit and the cost of electric light and power under private operation as contrasted with the blessing which would follow municipal ownership.

Before the Governor, Mayor Hylan laid the blame for the defeat of the first bus bill presented to the Legislature to Samuel S. Koenig, President of the New York County Republican Committee, and "one of the Brady boys." Mr. Hylan said that his bill had passed the Senate in 1920 and that the then Speaker, Thaddeus C. Sweet of Oswego, favored the passage of such legislation in the Assembly until after a joint visit by Messrs. Koenig and Brady, when he changed his mind and "consigned the bill to the waste basket."

The special committee came to the Capitol on the Empire State express shortly after noon and went to the Executive Chamber at once where, after brief delay, they were received by the Governor and ushered into his private office for the hearing.

The City's Representatives.

With Mayor Hylan were Borough Presidents Julius Miller of Manhattan and Edward S. Riegelmann of Brooklyn, William T. Collins, Vice Chairman of the Aldermanic Board, who came as the representative of Aldermanic President Murray Hulbert; William J. Wynn, Public Works Commissioner of the Bronx, who came as proxy for Borough President Henry Bruckner; Corporation Counsel George P. Nicholson, Assistant Corporation Counsel William C. Mayer, and Grover S. Whalen, Commissioner of Plant and Structures. The absence of Dock Commissioner John Delaney, who had so much to do with the drafting of the transit legislation defeated at the regular session of the Legislature, was remarked upon.

Mayor Hylan recited the bus history of his Administration and told of repeated attempts made to obtain legislation to sustain the city in the operation of buses.

"In January, 1920, the Legislature resolved that the transit situation in New York City had become acute and, deferring to a recommendation from the Governor to the president, was called upon the Public Service Commission for a report," Mayor Hylan said. "The City Administration presented a bill giving the city the right to purchase and operate buses. This

Robert F. Loree and His Secretary Marry; News of Ceremony Kept Secret for a Week

PORT CHESTER, N. Y., July 17.—Robert F. Loree, President of the Bank of Central and South America, Inc., 44 Pine Street, was married secretly here last Wednesday night to Miss Elizabeth Hughes, daughter of Police Lieutenant Thomas F. Hughes of 465 West 153d Street, New York City.

Miss Hughes is said to have been private secretary to Mr. Loree, who formerly was a Vice President of the Guaranty Trust Company and whose father is President of the Delaware & Hudson Railroad Company.

Although efforts to trace the issuance of the marriage license here were unsuccessful, Father John A. Waters, pastor of the Roman Catholic Church of Our Lady of Mercy, admitted performing the ceremony. He refused to discuss the wedding or to allow the fiance to be seen, saying that the couple did not want any publicity.

Mr. Loree and Miss Hughes arrived here for the wedding by automobile. Since they had brought no witnesses with them, immediate difficulty arose. It is said. Miss Hughes suggested that John McCarthy, proprietor of an inn here, and a friend of her father, be called in. Miss Mary Fagan, who lives next door to the church, consented to act as the other witness. After the ceremony supper was served at the inn.

At the home of Mr. Loree in West Orange, N. J., a maid said over the telephone that he had retired and had left orders not to be disturbed. She denied knowledge of the marriage. At the home of Lieutenant Hughes it was said that he was out. The woman who answered the telephone, calling herself the maid, said that the family was out of the city and that she believed the report of the marriage untrue.

This is Mr. Loree's second marriage. His first wife was Baroness Alix Moncheur, daughter of Baron Moncheur, Belgian Ambassador to Turkey. The marriage was performed in the Roman Catholic Cathedral in Baltimore by Cardinal Gibbons on May 5, 1913. Mrs. Loree died of influenza at her home in Cedarhurst, L. I., on February 11, 1920. Mr. Loree, who graduated from Yale, where he gained fame as a football player, passed in the Senate after the Administration had consented to an amendment providing for a certificate of convenience and necessity. It failed in the Assembly.

"Prior to the unfavorable action by the Assembly, Speaker Sweet appeared to be friendly to some sort of bus legislation for New York City. After a visit from a prominent Democrat interested in transit, by the name of Brady, and a prominent Republican who seems to be much interested in opposing bus legislation, by the name of Koenig, the bill was consigned to the waste basket.

Another Bill Meets Same End.

"During the special session which was called by you to consider emergency rent legislation a new bus bill was introduced after, at our request, you had sent a special message urging its passage. Speaker Sweet again heard the voice of his masters—Brady and Koenig—and the bus bill was again consigned to the waste basket."

"In 1921 and 1922 Governor Miller was at the helm here and the Senate and Assembly both treated our bus bills with contempt. When you again assumed office at the beginning of this year the Walker-Donohue New York City Transportation bill was introduced. It passed the Senate and was killed in the Assembly. Again we see the hand of Koenig. The four Republican Assemblymen from Manhattan—Ullman, Jesse, Steinberg and Kaufman—and the one in Brooklyn—Clayton—did the bidding of Koenig, and with the co-operation of Speaker Machold and Republican Floor Leader Adler, the bill was defeated.

"We have done the best we could in the emergency to afford the 185,000 persons who use the city buses daily the best sort of transportation available under the circumstances. We admit that it has been a makeshift method of operation. But we were hopeful right along that the courts or the Legislature would give the people the necessary relief. Now the court has put a stop to this method of operation. Mr. McAneny and a few others want us to resort to another makeshift method and give to individual bus owners or associations of bus owners short-time franchises which he knows, and Corporation Counsel Nicholson advises us, can only be awarded to corporations.

"When we are doing the best we can without help from the courts and the Legislatures by the present makeshift methods, we are accused of Tammany graft and all sorts of wrongdoing. If we wanted to really do something to betray the people we could give to Tammany or any other organization, whether it be political or otherwise, the most valuable franchise privileges that could be granted and nothing would be said about it.

Tammany Co-operating With Him.

"But, I can say that in what has been done we have had valuable co-operation from the leading Tammany men and from Tammany men in all walks of life. The deplorable situation we now witness has arisen as a result of an attempt to compel the elected officials of New York City to give to transit corporations or their friends these valuable franchises and deprive the taxpayers of $4,000,000 annually in profits."

The Mayor went on to say that the traffic problem of New York City was in large measure due to the people riding in automobiles because they were afraid of using surface cars. He pledged an appropriation of $25,000,000 or $50,000,000 for the purchase and operation of buses by the city under suitable supervision in the event of an extra session and favorable legislation.

Grover Whalen, in a brief speech, praised "the courageous work" of Mayor Hylan in fighting the "traction interests" and declared the people of New York City had shown unmistakably that they want bus service.

Mayor Hylan, when asked if he could not further identify the "Democrat named Brady," said that all he knew was that Speaker Sweet's visitor was "one of the two boys of old man Brady." The late Nicholas Brady had two sons, Nicholas and James C.

Will Seek Republican Aid.

The Mayor said his special committee would try to get in touch with Speaker Machold and the Republican Assemblymen representing New York City districts today with a view to sounding them on the prospects of an extra session. Mayor Hylan said he would make an earnest appeal to the latter, as he had been advised that they held the situation in the hollow of their hands.

"They would only be doing their duty if they voted to afford relief to the people of their own districts, but in return would be willing to write them each a letter of commendation and of course I could not under the circumstances think of opposing them in the campaign, regardless of their past performances," said the Mayor. "Service of the people, as I see it, comes first; party in the second place."

Mayor Hylan, before going to the train, said:

"The Governor under our agreement will do all the talking. I feel very hopeful that we accomplished something."

Other members of the party echoed this note of optimism.

"The traction crowd," Mayor Hylan volunteered, "has maneuvered itself into an impossible position. Now the people are going to settle this thing to suit themselves."

Governor Smith said, after the hearing, that Frank C. Perkins, one of the members of the City Conciliation at Buffalo, who is in charge of public works and public utilities, had written him a letter urging that if a special session is called it be asked to enact bus legislation applying generally to all cities in the State or at least to all cities of the first class.

A special committee appointed by the New York Board of Estimate has called upon me and asked that the Legislature be convened in extraordinary session to enact special legislation as the only way out of the difficulties that have arisen in connection with the operation of city owned buses in New York City," Governor Smith said. "I have heard the city's side, and the request for a special session is under consideration."

"Will you consult the Transit Commission before you render your decision?" the Governor was asked.

"I do not care to say anything beyond what I have said," he replied.

The cost of an extra session is estimated by experts as not in excess of $8,000, unless it should be prolonged beyond all expectations.

MUST AID PASSENGERS FROM STALLED TRAINS

Transit Commission Orders Remedy for Conditions Such as Existed in Subway Tie-Up Monday.

The Transit Commission announced yesterday that it was very much dissatisfied with the way passengers were held for hours in stalled subway trains during the Interborough tie-up Monday night when a train was derailed north of Ninety-sixth Street. An order was adopted requiring all companies to take prompt steps to direct passengers to means of egress from the subway or other railroad trains in case of tie-ups.

Many passengers were kept in the subway for four hours as a result of Monday night's accident, and there was criticism of what appeared to be a lack of organization to deal with the particular emergency and lack of consideration toward passengers on the part of employes.

The commission made public the report of its engineers on Monday morning's accident on the Jerome Avenue elevated line, when a Ninth Avenue train colliding with a stopping subway train. Seven persons were injured. The report stated that the brakes apparently worked satisfactorily and expressed the opinion that the accident was not due to any failure in the car equipment. Regarding the signals, the report said:

"Motorman Higgins of the elevated train, who was fatally injured, had a clear vision of approximately 1,000 feet and could have avoided this accident if proper precaution was taken. From information obtained Motorman Higgins had this run for about eight months, and this is not the first time that a My-up train has obstructed his movement. It has frequently occurred that Motorman Higgins had to wait with his train until the last lay-up train was cleared."

150 BUS OPERATORS FORM CORPORATION

Will Apply for Franchise as Required Under Court's interpretation of Law.

CITY LINES TO RUN TODAY

Corporation Counsel to Ask Delay on Injunction Until the Legislature Can Act.

Skeptical of relief by the passage of legislation at a special session of the Legislature, 150 operators of municipally-supervised bus lines, which have been declared illegal by a Court of Appeals decision, met at Jefferson Hall, 92 Columbus Street, yesterday and took steps to form a corporation preliminary to applying to the Board of Estimate for a franchise and to the Transit Commission for a certificate of convenience and necessity.

The meeting appointed a committee to attend to the details of the incorporation. The organization would be called the Co-operative Bus Owners' Association of Greater New York. The first step will be to enlist in the movement bus operators not at the meeting and to confer with Mayor Hylan and attend the special Board of Estimate meeting on Thursday. The meeting was adjourned to Thursday to hear the report of the committee after it had conferred with the Mayor. A meeting of the Executive Committee will be held today at the Hotel Marie Antoinette.

I. Lewis Dresden of 50 Broad Street, who had been retained by the organizers of the movement as tentative counsel, said the proper method to follow was for each operator to turn over his bus or buses to the association and receive stock of the corporation in return. He estimated that if the owners of all the 450 buses now being run on municipally supervised lines came in, the association would have property worth from $3,000,000 to $5,000,000 and would be capitalized for that amount.

The operators voted to incorporate, with only one dissenting vote. The following were named on the committee:

William Cooper and Theodore Massey, Prospect Avenue line; Edward Kline and Samuel Gans, Delancey Street line; David Reichfeld and Albert Brief, Madison and Chambers Street line, and Lawrence Buckner of 6 Columbia Street, Secretary.

Continued operation of the buses is assured for today. At the offices of Guggenheimer, Untermyer & Marshall it was said that Louis Marshall, attorney for Edward Schafer, complainant in the injunction action which halted the buses, had not returned from Albany, but that the order of the Court of Appeals had not yet been received. It was said that the order was expected today, but that nothing would be done before Thursday.

Corporation Counsel Nicholson, as directed by the Board of Estimate, will try to get Mr. Marshall and Supreme Court Justice George V. Mullen, whose injunction order would become effective upon service of the Court of Appeals order, to agree to a delay while Mayor Hylan attempts to get the Legislature to empower the city to run its proposed $25,000,000 bus system. Justice Mullan, who is on vacation at Warrensburg, N. Y., is expected to return Thursday night.

That the Republican Assemblymen from New York City do not intend to let Mayor Hylan force them to vote for his bus program was indicated by a statement by Assemblyman Victor R. Kaufmann, one of the four Manhattan Republican Assemblymen.

"Thousands of dollars of the taxpayers' money have been wasted not only in this but in other useless fights, trying to legalize what every lawyer knew to be illegal," he said.

"To state that the city is without relief, except to call a special session of the Legislature, is absolutely untrue. The Mayor knows that he now has the power to issue temporary franchises, by obtaining a certificate of convenience and necessity, which can be had from within three to ten days, revokable at the will of the present Board of Estimate, and thus continue the operation of these buses in a legal manner."

An offer to establish a privately owned bus system was made yesterday by Austen G. Fox, whose similar offer was rejected by the Board of Estimate about two years ago. In a letter to Mayor Hylan, a copy of which was sent to George McAneny, Chairman of the Transit Commission, Mr. Fox said his company would operate at a five cent fare.

The Rialto Transportation Company of Jamaica, a newly formed company, made application to the Board of Estimate for a franchise to operate three bus lines in the Jamaica section of Queens. Two of the proposed routes are from Jamaica to St. Albans and the third is a shuttle service from Ninety-ninth Street and Farmers Avenue to the High School on Springfield Road.

In discussing the Board of Estimate's demand for a special session of the Legislature, Transit Commissioner Le Roy T. Harkness said:

"As a matter of politics this demand is interesting; as a matter of getting things done, it is unfortunately only too typical."

CAPTURES CRAFT OFF MAINE

Federal Cutter Takes British Skipper Accused in Bar Harbor Rum Plot.

PORTLAND, Maine, July 17.—An eight months' quest conducted by Federal officers for the skipper of the British schooner Kenduskeag in connection with the alleged landing of large quantities of liquor off Bar Harbor in September, ended off Cape Ann today when the Coast Guard Cutter Osaippe captured the vessel, District Attorney Dyer announced tonight.

Captain Frederick Hynan of St. Martin's, British West Indies, was found to be in command. He was indicted in Bangor last month, charged with conspiracy to violate the Volstead act.

This ship, declared District Attorney Dyer, carried supplies of liquor to an alleged rum ring of Maine men, which is said to have functioned for the last four years with a base in the Bar Harbor archipelago.

Named in the indictment with Captain Hynan is Derby Stanley of Manset, a Bowdoin graduate and former football star, who, according to the prosecutor, acted as a land agent for the rum runners. Five boatmen of Bar Harbor also are indicted.

LEVIATHAN SAILS NEAR-DRY

Carries Only Medical Supply—Some of Passengers Bring Their Liquor.

SOUTHAMPTON, July 17 (Associated Press).—The Leviathan, completing her first round trip as a passenger vessel flying the American flag, sailed for home today with 1,170 passengers, 350 in the first class, 120 second and 700 third.

The vessel was practically "dry" except for the medical stores, which included one gallon of brandy for each hundred passengers. Individuals brought their own supplies of liquor.

The other vessels in port saluted the Leviathan as she passed out.

FRANCE SEEKS AIR RECORDS

Offers Prizes for Recapture of Speed and Endurance Lead.

PARIS, July 17.—The French Government, through the Under Secretary of Aeronautics, today offered two prizes of 50,000 francs each to the airplane firm or firms bringing back to France before the end of the present year the speed and duration records.

The French regard these as the most important of the records recently captured by American aviators.

BOOTLEGGER'S IDEA FAILS.

Feeling Customers' Pulses Does Not Reveal Two Detectives.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 17.—Two detectives today charged that Henry Bergelt sold them liquor only after feeling the pulse of each in an effort to detect unusually rapid pulse action, which he thought might be expected in officers "making" a case.

The detectives said Bergelt employed this method on all customers. Bergelt denied the officers' statement.

WASHINGTON JARRED BY MINNESOTA VOTE

cratic candidate polled about 5 per cent. Certainly the Democratic Party cannot get much comfort out of this result.

"On the face of the returns, it appears that the Farmer-Labor candidate, endorsed by several other organizations, including the Communists, received the bulk of the Democratic vote. Conservative Democratic leaders in Minnesota supported Governor Preus.

"As the situation stands today the Republican Party is the only organized influence around which the constructive, progressive forces of the country can rally. In Minnesota, as in other States the Democratic organization has been completely wiped out by the third parties of radical tendencies. The indications are that the Democratic party in the next campaign will make common cause with these radical influences and endorse part of their Socialistic program.

"In general way the result in Minnesota was a voice of protest against conditions temporarily affecting the farming interests adversely. At such times candidates who promise the most, regardless of whether their promises can be redeemed or not, are the beneficiaries in popular elections.

"Conditions in Minnesota and elsewhere in agricultural sections of the country are bound to improve, and with their improvement public opinion in those sections will right itself. The American people, especially the American farmer, have the great saving quality of sober second thought, and they can be depended upon in the long run to support the cause of good Government, sound economics and stable institutions."

Hull Calls It Reply to Harding.

Cordell Hull, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, said:

"By the defeat of Governor Preus, the national administration Republican candidate for Senator, in Monday's election, the voters of the stalwart Republican State of Minnesota have administered the most significant and humiliating defeat and repudiation which the Harding Administration has suffered since the nationwide repudiation in 1922. The election was the first reaction of the voters at the polls to President Harding's trans-continental political tour with its boast of prosperity, its characteristic evasions and reversals and facing both ways.

"It was an answer also to the recent journey of Chairman John T. Adams of the Republican National Committee to the Middle West, where he, amidst millions of farmers ruined or made bankrupt under Republican rule, proclaimed prosperity as the Republican slogan.

"The stalwart Republicans of Minnesota were required to answer 'Yes' or 'no' on the issue as to whether the Harding Administration should be endorsed, with the amazing result of the Harding majority of 376,000 in 1920 turned into a bitter opposition majority of 60,000. In the face of the common Republican assertion that Magnus Johnson was impossible by every test, the intelligent and discriminating Republican voters as the least of two evils deliberately chose Johnson over the candidate wearing the Republican national administration label.

"Having been armed with the reactionary Republican Administration slate, it availed Governor Preus nothing when in an effort to placate the voters, his managers declined to allow President Harding to openly support his candidacy or when Governor Preus himself repudiated the Fordney-McCumber Tariff act, or when his managers declined to bring into the State Republican farm bloc Senators who had recently bamboozled the farmers with a fraudulent tariff, or when Senator Moses, Chairman of the Republican Campaign Committee, was required to travel incognita in visiting Minnesota.

"All these last-minute changes in reactionary Republican tactics brushed aside by the voters, who were determined to run no risks in their purpose to elect no person even tainted with reactionary Republicanism.

Says Harvest Cut Majority.

"Despite the fact that Governor Preus called the special election in midharvest, when it would be most difficult for farmers to get to the polls, this method of attempting to disfranchise the agricultural voters did not succeed. Had the election been called before or after the harvest the plurality of Johnson might have been as large as that of Shipstead in 1922, which was 83,000, in the same election Governor Preus received 74,500 plurality for Governor over Johnson, who now defeats him by upward of 60,000.

"The American farmers have experienced a complete tryout of typical Republican high tariffs—tariffs that have never increased the prices of farm products but have tremendously increased the prices of most commodities the farmer must buy. The verdict of the Minnesota farmers is that such Republican high tariffs are and always have been a colossal fraud upon the American farmer and that there is no greater handicap to farmers' prosperity.

"The farmers were told two years ago that high tariffs would increase the prices of their farm products, whereas they have gone down to almost nothing in many instances, with the result that the Republicans are now telling the same farmers that the only remedy for the price decrease of wheat is not a tariff but a reduction of what years, or for the people to eat more bread.

"The Minnesota election is a general condemnation of dominant Republican national leadership since 1919—a leadership that has resulted in the affairs of the nation and the world drifting aimlessly along, while our domestic business conditions are temporary, artificial and uncertain. The temper of the Minnesota voters as shown by Monday's election is indicative of the temper of the voters generally, not only among the farmers, but of all classes.

"Unfortunately for the Harding Administration, it cannot take advantage of the lesson given it by the voters of Minnesota. It cannot repudiate its high protective tariff policy without alienating the great manufacturing and other special interests which supply its campaign funds and control its economic policy. It has no choice but to remain true to special privilege and protected interests and continue to resort to sophistry, misrepresentation and other reprehensible methods in further attempts to fool the great body of voters upon whom these special interests prey.

"I therefore renew my prediction that in 1924 the country will again turn to the Democratic Party with its sound economic policy, with its definite and constructive program, its intelligent and aggressive leadership and efficient administrative ability."

Gompers Felicitates Johnson.

Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, sent this telegram to Senator-elect Johnson today:

"To have won so magnificently against all the power of high finance is not only a personal tribute to you and the fundamental principles for which you stand, but also a demonstration that the people are tired of mere word-mongers and look upon progressive, constructive legislation for all the people, for the wealth producers on farms and in the factories. The people of Minnesota are to be congratulated on their choice and the forward-looking citizenship of the country are heartened."

JOHNSON ROLLING UP A LEAD NEAR 85,000

Minnesota Farmer-Laborite Has 74,612 Over Preus in About Five-Sixths of the State.

TURNS TO GETTING IN HAY

Assails Tariff and Foreign Policy—Jests About Charge He Cannot Talk English.

ST. PAUL, July 17 (Associated Press).—Unofficial returns from yesterday's special Senatorial election as received up to late tonight, indicate that Magnus Johnson, Farmer-Laborite, was virtually assured of a plurality of 85,000 votes over Governor A. O. Preus, Republican.

When reports from 2,913 of the State's 3,530 precincts were in Johnson had a lead of 74,612 over Governor Preus, while James A. Carley, Democrat, continued a poor third. The totals were: Johnson, 259,582; Preus, 184,970; Carley, 17,976.

In the unreported precincts, scattered through fifty counties, there remain enough votes to bring the final total probably to a few thousand more than half a million votes. These are principally rural precincts, admittedly favorable to Johnson.

Governor Preus has apparently carried only twelve counties.

Ramsey county complete, in which St. Paul is situated, gave Johnson 20,206 votes, as against 10,923 for Preus and 3,578 for Carley. In Hennepin, which includes Minneapolis, with four small precincts missing, Preus had 43,483 votes, Johnson 43,104 and Carley 2,894.

St. Louis County, which contains Duluth and several iron range cities of more than 10,000 population, gave Johnson 15,021, Preuss 12,120 and Carley 850, with the county returns two-thirds complete.

Johnson Attacks the Tariff.

Mr. Johnson today issued this statement:

"The majority of voters have elected me to the United States Senate because of the principles they and I stand for. Government is instituted to promote the welfare of the people, not to protect a few in the special privileges given them. The high tariff on the consumers, the unjust treatment of labor, the plight of the farmers, the packing of the judiciary with men favorable to the large financial and railroad groups, the short-sighted, bungling foreign policy pursued by our Government toward other countries and their peoples and other similar problems will receive my earnest attention and study.

"I congratulate the people of this State on their victory. What the organized farmers and workers, pulling together, have accomplished in Minnesota they can likewise accomplish in other States of the Union.

"I thank the people of this State for the honor they have conferred on me."

Wants to Help in Haying.

Though jubilant over his victory, the "real dirt farmer" Senator-elect was more concerned about getting his haying done than things political, and he sought to postpone extended statements incident to his election, but let drop a few remarks.

"Well, boys," he said, "I put it over; I beat 'Jake' Preus, as I said I would. Now I can go home and help my sons get the haying done. After that I can do some more organizing before I go to Washington."

Pressed for details of his organization plans, he repeated an excerpt from his campaign keynote speech:

"I will do this because I believe the farmers and the workers and the business men can, by united action, better their condition."

He was willing to let it be known in semi-official way that he was "against the World Court and the League of Nations and any other foreign entanglements."

For the present he preferred not to discuss the recognition of Russia, though "between you and me I am for recognition right away." Prohibition he passed over, but expressed himself in favor of a soldier bonus, payable out of excess profits.

Stands Against Dictation.

The Senator-elect, while announcing adherence to the principles for which the La Follette group is banded together, qualified this affiliation with the statement that he did not intend to accept dictation "from any man" in Congress.

"I am not quite ready to announce my plans," he said, "but you can just bet when I want anything done or want to bring anything to the attention of the Senate I can make myself heard."

"Making himself heard" might be accepted literally for the Senator-elect has a strong voice and has said that he can "out-bellow" almost any one who might care to enter a competition. Some of this ability to make himself heard he ascribes to the lung development to which he was subjected while learning the glass blowers' trade when he was in his 'teens. He was born in Varmland, Sweden, in 1871, and came to the United States when he was 20 years old.

Johnson's father was a ship owner in Sweden, and for some time before emigrating to America young Johnson sailed before the mast. In this country his first experience included work as a mill hand and lumberjack. For twenty-four years he has been a farmer at Kimball.

The Senator-elect insists that he "is nothing but a plain farmer," not worried "whether they are pressed or not so long as I am backing the interests of the farmer." While serving in the Minnesota Legislature he followed the practice of scrutinizing every bit of legislation before voting on it. In the Minnesota House and Senate two terms in the former and one in the latter Johnson excited considerable comment by his oratorical efforts. There never was a complaint that some member could not hear him, he said.

Defects Speaking English.

Johnson, pointing out that "many people say I cannot speak good English," said that he always managed to make himself understood. He illustrated his point by reciting that his wife, "an Irish girl, who couldn't understand a word of Swedish," understood him all right when he proposed to her. As a matter of fact there is little of the dialect in Johnson's English, although he admits difficulty with an occasional word.

Governor Preus, who had announced his support of the policies of the Harding Administration, which had limited "Harding versus La Follette" flavor to the election, had nothing to add today to his brief statement last night thanking his supporters for their votes.

He will continue as Governor until the expiration of his term, Jan. 1, 1925. He has not indicated whether he will try for the long term Senatorial election in 1924 or for yesterday's action was for the unexpired term of the late Senator Knute Nelson. Johnson expects to be a candidate for the long term, his friends say.

LA FOLLETTE SAYS GAIN IS BIG.

Voters No Longer Follow Party Slogans, Senator Declares.

MADISON, Wis., July 17.—In the election of Magnus Johnson to the United States Senate yesterday "the people of Minnesota fired a shot which will be heard in every action of the country," said Senator La Follette in a statement issued yesterday.

"The people of the great Northwest have again spoken their conviction that if representative government is to survive in the United States, private monopoly must be driven out of control of their Government," the Senator said. "The notion with which the reactionaries comfort themselves that the election of Johnson expresses merely a sectional protest of disgruntled farmers and workingmen against present economic conditions and Governmental policies—is a ridiculous delusion.

"The voice of Minnesota is the voice of the common people of this country, constituting 90 per cent. of the people who are determined to free themselves from the monopoly power over their lives which has been built up over a long period of years through favors for the few extorted from the Government of the many.

"The old Lincoln spirit is again sweeping the West. It will find its echo in the East, the South and Middle West just so soon as courageous and able leaders of the type of Magnus Johnson arise to champion the cause of the common people.

"Partisan politics and their press cannot long deceive themselves concerning this fundamental movement among the people. The people are awake. The old party slogans do not deceive them. They are not to be misled by the ridicule and abuse which has been directed at their leaders. They have learned to know the real enemies of their political and economic liberty."

WON ON "DOMESTIC ISSUES."

Kansas City Star Says Johnson Shows Their Potency.

Special to The New York Times.

KANSAS CITY, July 17.—The Star says editorially today:

"The plain warning to the Harding Administration in the result of the Minnesota Senatorial election yesterday is that the issues in which the people of this country are interested are domestic and not foreign. Magnus Johnson, who defeated Governor Preus, the Republican candidate, in a Republican State, accomplished that surprising overturn by convincing the voters of Minnesota that he was concerned for the welfare of Americans, not of Europeans.

"The League of Nations, the World Court, reparations—all the Old World problems into which the United States is being urged, pushed and dragged—have palled on Americans and they have begun to wonder if it is not the business of the American Government to do something about America's needs.

"It does not so much matter whether Magnus Johnson has any constructive ideas about what those needs are or how the Government can supply them. The point is, he met the people of Minnesota and talked to them about those needs. He said not advocate saving the United States by first saving Europe. He put the United States first.

"His election shows that is the method of world adjustment the people of Minnesota are for. The people of the other States probably are for it, too. President Harding should read that lesson in the Minnesota returns."

RAIL BROTHERHOODS HELPED.

Stone and Other Leaders Had Agents Working for Johnson.

CLEVELAND, July 17 (Associated Press).—Warren S. Stone, President of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and D. B. Robertson, President of the Brotherhood of Firemen and Enginemen, expressed pleasure today at the election of Johnson as Senator from Minnesota.

"All of the railroad labor organizations had representatives in the field working for Johnson," Mr. Stone said. "His election is a sign of the times. It shows what is going to happen unless the farmers can get some price for their products."

William G. Lee, President of the Brotherhood of Trainmen, sent a Vice President of that organization to Minnesota to work for the Farmer-Labor candidate.

Hooker on Minnesota Drift — Hopkins Sends Message.

Elon H. Hooker, Chairman of the American Defense Society, in a statement on the election of Magnus Johnson, said that it was an indication of a drift which was worthy of serious attention.

"This political phenomenon," he said, "is of exceptional interest because the newly formed Farmer-Labor Party within a fortnight has openly been taken over by the Communist forces in America. The Communists have thrown their full weight in the Northwest to secure the election of an avowed radical to the United States Senate. It is a safe venture to state that for the first time in the history of this country a Senate election is probably watched with more interest and with fuller understanding as to its significance in Moscow than it is in America.

"It must not be assumed that Minnesota is Bolshevist or Red, but it must be understood that unless a campaign of intelligent education is carried forward, Minnesota will prove to be only the first of many other States which will follow in the footsteps of the misleading and fallacious philosophy, the fountainhead of which is Moscow and does not originate either in the mind or the heart of American workmen or farmers.

"It is essential that the American people who are suffering economically as a by-product of the reaction of the war must realize that an economic problem is solved by economic minds and not by legislation attempting to avert the laws of finance, economics and the impairment of the American Constitution. Minnesota is an object lesson for the rest of the union."

J. A. H. Hopkins, Executive Chairman of the Committee of Forty-eight, sent this telegram to F. A. Pike, Chairman of the Farmer-Labor Party in Minnesota:

"Hearty congratulations. Magnus Johnson's decisive victory is the first gun in the 1924 campaign. Now let us all unite to establish a continuous barrage which will not cease firing until our Presidential nominee has registered his rightful claim to occupy the White House."

When asked to whom he referred as "our Presidential nominee," Mr. Hopkins said:

"It makes no possible difference to me or to the Committee of Forty-eight whether the nominee of the Progressive Party in 1924 is Senator Borah, Senator La Follette, Mr. Ford or any other representative citizen, provided he stands squarely for the principles to which we are pledged, which are the abolition of special privilege through the public ownership of our transportation system, a revision of our banking laws and the public control of our natural resources."

ILLINOIS REPUBLICANS NOW FEAR STATE'S LOSS

Leaders Agree at a Conference in Champaign That Defeat Next Year Looms Up.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 17.—Four men sat at a conference in Champaign in the last few days and, after raking over conditions in the Republican Party in Illinois with a fine-tooth comb, agreed that unless drastic treatment was applied the State not only was likely to give its twenty-nine electoral votes to the Democratic candidate for President in 1924 but would elect Democrats for Governor and United States Senator.

In the conference were United States Senators McCormick and McKinley, former Senator Lawrence Y. Sherman, now Republican National Committeeman, and Walter L. Rosenfield, Chairman of the Republican State Central Committee. The conference was held in the home of Senator McKinley.

Those who learned of the conference were told that one of its most important developments was that Senator McKinley assured Senator McCormick that whatever else might happen he would back him without limit for renomination in the primary next April. The conferees were said to favor Frank O. Lowden for the Gubernatorial nomination.

MINNESOTA SETBACK GRIEVES HARDING

He Gets News of Johnson's Victory at Breakfast and Is Keenly Disappointed.

ELECTION NOW AN ERROR

Friends of the Tour Think Delay Till Next Year Would Have Let Radical Tide Recede.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, July 17.—President Harding was much disappointed in the result of the Senatorial election in Minnesota. His keen interest was shown in having telegraphic inquiry made last night as to the outcome.

The news of the defeat of Governor Preus, the Republican candidate, by Johnson, the Farmer-Laborite, was given to the President just as he was going to breakfast in the Curry Hotel Tuesday morning. It is a safe guess that his appetite for food was curtailed by the news.

While not commenting for publication, it was evident that he was keenly concerned over this setback to the Republican Party, which further reduces the gradually dwindling party majority in the Senate by two.

The opinion prevails among some of those close to the President that a political error was made by Governor Preus in calling the election at this time. One view is that the appointment of Representative Sidney Anderson as Senator to serve until the regular election in November, 1924, would have given an opportunity for the reaction against the Republican Party to subside and insured the election of a Republican Senator then.

On the Way to Seward.

President Harding is on his way by special train to Seward, where he is due to arrive this evening, which corresponds to the small hours of Wednesday morning, Eastern time.

At Seward he will board the transport Henderson for visits to Valdez, Cordova and Sitka, with a side trip over part of the Copper River Railroad.

The President's sudden change of plans which caused the cancellation of the tour by automobile over the Richardson Trail through the interior of Alaska is attributed to various causes. The chief cause appears to be the fact that both the President and Mrs. Harding are fatigued from their strenuous Alaska experience.

Mrs. Harding is completely tired out and has spent practically all the time since her arrival in Fairbanks Saturday night in bed. She retired immediately after the Presidential train left Fairbanks.

There is no recurrence of Mrs. Harding's serious illness of several months ago, but the fatigue and excitement of the tour have been a severe strain on her physical strength and it is necessary for her to take things easier for the remainder of the journey in order to preserve her health. She sent this message to the newspaper men on the Presidential train Tuesday morning:

"I'm feeling as fine as silk."

The President's trip into the interior of Alaska as far as Fairbanks, the head of the Government railroad, which is within a half day's automobile journey of the Arctic Circle, had been beneficial, giving him an insight into the needs of the northern country. One thing that impressed him was that the Government's contract with those settlers desiring to engage in agriculture was more liberal than he supposed. Despite this liberality, however, it has been more apparent than ever to the members of the Presidential party that Alaska, not only in the northern interior, but in the softer climatic portions of the southeastern peninsula, has no chance of a large agricultural development until sufficient population has been obtained to buy and operate farms. Some members of the President's entourage are convinced that the agriculture of the territory will never be able to support any considerable population. This view was combated by Dr. C. C. Georgeson, who has been in Alaska twenty-five years in charge of the Government agricultural experiment stations.

Dr. Georgeson, who is accompanying the President on the Alaskan tour, contends that Alaska is similar, climatically and otherwise, to Finland, which with practically no resources except agriculture and forests, supports a population of 3,000,000 people and exports farm products. He said today that there had been only one crop failure in Alaska in a quarter of a century, and that was due to excessive moisture.

If the President went into the interior with the idea that its resources could be developed quickly through Government and private capital, he appears to have modified that view. He is coming out of the interior with a strong impression that the growth of the territory in the development of resources and population increase must be extremely slow.

The present condition is not propitious for any great private investment, which would involve considerable risk, and Congress is unlikely, in view of the condition of the Treasury, to undertake any unprofitable Government railroad ventures or to advance the large amounts which would be required to develop the natural resources.

The President has been telling the people of the interior that the future was dependent largely upon their own efforts, which is not encouraging to those who are struggling under rather trying conditions to maintain a foothold in sparsely settled communities where it is difficult to make a living without considerable capital outlay. "We are making money, except the doctors, who are scarce in the interior.

The President and the members of his party have been much surprised over the climate of the interior. Although so near the Arctic Circle, Fairbanks had a blistering hot day Monday when the President was there. When he spoke at the baseball park that afternoon the sun was so hot that there were three prostrations among the spectators.

The President, Secretaries Work, Hoover and Secretary Gillett suffered considerably when delivering their speeches without hats on. The local thermometers registered 94 degrees in the shade.

Fairbanks, by the way, went broke in celebrating the visit of the President. It is said that thought it was agreed to guarantee the expenses of the rather elaborate preparation, the town afterward found it difficult to meet the bills.

According to some residents the town is suffering from an excess of hospitality. The visits of many tourist parties and the contingent of Senators and Representatives were occasions of much entertainment which caused the merchants and others to go deep down in their pockets at time when business profits were meagre.

The Fairbanks meeting afforded further evidence of the popularity of Secretary Hoover with the Alaskans. They cheered him lustily when he was introduced and warmly approved his statements. When Mayor Marquam called for a show of hands on Hoover's policy of reserving the fisheries of Northwestern Alaska so as to prevent the depletion of the salmon, there was a gratifying favorable response.

The Mayor asked those opposed to express themselves and not a hand was raised. It was evident throughout his travels in Alaska that Hoover is greatly admired by the people who have talked of their confidence in his honest ability.

RESERVATIONS MAR LAUSANNE ACCORD

Those of England and America on Oil Concessions Are in Open Opposition.

NO REAL DEBT SETTLEMENT

Allies' Notice That They Will Protect Their Bondholders Meets Turkish Defiance.

WILL SIGN TREATY JULY 24

Delegates Make Final Plea for Armenians and Invite Russia to Sign Straits Convention.

LAUSANNE, July 17 (Associated Press).—The last scene but one in the Near East Conference was enacted tonight at the Château d'Ouchy; the entire text of the treaty was examined and arrangements were made for its formal signature on July 24.

Tonight's scene was remarkable in that numerous matters on which the various parties had not succeeded in reaching an accord were under consideration. It was a night of reservations, which included, notably, reservations by the United States and Great Britain concerning the validity of the Turkish Petroleum Company concession, which conflicts with the rights accorded in the Chester concession for unknown oil riches in the Mosul area.

The silent battle between the United States and England over oil concessions, which had dominated the conference in the past few days, became an open contest tonight, when Sir Horace Rumbold, after protesting against Turkey's refusal to ratify the British concession in the treaty, declared that it seemed very uncertain on what ground the American Government wished to intervene between the Turkish Government and the Turkish Petroleum Company. Sir Horace made this statement after Joseph C. Grew had said that the American Government was gratified that a way had been found to solve the difficult question of concessions, and that he took it for granted that the protocol affecting the French Railroad Company and the Vickers-Armstrong Company would not be applied in such a way as to prejudice the vested rights of American citizens or companies.

This was an allusion to the agreement of the Allies to drop their demand for preferential rights in future contracts.

"With regard to the rights said to have been acquired by the Turkish Petroleum Company before the war," Mr. Grew said, "I deem it sufficient to refer to correspondence with the British Government in the past three years, in which my Government fully set forth its viewpoint. This viewpoint has not changed."

British Delegate Reproaches Turks.

A sensation was caused when Sir Horace accused the Turks of violating their promise to accord treaty approval to the acquired rights of the British company. Ismet Pasha, he charged, refused to agree to the slightest mention of the company, and the British Government wished to give notice in the most categorical manner that it deemed all the obligations of Turkey toward the company as binding.

England recognized no rights which would conflict with the British concession, he added, and which might have been given by Turkey to third parties. (This was an allusion to the Chester grant.)

Another feature of tonight's session was an appeal by all the delegations to the Turks to permit the Armenians to return to Ottoman territory. Mr. Grew, in particular, urged "sympathetic consideration for the interests of these homeless exiles." He asked that steps be taken to safeguard their homes and property, and that generosity and tolerance be shown to the Armenian people.

Ismet Pasha answered that Turkey would apply amnesty with sincerity; she desired only to keep out disorderly and disturbing elements.

The allied delegates read a joint statement charging Turkey with repudiating the agreement to confirm the Ottoman debt obligations in the treaty, and gave notice that their Governments regarded Turkey as bound by her debt; they reserved the right to intervene to protect the rights of their bondholders.

Ismet retorted that Turkey could not be bound by such a declaration and could never pay the interest on a gold basis, as the Allies desired, because she was too poor.

Japan, which has had a somewhat effaced rôle throughout the conference, caused a flutter when K. Otchiai, her Ambassador at Rome, announced that Japan would not sign the concessions protocol, because she was determined that Turkey should maintain the open door.

Ismet Pasha, apparently somewhat startled, then arose and declared that it was for Turkey alone to decide her future economic policy. Ismet wound up the meeting with an impassioned speech, emphasizing that the world would be satisfied with the generous spirit in which Turkey had executed the terms of the treaty.

The Soviet Government was invited by telegraph to sign the Straits convention at Lausanne or at Constantinople within three weeks.

General Pelle, the French High Commissioner, read a declaration in which the Allies expressed their intention of protecting the interests of their nationals in the Ottoman Debt. Ismet Pasha declared that Angora would pay the interest neither in sterling nor in gold francs.

Grew Congratulates Delegates.

Addressing the conference tonight, Minister Grew said it was doubtless too early and too close to the stress and turmoil of the negotiations to appraise the result secured at its true worth in all its many beneficial aspects.

"But," he added, "we need feel no hesitation in describing this result as momentous; the long period of warfare and disturbance affecting the whole Near East has been brought to a close. Numberless problems of great difficulty and intricacy have been solved through the patience, moderation and conciliatory spirit of the delegations.

"We can now look forward with confidence to the coming period of reconstruction, when the ideals of peace and tolerance, which inspired the deliberations of the conference, will receive a long and fruitful application. The United States will welcome today's achievement. In behalf of my Government I have the honor to express to the delegations sincere congratulations on the successful outcome of their labors."

Standstill Anxious About Amnesty.

LAUSANNE, July 17.—This afternoon's meeting of the three committees of the conference lasted until 7:45 o'clock. The most comforting of all the declarations made at it was that peace would be signed on Tuesday, July 24. All outstanding decisions were incorporated and declarations were made on several points, without, however, in some cases removing the impression of a ragged end.

In the First Committee, Sir Horace Rumbold referred to the amnesty declaration as being binding on the signatories from the date of signature. He mentioned the case of six Greeks working for the British military authorities whom Adnan Bey had threatened with expulsion. This, he said, was contrary to the first paragraph of the amnesty convention, and he asked that all proceedings against these men be stopped. He further appealed to Ismet Pasha on behalf of the Armenians who had left Turkey and were not allowed to return. In this he was supported by the chief Italian, French and Japanese delegates and the American observer. Ismet assured the conference that the Turks intended to apply the amnesty in all sincerity. They must maintain their sovereign right to exclude undesirables, he said, but would examine the matter in the friendliest spirit. Ex-Premier Venizelos said he was satisfied that Ismet meant well, but would be glad to have a private talk with him on behalf of the Greeks who had helped the Allies during the war. To this Ismet agreed.

A few days ago M. Venizelos, who was then in Paris, telegraphed to Ismet asking him to get his Government to postpone the execution of seventeen Greeks sentenced by the Turkish authorities at Bedicos to death for high treason. Ismet promptly telegraphed to Angora and obtained a stay.

Arguments Over Concessions.

When the concessions protocol was reached in the third committee Sir Horace Rumbold made a declaration regarding the Turkish Petroleum Company. He recalled the negotiations on this subject and reminded Ismet that the Turks had more than once accepted the principle that acquired rights should be maintained, and that Ismet in his letter of July 16 had said: "The principles which were laid down on July 6 recognize the rights acquired by the Turkish Petroleum Company." Sir Horace said that Ismet, instead of finding a formula, as he had promised, now refused to recognize in the protocol the arrangements of 1914.

"My Government," said Sir Horace, "consider all obligations contracted in 1914 as retaining their full force and as binding the Turkish Government on all territory which may remain Turkish after the Treaty of Peace. My Government recognize no rights to any other parties and declare their firm intention to hold the Turkish Government responsible for any failure in the obligations then contracted."

Ismet said that his Government had come to the conclusion that the matter was one for arbitration and that it could not be bound by Sir Horace's declaration.

Minister Grew said that the American Government could see no prejudice to the interests of the United States in the Vickers-Armstrong and Regie Générale des Cremins de Fer concessions. With regard to the Turkish Petroleum Company, the attitude of his Government remained what it had been in previous correspondence.

Sir Horace said that the fact that the Turkish Government had committed two contradictory acts did not make them a matter for juridical decisions; the second act was simply illegal.

Of Mr. Grew's declaration, Sir Horace said that the British Government's position had been clearly stated in the correspondence, and he did not see why the United States Government wished to intervene between the British Government and the Turkish Petroleum Company. There the matter was left.

The rest of the proceedings were congratulatory. Mr. Grew made a special appeal to Turkey for toleration. Ismet said that the conference had been a magnificent tribute to the admission of Turkey on the ground of equality. Turkey, he said, had the most sincere intention of carrying out the treaty in a generous spirit.

TENNIS PICTURES SHOCK.

English Officials Try to Prevent Taking of Objectionable Snapshots.

LONDON, July 17 (Associated Press).—The Council of the English Lawn Tennis Association, shocked by some of the newspaper photographs of women tennis players, has circularized secretaries of clubs at which open tournaments are to be held, asking that press photographers be restrained from taking pictures of an "objectionable nature."

The circular says the Council "strongly deprecates publication of pictures of this character," as it believes that placing them before the public will tend to bring the sport into disrepute.

Commenting upon the circular, The Westminster Gazette remarks that if the objection is well founded the question arises whether the present costume worn on the courts by women is suitable. The customary dress of women players here is a simple, short-skirted outfit made familiar by Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, woman tennis champion of the world.

Semi-Official Paris Paper Suggests a Franco-German Accord Without English Intervention.

LONDON, July 17.—The British drafts of the reply to the German note and of the covering letter, which are to be sent to the Allies and to the United States, are not likely to be made public, from this country, at any rate, until it has been considered by the Allies.

When announcing the Government's policy last week the Prime Minister suggested that the second reading of the Consolidated Fund Bill would afford a convenient opportunity for a general discussion on the position. It is hoped to get the second reading on Wednesday and Thursday of next week, but it is hardly likely that the replies of all the Governments to whom the draft of the note is communicated will have been received by that time.

LONDON, July 17 (Associated Press).—Foreign Secretary Curzon drew up additional sections of the British draft reply to the German reparation note today, and it is hoped to present the full text both of the draft and the covering letter to the Cabinet tomorrow. Copies of both documents will probably reach Washington by the end of the week.

The draft and the letter are exclusively British productions, as neither Italy nor Belgium is being consulted in their preparation. While forecasts would be wholly premature, it may be said that the two leading features of the proposed reply will be carefully phrased references to Germany's passive resistance and the American suggestion for appointment of an international body of experts to audit Germany's assets. Great Britain does not regard such an impartial commission as necessarily incompatible with the Versailles Treaty and hopes to win France around to this view.

Authoritative circles regard it as unlikely that the reply will suggest the joint settlement of reparations and inter-allied debts, which is Reginald McKenna's pet solution of Europe's financial muddle, as it is recognized that this would meet with the disapproval of the United States and other countries which consider the two problems as distinct and requiring separate settlement.

No further conversations, it is understood, will be held with the French, Belgian and Italian Ambassadors prior to submission of the draft reply to the Cabinet. The draft and the accompanying letter, which are entirely the work of Marquis Curzon, will be of reasonable brevity, but will not be unalterable or necessarily final. When the views of all the Governments to which the reply is sent are made known to Great Britain, the Cabinet will fit the document to meet the situation.

Would Make Peace Without England.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 17.—The semi-official Temps comes out tonight with a proposal that France and Germany arrange their own differences without the intervention of England. This almost Caillauxist proposal is made on the ground that England seeks only her own welfare, and that at the expense of both France and Germany. London should be looked to less, thinks the Temps, and the people of the Continent should be their own masters.

The Temps, together with other Nationalist French papers, finds in Mr. Lloyd George's speech yesterday, in which, after calling attention to France's building up of her industrial machine to manufacture many articles which Britain produces and after referring to coming German competition, he said peace on the Continent would not necessarily bring prosperity to England, the real key to British thinking.

"The words of Lloyd George," says the Temps, "show not only that he is jealous of France but that Germany worries him, too, and he wishes ill to the Germans for the same reasons he wishes ill to France. He thinks with indignation that if the reparations issue is settled the Germans will be ready for their grand effort.

"For those Englishmen who think with Lloyd George, what a terrible thing a settlement of reparations will be, what a nightmare in the prospect of real peace in Europe! If France and Germany ever get together Lloyd George will recall his speech of yesterday and tell his discomfited countrymen he knew enough to try and keep France and Germany quarreling without France's being paid and without Germany being tranquil.

"Now we understand Lloyd George's policy when a Premier. From one Supreme Council to another follow his tortuous path and see how, as he tore up part after part of treaties, he had but one purpose—to maintain discord in Europe, so as to weaken the nations who sell the same articles of merchandise as England.

"The Temps disputes Mr. Lloyd George's fears for the British commerce by quoting at length statistics to show that France, during her reconstruction, has been buying from England in constantly increasing amounts.

"Why does England not sell more to the nations of the Continent?" asks the Temps. "It is because she has prolonged their quarrels, because she has wished neither payment of reparations, nor consolidation of the German republic, because she threatens constantly the exchanges of her allies with the burden of their debts to her.

"Why does not England see that while poor and divided the nations of Europe cannot become the purchasers they were before the war? If England continues this policy, if her reply to Germany has the effect of damaging France and exciting Germany to resistance, does England think that will do her commerce any good?"

Sees Domination as British Aim.

Then the Temps gives its answer to the riddle:

"The adversaries of France in England are too experienced not to know the risk they are taking. They accept this risk frankly, as they accept the risk of war from time to time, for in reality they seek one purpose—domination.

"They seek that the nations of the European Continent shall be still more divided, still more weak, as they wished Turkey to become a protectorate and as they will seek tomorrow to trim Japan's wings. They are in the modern world the last surviving representatives of those rapacious clans which in other times founded empires and of which no sample now rules over any great people of the Continent.

"And that is why the people of the Continent ought more and more to get together and settle their own affairs. Between France and Germany the real difference is much less in the amount of reparations than means of payment. In the settlement of our troubles we should facilitate an entente between France and Germany and enable the allies of yesterday to understand each other."

BRITISH VETERANS URGE ANGLO-AMERICAN UNION

Lord Haig Backs a Proposal for Ex-Service Federation to Maintain Peace.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 17.—At the conference of the British Empire Service League in London today a resolution was carried instructing a committee to negotiate for the formation of an English-speaking veterans' association, to include members of the British Empire Service League, the American Legion and of all English-speaking ex-service men's organizations.

An Australian delegate, Captain Dyett, in proposing the resolution, said he had found in America a desire for such a movement, and it would bring about closer understanding between the two peoples.

Major Cohen, M. P., of the British delegation, seconding the proposal, said the English-speaking peoples were strong enough to enforce peace on the world, and if they came to a decision to invite America to co-operate with them they would have achieved something that was very vital. R. B. Maxwell, President of the Canadian Great War Veterans' Association, said that in Canada they had a frontier extending 3,000 miles, along which there was not a soldier or a gun. That pointed to a spirit of peace and happiness which, if extended, would be for the good of the world.

Lord Haig said he had received letters from British societies in the United States asking whether they could join the league. Their whole aim and object was to prevent future wars. He hoped their American cousins and the British people living in America, and all who thought with them, would agree to form a society. They might have an American President to start with.

ARREST VIGOUROUX IN ART FRAUD CASE

Action Is Taken After the Suit Is Sent to the Criminal Court at His Request.

HE IS ORDERED TO JAIL

Some Witnesses Refused to Give Testimony in Police Court, Attorney for Defense Says.

PARIS, July 17.—Jean Vigouroux, against whom charges of retaining commissions illegally are made by George J. Demotte, for whom he acted as New York manager, at today's hearing of his case by the Civil Tribunal asked that the court declare itself incompetent on the ground that the charges against him were criminal and that his case be sent to the Assizes.

The Judge acquiesced, but to the defendant's surprise ordered his arrest, declaring that all persons charged with criminal acts were liable to incarceration.

Vigouroux, who has joined with a number of others in charging Demotte with flooding French and American museums with faked statues, accompanied his request to the court with a declaration that his defense was interfered with by the tribunal.

PARIS, July 17 (Associated Press).—After his arrest in court today Jean Vigouroux was taken to La Santé Prison, where he will sleep tonight. He may be released on bail later, after formal demand by his attorney, but this is discretionary with the court. He was arrested when he reached Paris from New York last year, but at that time was immediately released pending trial.

The defendant's request for trial in the Criminal Court was supported by his attorney, who said that some witnesses, particularly the Duc de Trevise, declined to appear in Police Court. Vigouroux's declaration, which he asked permission to make as soon as court opened, was delayed a few moments while the Judge propounded a few questions tending to show that the defendant varied in some of his testimony last Tuesday.

In the Criminal Court Vigouroux will be tried by a jury.

ARREST GIRL IN MAN'S GARB.

Chicago Police Question Her on Tesmer Murder—Four "Pals" Held.

CHICAGO, July 17.—Another "girl-man," this time a girl posing as a man, was apprehended by the Chicago police early today, and Mrs. Richard C. Tesmer, whose husband was shot and killed by a girl bandit some weeks ago, was sent for in an attempt to identify the slayer of her husband. Fred G. Thompson, the man who posed as a woman, was indicted by the Grand Jury yesterday for the murder of Tesmer.

It was only after a half hour of questioning, during which time the supposed 19-year-old boy returned answers indicative of life in the slums, that the police took off the prisoner's cap and the long tresses of a girl were revealed. She gave her name as Blanche Voorhees. She said she had a husband in Danville, Ill.

Four youths were arrested with the girl and one has confessed, according to the police, that the band has taken part in numerous recent robberies of taxicab drivers.

Controversies Between Prague and Poland Laid to His Reports.

WARSAW, July 17 (Associated Press).—The question is being discussed in diplomatic circles as to whether the recent political controversies between the Polish and Czechoslovakian Governments may not have been due to eccentric reports by Propkop Maxa, the Czech Minister to Poland, who is now confined in an asylum for the insane.

M. Maxa, during a performance at the Theatre Polski a few evenings ago, insisted upon putting his feet on top of the chairs in front of him, and was forcibly removed from the theatre, in disregard of his diplomatic immunity from arrest. Later he entered a music-hall theatre, where he behaved so extraordinarily that he was taken to his legation. Physicians there declared him mentally unsound.

to considering several dissolution plans proposed by the company.

"Finding it impossible to thus secure a satisfactory voluntary dissolution, the Government filed a petition in April, 1912, in the United States District Court for the District of Minnesota asking for a decree of dissolution that would restore competitive conditions.

"The original petition was aimed at a combination of harvesting machine companies which were merged into the International Harvester Company in 1902. The principal companies taken into the combination at that time were the McCormick Harvesting Machine Company and the Deering company; others were the Piano Manufacturing Company, Warder, Bushnell & Glessner Company (manufacturing the Champion line of harvesting machines), the Milwaukee Harvester Company and D. M. Osborne & Co.

"In August, 1914, the District Court, composed of Circuit Judges Sanborn, Hook and Smith, held that the International Harvester Company was organized to eliminate competition between the combining companies and was from the beginning a combination in restraint of interstate commerce and a monopolization of such commerce in harvesting machinery and illegal under the Sherman law.

"Thereafter a decree was filed finding and adjudging the company to be an unlawful combination and ordering the defendants to present a plan for the division of the business and assets of the company into such number of parts of separate and distinct ownership as may be necessary to restore competitive conditions and bring about a condition in harmony with law.'

"The case was appealed to the Supreme Court, where it was twice argued and twice restored to the docket for reargument. In 1918 the defendants dismissed their appeal and the case was remanded to the District Court for the working out of a plan of dissolution. On Nov. 5, 1918, a final decree was entered, requiring the defendants to sell and dispose of the Osborne, Champion and Milwaukee lines of harvesting machines and the Osborne and Champion plants.

"The purpose of the decree was declared to be to restore competitive conditions in the harvesting machine industry, and it was expressly provided that in the event that such competitive conditions shall not have been established at the expiration of eighteen months after the termination of the existing war in which the United States is engaged, then and in that case the United States shall have the right to such further relief herein as shall be necessary to restore competitive conditions and bring about a condition in harmony with law.'

International's Costs Are Lower.

"On May 4, 1920, the Federal Trade Commission, acting in pursuance of a resolution of the Senate, made a report on the causes of the high prices of farm implements. The report contained the most explicit findings on all phases of the subject, including the effect of the decree of Nov. 2, 1918, on competitive conditions. The commission found that the separation of the Osborne, Champion and Milwaukee lines could have little or no effect upon the dominating position of the International Harvester Company in the harvesting machine industry.

"This finding was based on three principal factors: (1) The small and constantly decreasing importance of those brands and plants as compared with other brands and plants to be retained by the company; (2) the large and increasing factory costs of the two or three brands surrendered as compared with the factory costs of the brands retained; and (3) the low total cost of the two brands retained—McCormick and Deering—as compared with the total cost of the harvesting machine manufactured by other companies.

"The Federal Trade Commission further found that in order to achieve the purpose of the decree of Nov. 2, 1918, and restore competitive conditions in interstate trade and commerce in harvesting machines it would be necessary to separate the McCormick and Deering lines from each other and from the steel-making business of the company.

"Accordingly the commission recommended that the suit against the International Harvester Company be reopened so that a plan of dissolution might be arrived at which would in fact restore competitive conditions, and to that end suggested that the business and assets of the International company be divided into three new corporations—two implement companies, featuring the McCormick and Deering lines, respectively, and a steel company to take over the steel mills and the iron and coal mines.

"The supplemental petition is based in large part upon the Federal Trade Commission's report and adopts and alleges as true all of the commission's findings, the statement points out. The supplemental petition sets forth it is recited, that not only was there a wide disparity between the original investment in the plants and lines ordered sold by the decree of Nov. 2, 1918, and the plants and lines to be retained by the International company, but that such disparity has steadily increased."

Charges Lesser Lines Are Suppressed.

"Moreover, the petition alleges that while the McCormick and Deering lines have been encouraged and extended, the Osborne, Champion and Milwaukee lines have been smothered and suppressed," the statement continues. "The charge is made, therefore, that the output and sales of the lines to be disposed of under the decree constitute such a small part of the total sales of the defendant International Harvester Company, and such a negligible part of the total trade and commerce in harvesting machines in the United States, that the decree was inadequate to restore competitive conditions.

"It is alleged that in 1918, when the decree was entered, the International company's proportion of the total production of harvesting implements was approximately 64 per cent., and that during 1922, which was included in the test period, its proportion increased to 96 per cent. Again, it is alleged that the sale by the International of its Osborne and Champion lines has not had any effect on competitive conditions as the percentages of the purchasers of those lines have decreased.

"The supplemental petition further declares that the number of independent manufacturers of harvesting machines is steadily shrinking, due to the inability of those companies to compete with the International Harvester Company. Following the findings of the Federal Trade Commission, it is alleged that the International company, with its enormous capital, credit and resources, its profitable side lines and lumber, steel and coal subsidiaries, enabled, particularly in times of depression, to sell its harvesting machines at cost, which is generally lower than that of its competitors, and thus effectively eliminating competition and monopolizing the business. It is then alleged that this power has been and is being exerted against independent manufacturers with the result that two important competitors of the International company recently have discontinued their harvesting machine lines and other competitors are contemplating doing likewise.

"The prayer of the petition is that the court decree a separation of the business and assets of the International Harvester Company into two implement companies of substantially equal size and separate the steel and coal subsidiaries, substantially as suggested by the Federal Trade Commission. These two companies, featuring, respectively, the McCormick and Deering lines which they would each be larger than any other company in the industry would be able competitors with each other, and other companies could compete on terms of equality with them. The plan has been carefully worked out by the Federal Trade Commission, and the chief economist of the commission, Dr. Francis Walker, rendered valuable assistance in the preparation of the supplemental petition."

Says Competition Makes the Prices.

CHICAGO, July 17.—Prices of harvesting machinery are the result of vigorous competition, which the Sherman law was enacted to preserve, and are fairly comparable with the price of other implements fixed by normal competition, Alexander Legge, President of the International Harvester Company, said today in a statement commenting on the Government's suit against the company filed in Federal District Court at St. Paul.

The suit, Mr. Legge said, is a continuation of the Government action begun eleven years ago. The Harvester Company, he said, was acquitted by court findings and the Attorney General's admission of any wrongful dealings or unfair practices, but in 1918 a decree was entered, to insure fullest competition, requiring the company to sell to competitors and limiting sales representatives to a single dealer in any one city.

"That decree, Mr. Legge said, provided that at the end of a test period, which has now expired, the Government might ask the court to determine whether the free competition contemplated by the Sherman Anti-trust law exists in the farm implement industry. This step the Government is now taking, the statement said, and continued:

"As we understand it, the sole issue raised by the present petition relates to competitive conditions with respect to harvesting machines only. It does not charge the company with unduly raising the price of harvesting machinery to the grave injury of the American farmer, as was charged in 1912, but it does charge that the company has been unduly depressing the price of harvesting machinery, particularly since 1920, to the injury of its competitors."

"The situation in which the manufacturers of farm implements find themselves, the statement said, is due to the business depression that started in 1920.

"During the last few years," the statement continued, "the whole farm implement industry has been in an abnormal and distressing situation, which directly reflects the situation of the farmer. High costs of labor, material and transportation have burdened it with high manufacturing costs, while, on the other hand, low prices for agricultural products have left the farmer unable to buy his normal and needed requirements of farming machinery.

"We are confident that the hearing on the present petition will clearly show that the Harvester company is not in any way responsible for these conditions in the farm implement industry. Prices of harvesting machinery are the result of vigorous competition, exactly the kind of competition which the Sherman law was enacted to preserve, and are fairly comparable with the prices of other implements which the Government concedes were fixed by normal competition."

12-MILE LIMIT PLAN STILL A LIVE ISSUE

Washington Has Not Lost Hope of Britain's Acceptance of Hughes Proposal.

IS NOW STUDIED IN LONDON

Term "Sovereign" as Employed by U. S. Supreme Court Misinterpreted by Lord Birkenhead.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Despite the unfavorable references by Lord Curzon, the British Minister of Foreign Affairs, to the Hughes proposal for an extension of the zone of contraband search from the three to the twelve mile limit, it is learned that the Administration does not regard the matter as dead.

Officials recognize that the public utterances of various British statesmen on the subject have been in the main unfavorable to the American proposal. It was stated in an informed quarter today that thus far there has been no official notification to this Government, either from Great Britain or the other nations approached, to the effect that the Hughes proposal is unacceptable.

A British committee, it was stated by an American official, is now understood to be investigating the Hughes proposal and the whole question of the possibility of extending the zone of search for purposes of preventing smuggling of liquor into the United States, and within the last two or three days Lord Birkenhead has apparently reopened the whole question by a letter made public in London and pointing out that some of the objections that have been advanced against the Hughes proposal are unfounded.

British Consent Vital.

It has been recognized all along by the American Government that if Great Britain definitely and finally rejected the Hughes proposal for a reciprocal treaty giving the authorities the right to search ships for prohibited goods up to the twelve-mile limit the proposal was doomed, since all the other nations approached might agree, and if the approval of Great Britain were lacking the scheme would not be workable.

The first impression created in this country by press dispatches telling of Lord Curzon's speech on the subject in the House of Lords was that Great Britain had definitely rejected the proposition. Examination of the text of that speech, however, has revealed that, while it cannot be said the British Government is favorable, it is nevertheless true that the particular points raised by Mr. Hughes have not been disposed of finally.

Two very serious misinterpretations of the intent of the Hughes proposal seem to be present in British official circles, according to American experts. The first of these has to do with the nature of the extension proposed by Mr. Hughes, while the second deals with certain language employed by the United States Supreme Court in the recent liquor decision.

The American Government recognizes that it is out of the question to expect the British to agree to an extension of territorial waters from three miles to twelve miles, and such a proposal has never been proposed by the American Government. What Mr. Hughes proposed was that for purposes of "searching" ships for "contraband goods," and for that object only, the limits of jurisdiction be reciprocally extended from three to twelve miles. Only now, it appears, is this fact being clearly understood in Great Britain.

Word "Sovereign" Misinterpreted.

As for the second point of misunderstanding, Lord Birkenhead, in a statement in the House of Lords, made reference to the word "sovereign" as employed by the United States Supreme Court. He quoted from that Court's recent decision passages which said that local sovereignty might exercise discretion in the application of the law. He interpreted this as meaning the American Executive might exercise such discretion. Laboring under a distinct misapprehension, he seemed to think the American "Executive" had shown undue harshness in insisting upon execution of the law, the presumption being that it might have exercised some of the discretion referred to by the Court.

The American Government still holds that the proposed treaty offers the most desirable way, not only of dealing with the present difficulty of ships' liquor, but also with a number of questions regarding jurisdiction outside the three-mile limit which have been raised as a result of the Federal Court decision in the case of the British ship Henry L. Marshall.

The Marshall was seized nine miles out while unloading her cargo of liquor into small boats. Judge Hough held that since the unloading was completed within the three-mile limit the United States authorities had jurisdiction, notwithstanding the fact that the Marshall was nine miles out, and further notwithstanding that the small boats were not the Marshall's own. American ports have certain local laws concerning manifests, time of unloading, &c., and it was held that the Marshall had violated the law in not having a special license to unload at night and in not having her cargo manifested properly.

A treaty such as that proposed by Mr. Hughes would settle these questions, it is contended by its advocates, while at the same time disposing of the question of ship's liquor under seal.

moned to be questioned regarding entries in the league's books. The testimony of Miss O'Donnell, it had been asserted, was expected to relate to statements made by Anderson to Pecora last January, a few days before the Phillips charges first were laid before a Grand Jury, which was discharged from service by Judge McIntyre several weeks later without having completed the case.

Only two witnesses were examined. Miss Eleanor Fitch, confidential stenographer in the prosecutor's office, will be called when the jury meets this morning.

While the Grand Jury proceeding was in progress Anderson issued another statement attacking District Attorney Banton and enclosing a communication he had sent the day before to Governor Smith, in which he stated that he was prepared to lay before the Attorney General or any State executive designated by the Governor "astounding testimony showing that Joab H. Banton, District Attorney of New York County, is guilty of an outrageous offense against justice which may constitute malfeasance in office, as duly defined, and call for summary action on your part."

"You are a wet," the communication went on. "You play the political game as Tammany plays it, but I do not believe that you have ever done for your own personal advantage a low, dirty, stealthy, vicious thing under the pious pretense of serving a moral end. I do not believe you want your future political career messed up by responsibility for anybody who is capable of doing such a thing, and then get caught in the bargain.

"I believe that as a matter of sheer politics you do not want the political organization you are connected with to be made responsible for attempted unwarranted persecution of a representative of thousands of churches of the State, when such effort is exposed as not on the level and is certain to react on those who are responsible."

Anderson further told the Governor that he did not expect he would call on him to lay his charges before Banton.

Doesn't Ask Banton's Removal.

"I am not asking you to remove Mr. Banton from office," the communication continued. "That will take care of itself. If he does not relieve you of embarrassment by resigning and you still want him after the facts are out, we can stand him, after the facts are exposed, as long as Tammany can."

Anderson then told the Governor that he did not want a "star chamber" proceeding on his charges but an open hearing. He made the request that, in the event the Governor designated an official to make an investigation of his charges, Raymond B. Fosdick, financial representative of the Rockefellers; Phillips, the complainant against him; William M. Potter, formerly Assistant Treasurer of the league, who testified recently before the Grand Jury; the Rev. Robert G. Seaver, formerly one of the league's legal representative at Albany; Henry L. Stoddard, editor of The Evening Mail, and another man be invited to testify.

"Nobody has heard a whimper out of me in all these months," Anderson told the Governor. "I have asked no quarter of anybody. I would scorn to ask mercy. I have done no wrong. All I want is justice, and I intend to have it. And any effort to jam an indictment through the Grand Jury at the present time, while annoying, will hasten the ultimate overthrow of any régime capable of being responsible for it."

Disclaiming any intention of suggesting to the Governor that he order a dismissal of the Phillips charges against him, Anderson added that he merely wanted to show through the requested inquiry that there was not the slightest basis "outside of a frame-up to waste the time of a Grand Jury." He charged that Banton had suppressed facts in the present inquiry. He added that he was willing after the open inquiry sought for the Governor to appoint some special District Attorney who believes it worth while "to present these false and flimsy charges to some other Grand Jury" and promised that the Governor would "not find me making any effort to interfere."

Banton Attacks Anderson.

Anderson's statement was shown to Banton after the Grand Jury had adjourned.

"This is simply an attempt on Anderson's part to influence, through the newspapers, the Grand Jury before which he would not appear in person," said Banton. "You can tell the people of New York that for twenty-seven years I have gone in and out among them and I defy any one to point the finger of suspicion at any act of mine. My life is an open book, and I am not ashamed of anything I have done.

"When this case started Mr. Anderson's tactics were first cajolery and flattery; then, when he saw that the case was going to proceed through certain of his representatives were received statements that some of us might some day wish to run for State office and would need the aid of the Anti-Saloon League. This statement was made not to me but to Mr. Pecora.

"When Anderson saw that that wouldn't work, he resorted to deliberate threats, as you notice in the Rev. David J. Burrell's letter referring to the forty thousand Communists. That did not work and now he tries the blackjack and absolute lying."

The statement made by Anderson on Monday was obviously intended to influence the Grand Jury.

Pecora came to the defense of his chief in the afternoon, when he returned to his office from the Grand Jury room, through a statement relating to Dr. George Caleb Moor, Pastor of the Madison Avenue Baptist Church, a director of the league and one of Anderson's chief witnesses in the investigation of the Anderson charges. Moor visited Pecora a day or two after the present Grand Jury met and was quoted as having said to Pecora:

"Some day you may have to run for some such office as Lieutenant Governor or Supreme Court Judge, and we'd like to be your friend." Pecora then added:

"The presence of ladies within earshot of Dr. Moor and myself restrained me from making the kind of reply I felt such a slimy, subtle proposition called for. The reply I did make was, in substance, that I had no desire to run for public office of any kind.

Anderson Offered to Waive Immunity.

District Attorney Banton had by this time prepared copies of correspondence between Anderson and himself in September and November last relating to the preliminary investigation of the Phillips charges. He explained that he made public the correspondence to show that Anderson's statement on Monday that the Prosecutor urged Phillips and his wife to proceed with the charges to aid the District Attorney to obtain the Democratic nomination for Governor was false.

Anderson's first letter to the prosecutor, dated Sept. 30, said:

"I hereby formally offer to you, or any accredited representatives of your office, the freedom of this office. Any questions will be answered, and I am ready to sign any kind of a waiver of immunity.

Anderson then requested the privilege of appearing before the Grand Jury, but stipulated that he was not consenting to be questioned "in any matter of defense in my own behalf."

Banton's letter in reply, dated Oct. 2, declared that Anderson's informant was in error in stating that the prosecutor had ever visited Fosdick's office and added: "Mr. Phillips did complain at this office, but, for the reason that it might appear that I was an opportunist, I asked him to defer making a formal complaint until after the convention and probably after the election." He promised to notify Anderson in the event Phillips made his formal complaint.

On the same day Anderson wrote a second letter to the prosecutor in which he demanded that Phillips and Potter, the witnesses to be called against him, be compelled to sign waivers of immunity.

Before Mr. Banton left his office he received a letter from J. Arthur Leve of counsel for Anderson, stating that the Rev. C. Arthur Lincoln, Executive Secretary of the Federation of Churches of Passaic and Vicinity; the Rev. Robert Bagnell, D. D., pastor of the Grace Methodist Episcopal Church of Harrisburg, Pa., and the Rev. James C. Chalmers of Quogue, L. I., were willing to appear before the Anderson Grand Jury. The letter added: "They are familiar with the circumstances, I am advised, surrounding the $24,700 item—its sources and its uses."

District Attorney Banton immediately dispatched a letter to Leve, saying:

"Isn't it rather strange that the Rev. C. Arthur Lincoln, who is the Executive Secretary of the Federation of Churches, has not sought to lay his evidence before the District Attorney?

"The strange part of this offer of witnesses is that it is made at the time that the Grand Jury is concluding its investigation. However, send these witnesses to my office tomorrow morning, the 18th instant, and I will see that they are examined."

Pecora Wants Anderson as Witness.

Half an hour later Assistant District Attorney Pecora dispatched a letter to the lawyer saying:

"In your letter to Mr. Banton you state that you are advised that these gentlemen are familiar with the circumstances surrounding the sources and the uses of the so-called $24,700 publicity fund. Obviously no person can be more familiar with these circumstances than William H. Anderson, for whom your firm is acting as counsel in the present investigation. If you are desirous of giving the Grand Jury all the light and information possible concerning the use which Mr. Anderson made of this $24,700 fund, and the sources from which he obtained that money, why not have Mr. Anderson himself give to the Grand Jury, under oath, at first hand, all of the facts and circumstances surrounding such fund? I am quite certain the Grand Jury would be willing to hear Mr. Anderson's testimony thereon. This office, at least, will urge the Grand Jury to accord Mr. Anderson the privilege of so appearing in his own behalf. He would, of course, have to waive immunity."

When Pecora was about to leave his office he was told that Assemblyman Louis A. Cuvillier had entered the controversy between the prosecutors and Anderson by issuing a statement championing the dry leader's cause. Cuvillier who, with Magistrate Joseph A. Corrigan, is the subject of an inquiry before Judge Crain of General Sessions on a criminal libel charge lodged by Police Commissioner Enright in connection with the allegations of widespread corruption in the liquor enforcement in this city, urged Anderson to be of "a stout heart, as we are both on the same griddle so far as Mr. Banton is concerned."

Anderson's appeal to Governor Smith to have the Attorney General of the State supersede District Attorney Banton I hope will bear fruit, as mine did not.

It was announced that District Attorney Banton would leave the city for a PARIS still clings to the sheer silk stocking, probably because the sheer silk stocking clings so well to the ankles of Paris. But this year a new touch is seen—a new cachet is noted. For Paris is showing on her sheer silk stockings an open clock.

The "Princess," Peck and Peck's famous sheer silk stockings, can now be had with the French open clocks.

"Princess" with open clocks, $4.85

SALOONS MUST GO, ENRIGHT DECLARES

Tells Members of Women's Civic Organization Police Are Honest and Moral.

HIS LEADERSHIP PRAISED

President of New Yorkers Eulogizes Commissioner and Attacks Cuvillier and Corrigan.

Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright, addressing 200 members of a women's civic organization yesterday at Police Headquarters, declared that the day was soon coming when there would be no saloons in New York. The Commissioner offered to match the city's 12,000 policemen against any 12,000 business and professional men in the matter of "honesty and morality."

The visitors were members of The New Yorkers, an organization of which Mr. Enright recently was the guest at a dinner at the Astor. Mrs. Statt Gabriel, the President, read a written speech eulogizing the Commissioner and attacking Magistrate Joseph E. Corrigan and Assemblyman Louis A. Cuvillier, against whom Mr. Enright is appearing in a criminal libel action. A resolution praising the police administration was adopted.

"I want to voice confidence in and appreciation of you, trusting that it will give you additional courage to do your duty at all times in the future as you have in the past," said Mrs. Gabriel.

Continuing, she referred to Assemblyman Cuvillier as "that arch enemy," and declared that he was one of the strongest opponents of all things women stand for, including suffrage. "Such men are making their last stand," she added. Then she took a fling at Magistrate Corrigan, saying, "The Appellate Division has taken good care of his copartner."

There never was a committee, of all those that have come to Police Headquarters, that used such "encouraging methods," the Commissioner said in reply. Referring to a statement of Mrs. Gabriel that no prohibition director had been able to "stand the test" as had Mr. Enright, he said that there were 30,000 saloons in the city when he took office.

"Those men in legislative halls who fatten on such places will not thrive," he added. "Such places have got to go forever."

Others who spoke were Miss Clarice Bewright, Mrs. Mabel McKinley Baer, Mrs. John H. Murphy, Mrs. Emma M. Goldsmith and Mrs. Mary Dillabough.

ACCUSES ACTRESS OF BITING A GIRL

Noroton (Conn.) Prosecutor Seeks Arrest of Dorothy Manners—Says She Kidnapped Her Son.

Special to The New York Times.

NOROTON, Conn., July 17.—Martin Shaughnessy, prosecutor of this village, and who is known officially as Grand Juror, tonight announced that he had requested the police of surrounding communities to arrest Dorothy Manners, actress, on a charge that she assaulted the daughter of Mrs. E. M. Kiernan of this place.

Shaughnessy explained that Mrs. Kiernan alleged that the actress had bitten her daughter on the hand when the Kiernan family tried to prevent Miss Manners and five men from driving off in an automobile with Carlo San Martin, 5-year-old son of the actress who had been placed in Mrs. Kiernan's custody by Mrs. Sarah Murray of New York City.

HEAD OF MINE UNION OUSTS LOCAL LEADER

gion. If Lewis is successful in forcing the Nova Scotia miners back to work, it is believed that the incident may have considerable effect on the attitude of the operators toward the miners union when the wage conference is resumed. The telegram is also regarded as a statement of policy on the part of the United Mine Workers, designed to show the conservative attitude of this organization in the face of the present radical agitation throughout the country.

Property Interests Jeopardized.

In his telegram to Livingston President Lewis said:

"Not only did this strike interfere with the production of coal in mines working under agreement with the United Mine Workers, but it resulted in the withdrawal of enginemen, pumpmen and other maintenance men, with resulting jeopardy to property interests."

Referring to a telegram received from Livingston, Lewis said that the Nova Scotia President attempted "to justify the unwarranted abrogation of contract provisions by specious argument."

Continuing, President Lewis's telegram said:

"I am not unmindful that it is probably a fruitless task to attempt to reason with you in the midst of your mad adventure, yet in your sane moments you must recognize that the course you have been and are now pursuing violates every tenet of your organization. It ruthlessly tramples upon every rule of conduct of our union and constitutes a departure from its every tradition. Your deliberate breach of the existing contract between the operators and miners of Novia Scotia is indefensible and morally reprehensible. Your assault upon the laws and institutions of your Provincial and Dominion Governments cannot be countenanced by the United Mine Workers of America.

"The official statement of the District Executive Board that the strike was for political purposes is illuminating and gives additional proof, if such was needed, of your true intent. I have in mind that you are a self-proclaimed revolutionist. I am familiar with the constant intrigue between yourself and your evil genius McLachlan and your revolutionary masters in Moscow. I can recall the sentiments which you enunciated at a comparatively recent meeting of the International Executive Board at Indianapolis, when, with the cold ferocity of a five-year-old defying its mother, you announced you were a believer in revolution by force.

Likens Strike to Revolution.

"No doubt the present strike in Nova Scotia corresponds with your idea of a revolution against the British Government and in pursuance thereof.

"In consideration of these strange facts, the international union feels warranted in intervening for the protection of its membership and to prevent the discharge of its properly assumed obligations. You may as well know now as at any time in the future that the United Mine Workers is not a political institution and cannot be used to promote the fallacious whims of any political fanatic who seeks to strike down the established institutions of his Government. Neither can it be used to sustain officers of perverted business morals or individuals suffering from mental aberation such as yourself and the aggregation of papier-mâché revolutionists who are associated with you."

FAMILY OF 5 BURNED AS CARS CRUSH AUTO

Motor, Wedged Between Two Trolleys in Brooklyn, Suddenly Bursts Into Flame.

GASOLINE TANK EXPLODES

Hotel Man Injured When He Shoves Arm Through Window of Wrecked Taxi.

Wedged between two Myrtle Avenue trolley cars late last night, at Myrtle Avenue and Fresh Pond Road, Ridgewood, Queens, five members of one family were badly injured when their automobile burst into flames.

The injured are Joseph Weber, 39 years old, of 4 Tompkins Place, Glendale, Queens; his wife, Margaret, 32, and their three children, May, 13; Joseph Jr., 12, and Warren, 5. All were taken to the Wyckoff Heights Hospital in a serious condition. The chauffeur of the automobile, John Arnold, 23 years old, of 35 Arnold Street, Maspeth, Queens, escaped with minor injuries.

According to the police, Arnold was driving the automobile east on Myrtle Avenue when he swung to the left of a trolley car bound in the same direction. A westbound trolley struck the side of the automobile a glancing blow and wedged it in between both cars.

There was a flash as the gasoline tank, ignited in some manner, exploded. Passengers from both trolleys alighted and pulled the members of the Weber family from the burning automobile.

The three children were placed in a taxi and taken to the hospital. The father and mother were taken there in another cab.

Automobile accidents killed three more persons yesterday.

An unidentified man, about 60 years old, was fatally injured at Spruce and Washington Streets, Newark. He was taken to the City Hospital, where he died. Clement Petryskowski of 189 Pacific Street, driver of the automobile, was arrested.

Mrs. Ernestine Diamond, 70 years old, who lived in Hart Street, Brooklyn, died in the Ann May Hospital at Belmar, N. J., of injuries received Sunday night when the automobile in which she was riding was in collision with another car. Harry Speiser of Belmar, who was driving the car which ran into that occupied by Mrs. Diamond, will be arraigned Thursday on a charge of reckless driving.

John Kennedy, 39 years old, of Winslow, N. J., who suffered a fracture of the skull and internal injuries Monday when the automobile he was driving was struck by a train at Hays Crossing, N. J., died yesterday in a hospital at Camden.

William Hamilton, 40 years old, manager of the entertainment department of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, severed an artery in his right wrist last night when he shoved it through the window of the taxicab in which he was riding after an automobile had run into the machine at Park Avenue and Sixty-fourth Street. The taxicab, owned and driven by William Cox of 668 Lexington Avenue, was going south on the avenue when an automobile, operated by Henry P. Keil of Fox Meadow Road, Scarsdale, N. Y., struck the rear of the machine and hurled it against a pile of debris near the curb.

Policeman Sinnott of the East Sixty-seventh Street Station formed a tourniquet of his handkerchief and Hamilton was removed to the Presbyterian Hospital. He had lost so much blood that he was advised to remain at the institution for a few days. Cox and Keil made counter-charges of recklessness against each other. Policeman Sinnott served a summons on Cox for operating his machine without having obtained a taxicab bond.

TARDY FOLK DELAY LINER.

One Passenger Put Aboard Berengaria From a Tug.

The sailing of the Cunarder Berengaria for Cherbourg and Southampton yesterday morning was delayed twenty minutes for four passengers who arrived from out of town and had to go to the British Consulate at 44 Whitehall Street before embarking. Even after the gangway had been lowered, Albert S. Johnson of New York, one of the regular travelers of the Cunard Line, rushed down the pier waving his ticket and passport and was sent off in a tugboat by Captain D. J. Miller, marine superintendent.

Among the passengers in the first cabin were three financiers, Kurt Soherbohm and Ludolf Rosenbein of Berlin and Nathan Sternberg of Amsterdam, who arrived here recently to start a German bank, they said. When asked if they had opened a bank in New York they replied they had nothing to say for publication.

In the steerage were eighteen deportees, among them an English mechanic from St. Ives, Cornwall, who said he had arrived before the quota for Great Britain was exhausted, but was excluded because he happened to have been born in Cape Town, South Africa, which had a very small quota. A Scotchman and his wife had to go back because their son was a bit deaf.

TWO BID FOR COLLEGE SITE.

Hunter Institution Gets $3,500,000 Offer—Sale Undecided.

Two offers for the site of Hunter College, which extends between Lexington and Park Avenues, at Sixty-eighth Street, have been received, it was announced last night by Mrs. Marion R. Elliott of 786 Riverside Drive, Chairman of the Building Committee, which is seeking a suitable location further uptown.

"One offer is for $3,000,000 and the other for $3,500,000," Mrs. Elliott said. "Both contain provisions that the purchasers are willing to wait three years before taking over the site to give us time to settle in our new home."

Mrs. Elliott said the committee could not accept an offer until it had decided on a new location. The committee is considering a large plot overlooking the Hudson at 168th Street and Fort Washington Avenue and part of the Billings estate, owned by the Rockefeller Foundation, at Riverside Drive and 138th Street.

"I understand," said Mrs. Elliott, "that this much has been offered to the city for park purposes, but I feel Hunter College has first claim. Our real difficulty is to find a site with adequate acreage for a campus."

Awards Vehicular Tunnel Contract.

The contract for constructing the approaches in Manhattan for the New York and New Jersey vehicular tunnel was awarded yesterday by the commissioners of the two States to Rodgers & Hagerty, whose bid of $3,467,741.86 was the lowest of five. The highest was $4,644,921.70, submitted by Booth & Flinn, Ltd.

COL. GREEN'S BIG RADIO STOPPED BY PROTESTS

He Will Cut Down Loud Speaker's Volume to Oblige Residents of Nonquit, Six Miles Off.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., July 17.—Colonel Edward H. R. Green, son of Hetty Green, is having trouble with his powerful new radio station in South Dartmouth.

Colonel Green had a large radio receiving and broadcasting station built on his estate, where he expected to conduct experiments in radio research. In connection with the plant he decided to give concerts and lectures for the benefit of the public and invited all who were interested to come and hear. Then he attached a big loud speaker horn and sat back to watch the countryside enjoy the concert.

Hundreds came nightly. Scores of automobiles lined the road and parked in the meadows of the spacious estate. Colonel Green and his guests enjoyed the experiment, but the Summer colony at Nonquit, six miles away, did not. First came a faint stir of protest and then a roar.

Colonel Green was surprised by the protests, so he announced that the concerts would be discontinued until horns and mechanism could be so arranged that the sound would not carry to Nonquit.

REPORTS CHARITY GAMBLING

Coler Asks Police to Stop Wheels of Chance at Carnivals.

Complaining that gambling had featured street carnivals, block parties and fairs, Bird S. Coler, Commissioner of Public Welfare, yesterday asked Commissioner Enright to see that the police keep a close watch on such affairs. Commissioner Enright said that police reservists had been on duty and the service would be extended to meet all requirements.

Mr. Coler made it clear that the gambling he referred to consisted of the operation of wheels of chance and other devices designed to raise funds for charity. He reported, however, that three carnivals "now running, or about to be run," were proceeding without official permission to solicit funds.

CROWN PRINCE FILES SUIT.

Demands Silesian Estate for Son From German Republic.

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

BERLIN, July 17.—Former Crown Prince Frederick William was the first member of the Hohenzollern family to engage in a lawsuit against the German Government when he filed suit today to recover his estate at Oehls, Silesia.

The suit is based on the German Republic's recognition of the right of members of the imperial family to possess private property. The papers giving the complaint declare that the Crown Prince's children were raised at Oehls, which is their home. The eldest son of the former Crown Prince possesses an ambition to become a "gentleman farmer," for which reason his father believes that he should be given Oehls.

All the Country Streams are friendly to the miller and all the region round about brings grist to the mill.

Why should not the little creek that turns the water wheel, giving power to grind the corn and wheat, be proud of itself in being useful to an entire community?

Some men are overproud of themselves because they earn money, and the sense of their ability goes to bed with them and rises with them when they get up in the morning. It is all right, too, unless they are selfish and stingy and inconsiderate of others less fortunate.

Belmaison Furniture

is included—the specially made reproduction furniture on the Fourth and Fifth Galleries, without and within the two story Colonial house which is now called Belmaison because it is furnished and used as headquarters by our Belmaison Interior Decorating staff, ready to take over the decoration and furnishing of an entire home or single rooms.

And Office Furniture

The complete stock of office furniture—and it is a complete stock—is also included in the Sale; desks at 10 per cent. less; chairs at 15 per cent. less.

The Little Home

—the Little Home that Budget Built, comprising two small apartments, has been newly furnished with the August furniture, and will be the center of interest to thousands who will want to see how beautifully and yet how economically a small home may be furnished. These apartments offer first aid, especially to brides and grooms and to all those who are planning their home expenses on a budget basis. Its service, under the direction of an expert "Home Economist," has been commended as eminently practical by many of the home economic organizations of the country who have examined its operations.

The Wanamaker Home Budget, a small book of some 48 pages, presenting itemized home budgets for various incomes, together with price lists as a basis of personal budgets, is free to all who wish it.

Reasonable Deferred Payments on August furniture purchases may be arranged, where necessary, by those who establish credit with our Bureau of Accounts, a representative of which will be on the Sixth Gallery during the progress of the Sale.

Bedding at August Prices, too

Although everything that enters into making of bedding—hair, cotton, ticking, spiral springs, burlap, feathers—has advanced in price during the year, we are protected (by forehand buying) with the old low special prices to the extent of

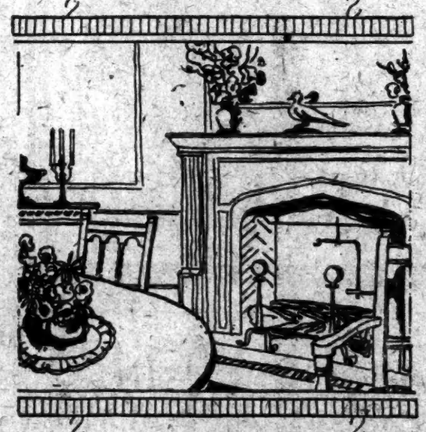
250,000 pounds of hair—enough to make over 7,000 mattresses

—and with other purchases, notably a full, double-bed virgin cotton felt mattress that we can sell at $18.

Hair mattresses range from $30 to $57; box springs from $25 to $39; wire springs at $8.50 to $12; feather pillows, $3.90.

Sixth Gallery, New Building

The August Sale of Furniture was originated by the Wanamaker Store. It is now imitated in every State in the United States. Must have been a pretty good idea to have lived more than a generation and be so extensively copied!



If you will register in the Little Home that Budget Built, on the Sixth Gallery, you will receive free a copy of the Wanamaker Home Budgets, a little book that will help you greatly in your home planning and expenditures

Prices still firm, no outlook for a reduction for at least six months—is the word that comes from the furniture manufacturing centers visited by our representatives last week.

Deliveries begin August First

Accounts payable in September

THIS is our largest August Sale. More than a million and a quarter dollars' worth of furniture, at regular prices, is now on our floors, in the store and in our wareroom.

Another quarter of a million dollars' worth has been purchased as a reserve—to arrive within the next few weeks. Still another hundred and eighty thousand dollars' worth is on call.

We do not mean to let the stocks run down, no matter how large the buying. We have prepared for an unprecedented demand because the building operations for the New York district have broken all records for the first six months of 1923 and the new houses and apartments must be furnished before the year is out.

These new homes can be furnished NOW to best advantage because all this furniture that we have mentioned — all of it, without reserve—is offered at reductions in price ranging from 10 to 50 per cent., the average reduction being almost a third.

Deliveries will be deferred until the Autumn if the new homes are not yet ready, or they may begin in August.

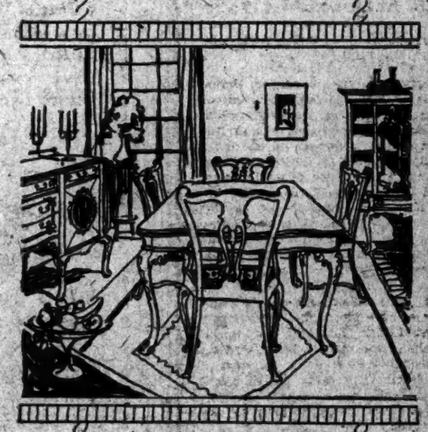
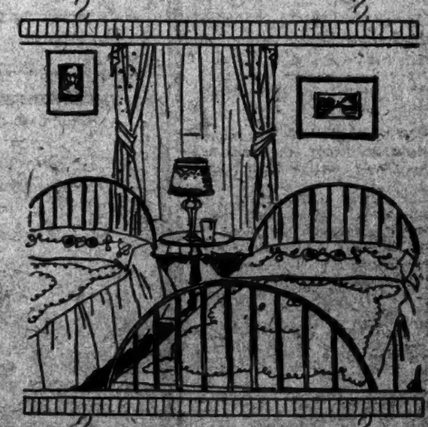
Fourth to Eighth Galleries, New Building

Furniture is becoming more refined; less ornamentation; of simpler lines; following the period designs of the old masters—this is the fashion news of the sale.



The home expresses the personality of those who live in it. Do not make hurried selections. Be sure the furniture you choose is the kind you will like to live with for a generation—for Wanamaker furniture is made to wear for a very long time.



Examine the inside of Wanamaker furniture—inside the drawers, the inside construction everywhere. It will withstand the minutest scrutiny, for it is the best furniture that is made. No cheapening or skimping anywhere.

HUNT FOR CONVICTS IN CYPRESS SWAMP

Posse Seeks Philadelphia Fugitives, While Cutters Watch Coast for Boat.

REPORTED WELL FINANCED

Bandits Said to Have Raised Thousands at Gunpoint to Aid Their Escape.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., July 17.—Four of the six convicts who escaped from the Eastern Penitentiary, this city, last Saturday are now believed to be in hiding in the salt marshes and dense cypress brush that fringe the lower Eastern Shore of Maryland.

Those familiar with the swamp region say the convicts, supplied with ample provisions, could evade capture for several weeks.

The motor launch Sunbeam, stolen by them at Pocomoke City early Sunday, had but five or six gallons of gasoline in her tank, according to Colemore F. Byrd, owner of the craft, who does not believe that the convicts could have traveled further than Crisfield, Md.

With the man-hunt on in the swamps, places where the dory could have been scuttled are being dragged, and coast guards, volunteers in motorboats and shipping in Chesspeake Bay are combing the coast.

J. W. Kirwin, Chief of Police at Crisfield, and six deputies, were on the trail tonight of four men who passed through the town afoot in the morning. The strangers avoided meeting any one and hurried away. They tallied with the description broadcast by the local police.

From Norfolk, where revenue cutters have joined in the chase, word was received here tonight of the sighting near Cape Charles of a small craft believed to be the Sunbeam. The cutters Manning and Mascoutin were ordered to overtake the vessel. Norfolk Police Patrol Boat No. 1 was in the vicinity at the time and also set out in the direction of the mysterious launch.

It was learned today that the fugitives are in possession of several thousand dollars. The money, according to information reaching detectives, is a fund obtained for the convicts through intensive banditry since the plot to scale the penitentiary walls was first hatched a month ago.

The bandits were four members of the band that, with Thomas J. ("Eggie") Gillen, held up and robbed a Corn Exchange National Bank messenger. Gillen, who is believed to be leading the escaped men, refused to divulge the identity of his companions when arrested. In return for this the bandits who escaped arrest pledged themselves to aid Gillen to escape and joined with friends of Edwards in raising the money at the point of pistols.

All six of the fugitives were indicted by the Grand Jury today on eleven bills charging breaking out of prison, assault on a guard, larceny of an automobile and the kidnapping of its owner, T. J. McAllister Jr., and carrying concealed weapons.

Radio orders from the Navy Yard advised vessels in Chesapeake Bay of the convicts' description, and destroyers were asked to be ready for a swift run if the trail of the convicts is picked up.

I. W. W. SEEKS RECRUITS AMONG STEEL WORKERS

Starts Campaign in Chicago to Organize Them in Rivalry With the A. F. of L.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 17.—Officials of the American Federation of Labor and of the I. W. W. have launched rival campaigns to organize workers in the steel industry, according to indications here. Chicago has been selected as the drive headquarters for both factions.

The first outward move on the part of the A. F. of L. became apparent today with the opening of a small headquarters office in the Transportation Building. William Hannon, official of the Machinists' Union and successor to Jay Brown and William Z. Foster in the leadership of the steel organizing campaign following failure of the 1919 strike, will, it is understood, have charge of the office from which a number of A. F. of L. organizers are preparing to operate.

Not to be outdone by the "Conservatives," leaders of the I. W. W. from their stronghold at 1,001 West Madison Street, have begun distribution of 100,000 circulars over the Calumet steel district. The circulars urge the workers "to call Judge Gary's bluff," join the Wobblies and strike.

The activities of the organizers, who have been materialising their plans for several weeks, have as yet drawn no fire from the employers. The A. F. of L. men declare that even though Judge Gary, Chairman of the Board of the United States Steel Corporation, should seek a tentative compromise by granting an eight-hour day, their drive would continue anyway.

It is understood that a careful study of labor conditions has convinced leaders in the impending organization move that a present lack of unskilled workers will prevent effective retaliatory tactics on the part of the employers. The labor men believe the psychological moment for them has come.

Officers of fourteen of the twenty-four International unions active in the 1919 fight will participate in the present drive, it is said, and appropriations from these organizations, together with $70,000 left over from the 1919 fund, will finance the campaign.

WOMEN DRYS QUERY HULL.

Ask Democratic Chairman for His Party's Stand on Prohibition.

The Woman's National Committee for Law Enforcement, Mrs. Edward F. White of Indianapolis, Chairman, has sent a letter to Chairman Hull of the Democratic National Committee, informing him that the Women's Committee is issuing a book of instructions to its 16,000,000 constituents on how to further prohibition observance, and asking him his party's stand in the following questions:

Does the Democratic Party favor the strict enforcement of prohibition?

Does it favor the modification of the Volstead Act by an attempted legalization of beer and wine?

Will the National Democratic Committee use its influence to help secure the nomination for the Presidency of a candidate who will personally support the policy of prohibition, exhaust every resource to enforce the prohibition law and to prevent the weakening of the present law, whether such attempt be by raising the one-half of 1 per cent. standard or by any other means?

Does the Democratic Party approve the action of the Pennsylvania Legislature in refusing an appropriation for the prohibition enforcement code and the action of the Governor and Legislature of New York State in refusing to keep on its statute books the dry enforcement code?

Buckingham Saks & Company NEW YORK

ANY men's store might well be proud to offer these shirts at more pretentious prices.

For BUCKINGHAM shirts are quite the aristocrats of shirtdom—aristocrats in quality and correctness of style, though not in cost.

Their custom-like character distinguishes both the shirts and their wearers.

They are cut, not to manufacturing measurements, but to men's measurements—made with due regard to liberal comfort and correct fit.

Also, like custom-made shirts, their preshrunk neckbands will no more shrink than their extraordinary quality and value.

The more particular the man, the more certain he is to select BUCKINGHAM shirts to the exclusion of all others.

Shirts for every occasion—

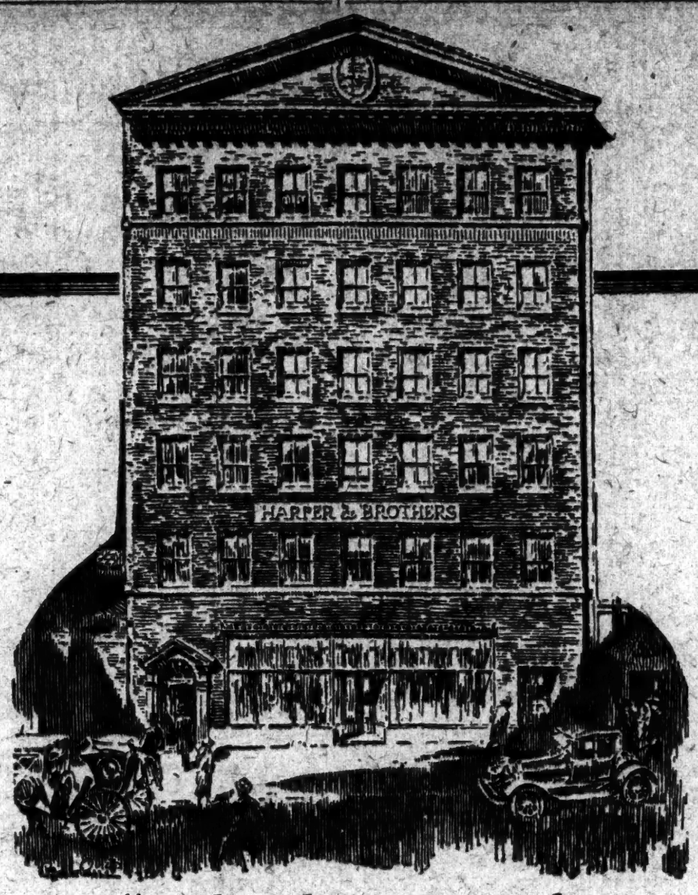
THE NEW HOUSE OF HARPER



49 EAST 33RD STREET

"Forth and Ever Forward"

The Harper Torch Goes on Triumphant

FOR the second time in a long history of 106 years the House of Harper has built itself a new home. On Thirty-third street the new building stands beautiful and compact.

A famous man stood with the editor of Harper's Magazine before its Colonial doorway. Under the eaves of the beautiful Georgian building on that roaring street of commerce there is built in the stone a symbol—a torch with a few words in Greek: ΛΑΜΠΑΔΙΑ ΕΧΟΝΤΕΣ ΔΙΑΔΩΣΟΥΣΙΝ ΑΛΛΗΛΟΙΣ —which George William Curtis paraphrased so beautifully, "Let true hands pass on an unextinguished torch from sire to son."

And the famous man said, "You have had a wonderful past; you have a mighty present—may your future be most glorious of all. I hope you will carry your light into the dark places of the world—that the genius of tomorrow will come through that Colonial doorway as it passed through the wide old doors in Franklin Square."

After 106 Years in Franklin Square

ALL over the world the old, broad, clumsy, curving building on Franklin Square is known—the iron stairway that led to fame—the mahogany-lined, spacious, high-ceilinged office with its deep stone fireplace where Dickens warmed his hands, with its dim panelled walls that gave back the echo to the voice of a President of the United States—with its ancient portraits and priceless rare books that listened as calmly to Mark Twain's gentle drawl as to Rex Beach telling a good story.

A Room that has Welcomed the Great

AND all this ancient beauty goes into this spacious new building. The old Directors' Room has been moved bit by bit with every care—the walls, the doors, the old pictures by Abbey, Rinehardt, and Church, the famous book cases—all have been brought piece by piece to the new building. For it is the room richest with history in all the American business world.

So much for the romance of the past—now for the romance of new ventures. The elevators fly past light and roomy floors, where everything is new, filled with many departments—Sales—Circulation—Editorial—Harper's Magazine—Collection—Educational—Bubble Book—Accounting—The Franklin Square Subscription Agency—the solid basis on which creative literature rests.

And the people who have made the Harper's you know step into a new, fresh inspiration — vivid and clear.

The House of Harper has been closely bound up with the history of the American people. In the covered wagons that stumbled across the continent long before the Civil War, were precious books fresh off the Harper presses.

Your great-grandfather was thrilled by the novels of Sir Walter Scott, published in America by Harper's; your grandfather rejoiced in Dickens and Thackeray, published by Harper's; your father welcomed Mark Twain, published by Harper's; you own Thomas Hardy, published by Harper's; your children play with the Bubble Books, published by Harper's.

The First Fireproof Building

BRICK by brick, and book by book, the House of Harper has been built into the nation's intellectual life.

In 1817, when James Monroe was President, just forty-one years after the Declaration of Independence, and when these United States were just learning to walk, the House of Harper made its first step into the world of publishing with a serious work of obvious moral purpose.

As early as 1853—eight years before the Civil War—when Harper's built its Franklin Square home, it was already one of the great publishing houses of the world. This building created a sensation at the time, for it was the first fireproof building (so considered) in the city. You will be interested to know what the New Yorkers of that day considered a fireproof building. It was this: instead of having stairs inside the building, there were spiral stairways of iron in a tower of brick, out of doors. All New York of that day came to see the wonder.

But now, in 1923, Harper's is expanding and leaves, for more modern quarters, this historic home that whispers with the ghosts of a hundred great dead, who will live forever through their works, and that rings with the tones of a hundred great living.

An Incredible Twenty-four Hour Feat

SOMETIMES when we are proud of some recent achievement, we look back into the past of the House of Harper and become duly modest. For instance, one day a ship—a sailing vessel, if you please, (now guess the date) — sailed into New York Harbor with the first copies of Scott's "Peveril of the Peak" on board. On the waters of the choppy bay a little boat lay in wait—a boat sent out by Harper's—and twenty-four hours later copies of that Waverley novel were on sale in New York—and this before the days of linotype, quick presses, giant folding and binding machines. It would be nearly impossible today.

That's the trouble with a great past; it so stubbornly keeps you from patting yourself on the back.

For instance, authors and contents aside, sometimes we feel a little set up because we can make such good modern books and sell them at such moderate prices. But after all we expect ourselves to make good books at moderate prices. What is one hundred and six years of experience good for if it can't teach us how to make our books a little better and at a little lower price than others?

Or—we start to point with pride to our splendid list of great authors. But, says Modesty, why not? Would not men of genius come first to the House that publishes Mark Twain?

Once again our indomitably vain minds arise and say, Well, at least we can boast of our close connection with book stores all over the world. And History comes along with the same Why not? You've had one hundred and six years to make those contacts, to make and keep these friends. Would you expect another to do it in one year or ten?

Almost vanquished, we have just strength enough to whisper, But look at our international publishing connections. Don't they enable us to get the best as soon as it lifts its head in any part of the world? And why not, says the bore of a mentor, Isn't the publisher of Thomas Hardy good enough for any foreign author?

So we give it up, turn our faces to the new and go back to work.

Who Can Dare So Much?

AND Harper's Magazine has no time to tell how great it was or is. Behind it may stretch a mighty line of glorious names. Yet each issue must come forth afresh. Harper's Magazine can afford to forget that when Chicago wasn't even a pioneer fort it carried the best serials, short stories, and the most varied articles and the newest discoveries in science into the wilderness.

It is too busy in bringing to the cultured homes of a modern broad land, impatient of the old, the first new page of the undiscovered genius of 1923, the best fiction and the most authoritative articles of the month of July in 1923, the most beautiful pictures by men who are the worthy successors of Edwin A. Abbey, Howard Pyle and Frederic Remington, who were once staff artists of Harper's Magazine. Harper's has a record to keep up; each month it must send forth ringing names of future master-writers.

So off with the old and on with the new. For in the publishing of books and magazines there is a today and a tomorrow. Those who have stuck to their pasts have long disappeared from American publishing.

On with the new! Watch this new young child; watch it in the new home with the new tools—for who can be so new as one whose feet are firmly planted in the reputation of the past; who can dare so much as he who has proved his strength?

The old iron stairway is gone—the new door at 49 East 33rd Street stands wide open, leading to the elevators that rise to new ideas and new thoughts, daring youth and the future.

Some of the prominent passengers due to arrive tomorrow on the Conte Rosso of the Lloyd Sabaudo Line are: Frederick Sterner, Maude Sterner, Almerina Almerini, Emilio Bracchi, Renata Bonini, Remo Rossi, Elena Thompson and daughter, John Luff, Kate MacKnight, Pio Marzotti, Anna Jaccheo, Clotilde Prato, Rose Bryant, Charles Burke, Natalie Gifford, Ralph Latimer, Teodora Topliffe, Rose Knode, Franklin Mott and Yvonne Bywood.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"You and I" will end its engagement at the Belmont Theatre this week. The next attraction at the Belmont, opening in September, will be Richard Barry's "Poor Richard."

"Dew Drop Inn," with James Barton as its star, will reopen at the Astor Theatre on July 30.

"Fashions of 1924" will open at the Lyceum Theatre tonight.

Bernard Granville will join the cast of "Vanities of 1923" at the Earl Carroll Theatre next Monday night.

David Belasco has accepted a play by Mrs. Ethelyn Brewer De Foe.

Clarence Derwent will have a role in "Help Yourself," now in rehearsal.

The Orpheus Club of Cleveland, a Welsh choir, will sing at the Palace Theatre this afternoon and tonight as an added attraction. The choir is en route to England.

Elsa Peterson has succeeded Mary Lewis as prima donna of the Ziegfeld "Follies."

SCREEN NOTES.

"The Green Goddess" is to be presented in picturized form on Aug. 13 at the Sam H. Harris Theatre. George Arliss plays the leading part.

"Lawful Larceny," with Hope Hampton, Nita Naldi, Lew Cody and Conrad Nagel, will be the feature next week at the Strand.

"The Purple Highway" is the production selected for the Rialto next week. Henry Zolker directed this photoplay, which was adapted from the play, "Dear Me," by Leighton and Hale Hamilton.

"Three Wise Fools," adapted from the play by John Golden and Winchell Smith, will be the film attraction next week at the Capitol.

"The Brass Bottle," with Ernest Torrence, Constance Le Marr and others, will be the photoplay next week at the Strand. It was adapted from a story by F. Anstey.

MUSIC NOTES.

Nora Fauchild, Marjorie Moody, Rachel Senior and Winifred Sambrich are soloists with Sousa's Band, assembling today for a season's tour.

Charles E. Baker, formerly of the San Carlo Opera, is to be business manager for S. Hurok on the coming tour of Anna Pavlowa.

Cornelius Van Vliet, an added soloist at the Stadium this week, will be heard Saturday in a "cello fantasy by Gervais.

Felipe Klimt sings the Habanera, from "Carmen," with the Goldman Band tonight on the Mall in Central Park.

CHINESE CHRISTIANS EXPEL GENERAL FENG

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

PEKING, July 17.—Chinese Christians, meeting at the Tientsin Young Men's Christian Association, have expelled General Feng Yuh-siang, alleging that for driving Li Yuan-hung from the Presidency he received from Tsao Kun $500,000 and from Wang Kehmin, President of the Bank of China, 1,000 head of horses. At the same time, Feng is accused of the murder of Chow Chi-hikhia and Tang Hsichung, Christian representatives.

Liu Tsuming is the head of the committee drafting the letter notifying Feng of his excommunication.

Feng, who commands 30,000 troops at Peking, also made charges saying that Li Yuan-hung was unable to pay the troops, while, since the latter's flight, he had provided for the arrears.

Some missionaries are still loyal to Feng, but many of late have regarded him as insincere.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, July 17.—Conferences between the American and Mexican commissioners on recognition still continue. A story printed here saying that Messrs. Warren and Payne would leave on Saturday night was denied by Mr. Warren this afternoon.

"We are still making progress and the date of our leaving cannot be fixed yet, as many details remain, but we feel sure that everything will be settled satisfactorily," he said.

One question which has been treated verbally still remains to be taken up in formal meeting, the delay being due to the Mexican Commissioners' wish to obtain more data.

Reports published here say Señor Pani will be named Ambassador to Washington and Mr. Hanna of the American State Department will come to Mexico City. This appears to have been given out for the purpose of feeling out public opinion and restoring confidence that the commissions would reach an agreement.

RAY TREATMENT FOR LUNGS.

"Infallible Cure" for Tuberculosis Proclaimed by Paris Student.

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

PARIS, July 17.—Rafael Santos, a 25-year-old medical student in the University of Paris, declares he has discovered an infallible cure for tuberculosis.

After three years of experimenting at the leading hospitals here, he has constructed a set of lenses for introducing ultra-violet rays into the human lungs. He declares that his experiments proved that these rays will kill all tuberculosis bacilli in less than a half an hour.

Santos's discovery is the object of active experimentation at the principal clinics this week. Some of the leading figures of the Pasteur Institute have taken up his claims and are trying to test their merit by a large number of experiments.

U. OF P. ARCHITECT WINS BEAUX ARTS PRIZE

Leo Rombotis Gets $3,000 for His Conception of What White House Should Be.

The Paris prize of the Society of Beaux Arts Architects, 126 East Seventy-fifth Street, which is a scholarship given by the society, amounting to $3,000, entitling the winner to admission to the advanced class at the Ecole des Beaux Arts in Paris, was awarded last night by a jury of prominent architects to Leo Rombotis of the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia. The scholarship provides the winner with means to live in Paris and travel two and one-half years as a guest of the French Government, receiving the privilege of schools gratuitously.

The subject was "An Office and Reception Building for the President of the United States," in substance Rombotis's conception of what the White House should be. The prize this year is donated anonymously through James Gamble Rogers.

Second place in the competition went to H. K. Bleg of the Department of Architecture of Armour Institute of Technology, Chicago, and third place to L. J. Loeb of the Armour Institute.

The jury that made the selections was headed by James G. Rogers, and the drawings will be on exhibition at the society's headquarters, beginning today, until July 28, except Sunday, from 9 A. M. to 9 P. M.

This prize has been awarded annually for sixteen years, and any citizen under 27 years old is eligible to compete.

SEEKS TO ENJOIN SALE.

Gen. Longstreet's Widow Asks Court to Protect Mother's Home.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Mrs. Helen Dortch Longstreet, widow of General James Longstreet, sought the aid of the District of Columbia Supreme Court today to prevent the resale of property at 1,627 Georgia Avenue, which belongs to her aged mother, Mrs. Mary M. Dortch. The injunction proceedings are directed against Jesse L. Heiskell and Raymond Heiskell, sales agents, and Arthur G. Froe, Recorder of Deeds.

Mrs. Longstreet asked the court some time ago to appoint her as trustee for the estate of her mother and arranged for the sale of the property for the latter's benefit. Before the appointment as trustee was made, it is alleged, the Heiskells sold the property for a lower figure.

BANS MUNICH'S BEER RISE.

Bavarian Government Prohibits Any Increase to Thirsty Gymnasts.

MUNICH, July 17.—The brewers' association has failed in its attempt to triple beer prices in the face of the great influx of visitors for the national gymnastic tournament.

The Bavarian Government bureau charged with the regulation of prices came to the support today of the thirsty thousands, and it is expected that the famous Löwenbräu Münchener will continue to flow at the pre-tournement prices, at least until the gymnasts leave town.

The authorities said that a general rise in prices would not be tolerated, and that if any individual brewer boosted his rates he would be required to justify the action in an investigation.

$750,000 SWINDLE IN STOCKS CHARGED

the Fuller firm, will be released from imprisonment for contempt of court.

This, it was learned yesterday, will be the attitude of Federal authorities connected with the case, when application for discharge of Fuller and McGee from their contempt imprisonment is made today before Judge Henry W. Goddard in United States District Court. The motion for the discharge of the two brokers will be made by their attorney, Charles H. Griffiths. The motion papers will include affidavits from Fuller and Harold A. Content, Griffith's law partner, concerning telephonic conversations in which an unknown person informed them the papers had been returned to Judge Goddard by a Western Union messenger.

Francis L. Kohlman and Carl J. Austrian, attorneys for the trustee in the bankruptcy proceedings against Fuller & Co., will oppose the motion. William M. Chadbourne, attorney for the creditors' committee, is also opposed to the motion. Although Judge Goddard has given no intimation as to what his action might be, it was regarded as practically certain that he would not grant the motion immediately.

Hopeful of Getting Explanation.

Attorneys in the bankruptcy case expressed the belief that there was an excellent chance of getting a confession from Fuller. There are many things which Harold P. Coffin, the referee in bankruptcy, and the attorneys for the trustee and creditors want Fuller to explain.

Fuller so far has refused to answer questions which might lead to disclosure of assets of the firm, which the attorneys believe were taken out shortly before the failure. The attorneys would like to know who, if anybody, was behind the Fuller firm, and would like to have Fuller's version of how he obtained $147,000 from Charles A. Stoneham through the intervention of Thomas F. Foley, former Sheriff and veteran Tammany leader. They would like to know how the papers, for failure to produce which they were committed for contempt, disappeared from their custody or from the custody of their former counsel, William J. Fallon and Eugene McGee.

If some attorneys in the case had their way, Fuller and McGee would be kept in Ludlow Street Jail until one of them explained all these things. It was said an attempt would be made to impress this on Judge Goddard, who refuses to discuss the case. It is considered certain, however, that he will not order discharge of Fuller and McGee because of the mere return of the papers, important documents of which are said to be missing, without a more complete explanation than has yet been put forward.

According to one lawyer, the best chance of getting the desired information is through Fuller. All efforts to get a confession have been centred in this partner, rather than McGee. Fuller at one time intimated he might tell Referee Coffin some things he wished to know and is understood to have offered to give limited information to United States District Attorney William Hayward in return for Federal immunity from further Federal prosecution.

If Judge Goddard should refuse to release the two men from contempt, it is believed a few months' further imprisonment, with the prospect of indefinite confinement for contempt, or eleven months' imprisonment for bucketing and the necessity of facing a Federal indictment for use of the mails to defraud, might cause Fuller to weaken.

McGee Remains Mute.

The attorneys in the bankruptcy believe Fuller could tell a great deal and have not abandoned hope that he will do so. They have little hope of getting information from McGee. It was friendship for McGee that induced Mr. Foley to get Mr. Stoneham to go to the firm's financial assistance, Mr. Foley testified. Mr. Foley also testified he helped get McGee out of trouble when McGee was charged with wire-tapping on the pins of Mrs. Nellie Sheehan McGee, McGee's first wife, and that he had been a friend to McGee ever since.

It was said yesterday that the missing papers were returned to Judge Goddard much earlier than was generally believed. Mr. Content, of counsel for Fuller and McGee, was told by the unknown man who telephoned that the papers had been returned to Judge Goddard "a week ago last Tuesday." Mr. Content received the telephone call on July 9 and has calculated from this that the papers were returned to Judge Goddard on June 26, although nothing concerning their return became public until two weeks later. Mr. Content was said to regard this as an indication neither Fuller nor McGee had had anything to do with the return of the papers as, if they had, news of it would have come out sooner.

It was learned yesterday that Mr. Griffiths and Mr. Content became attorneys for Fuller and McGee after the retirement of William J. Fallon and Eugene McGee at the request of another lawyer.

TWO HOMERS HELP GIANTS BEAT CUBS

Champions Win, 7-3, When Circuit Drives by Snyder and Groh Score 4 Runs in Sixth.

RYAN PITCHES GOOD GAME

Holds Chicago Safe After First Inning—Victory Gives McGraw's Team the Series.

The Giants beat the Cubs in the rubber game of the five-game series yesterday, thereby gaining on the Pirates, who lost to Brooklyn, but actually losing ground to the Cincinnati Reds, who trounced the Braves twice in one afternoon. The champions are now five and a half games ahead of the Pittsburgers, but only three in front of the Cincinnatians, and the pennant race grows hotter with each fleeting hour.

Yesterday's victory over the Cubs was scored as 7 to 3, and it had few merits aside from the fact that the Giants won. In fact, it was a dull game from any angle, with the Cubs furnishing scant opposition and the Giants showing just enough dash and sparkle to win. A handful of spectators slumbered fitfully during the proceedings.

Rosey Bill Ryan, pitching one of his infrequent good games, had the Cubs on his hip after the first inning and up to the ninth—the two innings when the Bruins scored their three runs. In the interim the Giants first tied the score at 1—1 in the fifth and then broke out into a rash of home-run hitting in the sixth, scored four big runs and put the game on the shelf.

Frank Snyder and Heinie Groh were the home run heroes. With Kelly on first base in the sixth Snyder pulverized one of Osborne's slow balls and deposited it against the ornamental iron work between the first and second tiers in left field. Then after Young had got aboard on a fielder's choice, Groh punched the ball to the same spot—midway between upper and lower tier—and two more runs came clattering over the plate.

Decorative and useful were the home runs, for they provided more than enough runs to win and gave Ryan enough of a lead to go ahead and mow the Cubs down, which Rosey Bill proceeded to do. In the first eight innings the Bruins got only six hits and one run, and mighty few of them managed to get on the base lines. With a safe lead Ryan eased down in the ninth, let the Cubs hit the ball more or less at will and was reached for two runs before he put the brakes on.

Ryan Wild at Start.

Ryan was wild at the beginning and the Cubs got away to a one-run start. Rosey Bill passed Statz to start with, and Hollocher knocked a single to right, sending Statz to third. Grantham popped one to Groh, but O'Farrell lifted a long sacrifice fly to Stengel and Statz came in with the first run of the game.

Young led off for the Giants with a single to left, but was forced by Groh on Heinie's grounder to Hollocher. Groh, in turn, was forced by Frisch, and the Fordham Flash was no exception to the forcing process, being retired when Meusel grounded to Hollocher, who tossed to Grantham for the third out.

The Cubs were quiescent after the first inning, although Hollocher opened the sixth with a single to right. However, Grantham rolled to Frisch, sending Hollocher to second, and O'Farrell and Kelleher were easy for Ryan.

In their half of the fifth the Giants tied the score. Ryan fanned, but Osborne gave Young four balls and a free walk to first. Groh, the home-run impressario of the sixth, sliced a single to centre and Young chased to third, ending up with a la Annette Kellerman slide. While Frisch, who is in the throes of a terrific batting slump, was forcing Groh at second, Hollocher to Grantham, Young hurried in with the tying run. Frisch stole second cleanly and Meusel walked, but the best Stengel could contribute was an easy roller to Grantham.

After the Cubs had passed out in single file in the sixth the Giants began exuding their home runs and scored four runs in the excitement. Kelly started it by walking and after Travis Jackson had agitated the atmosphere with his third and last strike out Snyder belted a homer against the left field stand. Ryan singled and evidenced consternation by doubling to right centre and went to third on a wild pitch, but when Young bounded one straight at Grantham, Rosey Bill made an ill-advised break for the plate and was out by three furlongs or eight and a half lengths of open water. However, Young got safely to first and trotted home ahead of Groh when Henry spattered the ball against the front of the left field structure.

Fussell in Box for Cubs.

Little Adams batted for Osborne in the eighth without any startling results, and this brought Fred Fussell, the left hander, into the affray in the eighth. But just previous to this episode the Giants had delivered a parting salute to Osborne in their section of the seventh. Stengel hit to centre for a base with one out, and after Kelly had filed out Jackson came out of his trance and singled to centre. Then Snyder shot a two-bagger to left and Stengel came in with a perfectly useless run.

With Fussell presiding in the eighth, Young led off with a single to left and Groh slapped a ditto to right—his third hit—shoving Young along to third. Frisch forced Groh, Young scoring, and the Fordham Flash stole second for the second time in a seething afternoon, but Meusel filed out and Stengel grounded out, leaving the Flash high and dry at second.

In the Chicago ninth the action was as follows: Kelleher singled, advanced to second without drawing a throw and scored on Callaghan's one-base hit to centre. Callaghan went to second on Heathcote's single off Ryan, scurried along to third on Elliott's out and scored on Pinch Hitter Miller's sacrifice hoist to Young. Statz ended it all by grounding out to Jackson.

LUQUE WINS TWICE FOR REDS IN BOSTON

Cuban Pitcher Beats Braves in Double-Header by 4 to 3 and 9 to 5.

BOSTON, July 17.—Pitcher Luque ran his total of victories for the season to fifteen when he was credited with winning both games of the double-header with Boston today. The scores were 4 to 3 and 9 to 5. The Cuban pitched six innings of the first game, and was relieved by Rixey, and then returned and pitched all the second game.

The Reds' four runs in the first game were made off McNamara on a triple by Burns with the bases full and a bad throw to the plate by Ford which permitted Burns to score.

Toney Outpitches Ring and Phillies Are Beaten, 2 to 1.

PHILADELPHIA, July 17.—The Cardinals took the final game of the series from the Phillies today when Fred Toney outpitched Jimmy Ring in ten innings. The final score was 2 to 1.

Ring issued only two passes, but both were instrumental in scoring runs. The locals collected their tally in the eighth on a single by Wrightstone and a double by Lee, the only extra base hit of the game.

UHLE HOLDS YANKS; INDIANS WIN, 13-0

Mays Is Pounded for 20 Hits by Cleveland Sluggers—Brower Hits Homer.

SPEAKER CLEARS BASES

Cleveland Manager Drives 3 Runs Across With Triple—Meusel Returns to Game.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, July 17.—Blond Carl Mays, erstwhile master of the submarine ball, tried to do a "come back" today in the closing engagement of a six-game series between the Yankees and the Indians and was beaten, 13 to 0. Batting as they did against the Boston Red Sox and the Philadelphia Athletics prior to the arrival of the Yankees last Saturday, the Indians carved out a total of twenty hits off Mays, including a home run by First Baseman Frank Brower with a runner on first in the seventh and a triple by Tris Speaker with all bases filled in the fourth.

Pitching in opposition to the burly, blond Missourian, George Uhle held the Yanks to four scattered hits, the same number they made off him in the opening game of the series. Only two Yankee runners reached second base—Ruth in the fourth and Bengough in the fifth—and neither of these advanced to third.

With Uhle breezing along at the top of his frequently brilliant form, Manager Miller Huggins could see no advantage to be gained by taking the stricken Mays out of the box and kept him in throughout the entire engagement. This passive policy enabled the Tribe to pile up a top-heavy score, but enabled the Yankee leader to save his big four for the series with the Tigers which opens at Detroit tomorrow.

After the game was hopelessly lost, Huggins sent Mike Gazella to Everett Scott's relief and used Lou Gehrig, former Columbia University star, at first instead of Wallie Pipp. Bob Meusel supplanted Whitey Witt in centre field in the second half of the sixth and played the rest of the game. Meusel visited Bonesetter Reese at Youngstown, Ohio, yesterday and the noted specialist on lame arms and legs found a misplaced tendon in the lanky Californian's right elbow. He snapped it into place again and told Meusel he would be as good as ever in a very few days.

Bush Leaves Squad.

Bullet Joe Bush, who split the little finger of his left hand while fielding a hard hit grounder off Tris Speaker's bat in yesterday's double header, entrained for his home at Philadelphia this evening. He will rejoin the club at Philadelphia next week-end.

The Cubs cut runners on second and third with none out in the first inning but failed to score. Jamieson led off for the Indians with a single to center, and Summa lined a double to deep right. Jamieson tried to score on Speaker's grounder to Duggan, however, and was caught a run-up between third and the plate. Sewell then grounded to Mays and was thrown out at first, and Pipp's relay to Bengough doubled Summa at the plate.

The Indians resumed the offensive in the second and should have scored four or five runs. They pulled some funny stuff on the bases, however, and finally stopped themselves after scoring only twice. Wambsganss led off with a pass and was forced at second on Lutzke's roller to Scott. Brower bounced a hit off the right field wall which should have been good for a double, but Lutzke stopped at second and Brower, overrunning first, was caught off the bag.

O'Neill drew a pass and Uhle batted in the Indians' first run with a line single to right. O'Neill went to third on the hit and scored on Jamieson's single over second. Summa also connected solidly, but his grounder toward right, which neither Ward nor Pipp could have reached, struck Jamieson in the leg, and the latter was called out under the rules.

The Indians went out in order in the third, but started after Mays again in the fourth and scored five runs after two were out. Uhle singled to right and was caught stealing second, after Brower had filed to Witt. O'Neill drew a pass, went to third on Uhle's single to right and scored on Jamieson's infield hit. Summa filled the bases with a single to left, and Speaker swept them clear again with a triple through Elmer Smith.

Sewell Sinks When Hit.

Sewell was hit in the ribs with a pitched ball and sank to the ground as though he had been hurt. He quickly recovered, however, and he and Speaker pulled a double steal which gave the Indians their fifth run of the inning. Mays then pulled himself together and fanned Billy Wambsganss for the third out. A pass to Lutzke, Brower's sacrifice and a boot by Mike Gazella, who had succeeded Everett Scott at short, gave the Indians another run in the fifth.

Five of the Indians' warriors made the rounds in the seventh. Wamby led off with an infield hit, stole second, and scored on Lutzke's single to centre. Brower followed with a home run over the right field wall, Lutzke scoring ahead of him. O'Neill and Uhle were thrown out at first by Ward and Dugan respectively, but Jamieson jammed a double against the right field wall for his fifth consecutive hit off Mays and scored on Summa's fourth hit of the game, a single to centre. Speaker and Sewell beat out hits to Gehrig, who had relieved Pipp at first, and when Gehrig made a wild throw past first on Sewell's blow Summa scored, Speaker went to third and Sewell advanced to second. Wamby then came to bat for the second time in this inning and lined to Ruth for the third out.

SALE OF YANKEES DENIED BY RUPPERT

Owner Spikes Report That Frazee Is to Become Part Owner of Club.

"I am the sole owner of the New York Yankees. There is absolutely nothing to the report that Harry H. Frazee has purchased or is about to purchase an interest in the New York American League club. I cannot make the denial too strong."

That was the answer of Colonel Jacob Ruppert, owner of the Yankees, yesterday to the report that Frazee, former owner of the Boston Red Sox, had purchased the interest in the Yankees formerly held by Colonel Huston. The report added that Colonel Ruppert was unable to handle the burden of directing the affairs of the Yankees as well as his other business interests, and that Frazee was coming into the club as a part owner in order to take most of the baseball work off Colonel Ruppert's hands.

"I also want to add," said Colonel Ruppert, "that I do not hold a penny's worth of stock in any of the Frazee enterprises, as stated in the report, and that as to needing any help in directing the Yankees I feel I am still able to assume the baseball work as well as directing my other business. I have no plans for disposing of any of my interests in the Yankees. I am not looking for any partner, and you can make it as strong as you like that Frazee will not be a partner of mine in the New York American League baseball club."

Frazee was located at his office at 1,441 Broadway, but absolutely refused to be reached by telephone or at his offices. His secretary received all interviewers, and this copper plate statement awaited the newspaper man: "Mr. Frazee says he has nothing to say today, but doubtless will have a statement to make in a day or so."

When Colonel Ruppert was informed of Frazee's statement he replied: "I stand on what I said not long ago. Frazee will have no interests in the Yankees. I don't care what statement he plans to give out in a day or so. It can have no bearing upon any change in ownership of the Yankees, so his promised statement doesn't interest me."

BROWNS WIN AGAIN, 10-1.

M'LEAN WINS GOLF TITLE AT SHAWNEE

Beats Hampton in Play-Off for Club Championship by Two Strokes.

HACKNEY IN THIRD PLACE

Sarazen Is Fourth With 292, French Scores 294 for Fifth, and Burke's 296 Is Sixth.

Special to The New York Times.

SHAWNEE, Pa., July 17.—Tying for championships seems to be in order this year. On Saturday Bobby Cruickshank, by playing a sterling shot going to the home green at Inwood, tied Bobby Jones for the national open crown. Today, in the eleventh annual open championship at Shawnee, George McLean, Grassy Sprain pro, did the same thing. As he and Harry Hampton, plump Scot from the Brooklands club, out in the Detroit area, turned for the home green, McLean, having dropped a stroke on the green just behind, was lagging by two strokes.

After Hampton had played his tee shot, a fine iron that went straight at the pin but lacked legs, the chances against McLean's winning were something like 10 to 1, although the odds dwindled somewhat when his own spoon shot dropped on the green and stopped not more than twelve feet from the flag. Even at that, McLean's chances were still on the remote side, for in order to win he had to get a birdie 2. Hampton had to take a 4 from less than five yards off the green, and that's just what happened. The Westerner was short on his chip, but not more than a yard or so.

"Here's the opening; I'll bang for it," was doubtless the thought that flashed through McLean's mind. And bang he did. He hit the putt firmly, and the ball started straight for the back of the hole, ducked in and decided to stay there. The noise of the ball hitting the tin must have disconcerted Hampton, for although he gave the line of the remaining putt his careful study, and the distance was less than a yard, he missed it. The miss cost him $200 in cash, the difference between winner and runner-up, and the prestige of being a titleholder—a great adjunct in these days of commercialized golf.

It made them 70 each for the round and brought about a tie for the championship, their total being 288. Then in the 18-hole play off, McLean won by two shots, his total for the third journey around the course being 74, against Hampton's 76. Today's well-earned victory was McLean's first of note and puts him in the ranks of several notables, including Freddie McLeod, Johnny McDermott, Walter Hagen, Jim Barnes, all national champions, and Willie Ogg and Johnny Farrell, who captured the honors in 1921 and 1922, respectively.

McLean Wins $500.

McLean's prize was $500 and Hampton's $300. Clarence Hackney of Atlantic City, leader for the first three rounds, finished in third place with a total of 291, for which he received $150. Gene Sarazen, former national open champion, was fourth with 292, which was good for $75. Emmet French, Youngstown, Ohio, pro, was fifth with 294 and Jack Burke of St. Paul was sixth with 296, good for $50 and $30 each.

Things being as they were made it a comparatively easy matter to watch the two leaders, for Hampton and McLean were paired and it was a man-to-man as well as a pencil and card struggle. And no finer round of golf has been played in many a day than that which they turned on for the delectation of their gallery, which kept gaining recruits at every hole.

They started off evenly enough with par 4s at the first hole, although Hackney had a fair chance to get a 3. He grabbed a birdie 3 at the second by dropping a twenty-footer, thereby catching French, and he jumped a couple of strokes ahead of the entire field by registering an eagle 3 at the 461-yard third hole, where he played a great second shot to within ten feet of the pin and holed out.

McLean was also on the green in 2 and almost got his 3. They followed with par figures at the next two holes, Hampton being not more than a couple of inches away from his 3 and McLean having to drop a yarder for his 4 at the fourth. Both had fine irons at the fifth and missed their birdies by a hair's breadth, Hampton got down a 5-foot put for his par 4 at the sixth after being in the rough at the right of the green.

McLean slid four shots behind Hampton by taking a 6 at the seventh, where Hampton got a 5. He was guilty of three putts, his last miss being of such short length that he declared that he couldn't get them into a basket. McLean was past the pin with his approach, but got a five-yard putt that hit the cup with a bang and stayed in. At the eighth conditions were reversed. Here it was Hampton who took three putts while McLean, despite his criticism of his putting ability after his experience on the green before, ran down a twenty-footer for a birdie 3.

At the hole following, the Grassy Sprain player holed a very tricky downhill six-yard putt for his second consecutive birdie, while Hampton barely missed one a yard longer. That left them 34 and 35, respectively, at the turn, Hampton having the 34, four under par in spite of his three putt green and his failure to get at least three other putts that were almost in the tin.

Both Fall at Tenth.

They both suffered sad fates at the tenth when their good seconds got into trouble, but they managed to get their par 58. By playing a magnificent pitch at the eleventh, Hampton was left with only a 5-footer for his birdie 3, which gave him another stroke on McLean, two in all.

McLean had an 8-footer for his 3, but the ball just curled away from the hole on the last few turns. Two 38's followed at the twelfth, and two 4's at the thirteenth. At the twelfth McLean was again just a fraction off the line for his birdie, while Hampton had to scramble for his par when his tee shot caught the down slope and went scuttling up the opposite bank. His approach putt, however, was a beauty for an easy 3.

McLean missed another putt that should have been his at the thirteenth when two great shots left him within two yards of the hole and his tap for a 3 hung on the lip. Playing the same hole, Hampton was guilty of his only really bad shot of the round, a slice that landed up in the rough at the right of the fairway. His third was far past the pin and he just managed to save his par by means of another good approach putt. They were both in trouble at the long fourteenth, McLean losing a chance to make up some of his two-stroke deficit by failing to drop a 2-footer.

They got their par 4s at the fifteenth, but McLean gained a stroke on Hampton by dropping an iron to within eight feet of the flag at the water hole. Hampton just getting to the edge of the green and taking three strokes from there. After the tee shots, going to the seventeenth, it looked very much like the finish of McLean. He pushed his drive into the rough and it just escaped a trap, while Hampton was straight down the course. McLean's second was short of the green, and to the right, while Hampton, playing a beautiful wood that hooked just a trifle to the left, went into the rough.

His approach, however, was a dream, for from advance of thirty yards or so he clipped up to a yard and holed the putt for a birdie 4. McLean's approach was past the hole and he took a 5. Then came the finishing hole, resulting in a play-off.

McLean was never down in the play-off. He was even par for the first nine holes and three strokes ahead at that point, a birdie 4 at the seventh offsetting for a poor chip which lost a stroke at the short fifth. Hampton had two 6s on his card, one at the third hole, where he was trapped, and another at the eighth, where, in addition to being in trouble, he required three putts.

Even for Five Holes.

They went along on even terms for the first five holes after the turn, but McLean picked up another stroke at the fifteenth. The seventeenth again nearly wrecked him. Taking a brassie for his second, he was bunkered, just got out on his third, and then after a poor approach putt had to sink a long one to save his six. Hampton had a birdie 4.

BRASS BAND MEETS JONES IN ATLANTA

Crowd of 2,500 Enthusiastically Greets New Golf King on Arrival Home.

ATLANTA, Ga., July 17.—Bobby Jones came home today with his national open golf championship and was met at the train by hundreds of admirers and representatives of civic organizations and the Atlantic Athletic Club, whose colors he carried at Inwood through the championship tournament.

Accompanied by a brass band, the new titleholder was taken through the principal business streets and finally to his home, where he is to be let alone, officially, until next week, when he is to be given a big dinner at a near-by resort. Riding on the train with him were Governor Walker and Mayor Sims of Atlanta. They had been out of the city and were among the first to telegraph their congratulations to Jones upon his victory.

The crowd that greeted the champion today had swelled over the years, as Atlanta's own, progressed in goldom. Every time Bobby has gone away, since he was 14 years old and finished high up in the tourneys, he has found a royal welcome upon his return. He came back with the real goods today, and the city, so to speak, was his.

It was estimated that 2,500 persons surged the suburban depot. The champion was hoisted on shoulders and carried to waiting automobiles that comprised the parade, while the crowd sang a sketch prepared for the occasion and having as its theme that he should have been titleholder "forty-five years ago." Jones is 21 years old.

The crowd in its enthusiasm rendered honor also to "Kiltie" Maiden, who gave Bobby his first lessons in the game and has since acted as his golf adviser.

The lower house of the Georgia Legislature, now in session, also took note of Jones's achievement who nit adopted a resolution congratulating him.

MET. OPEN TO START TODAY.

Hagen, Sarazen and Other Leading Pros in Play at Summit.

All the leading professional golfers with but a few exceptions, notably Jock Hutchison, start their second great struggle of the month today with the commencement of the Metropolitan Open Championship tournament on the Canoe Brook Club course at Summit. N.J. Bobby Jones, the new national title holder; Francis Ouimet, former national champion; Jess Sweetser, national amateur king, and Chick Evans and other leading amateurs have departed for other scenes. But Hagen, Sarazen, Farrell, Barnes, Kirkwood, Cruickshank and the other stars in the professional class have lingered around the metropolitan district since last week's play at Inwood in order to make their efforts to wrest the Metropolitan title from O'Loughlan, who will defend the honors he won last year.

Play will start this morning at 9 o'clock, with James Dante and Larry Brooks the first pair scheduled to drive off the first tee.

Special to The New York Times.

SHAWNEE ON THE DELAWARE, Pa., July 17.—Louis Costello, professional at the Millburn Country Club, Baldwin, L. I., entered golf's hall of fame today by holing out in one on the 108-yard fifth hole in the third round of the Shawnee invitation tournament. The hole is a blind one and Costello, after playing a shot that he thought to be dead to the pin, was amazed not to find his ball on the green when he walked up the hill. After searching around in the bunkers and rough Costello's caddie suggested that they had better take a peep into the hole and there the ball was. Getting a hole in one is a rarity in tournament play. Hutchison got one in the British open which he won two years ago, and the feat played no small part in his ultimate victory. Not so with Costello today, however, for he was unable to finish up among the leaders.

KATONAH HANDICAP IS WON BY ROCKET

McAtee's Fine Ride Lands Whitney Entry in Front by a Head Over Dry Moon.

PAULA SHAY EASY VICTOR

Shuffle Along Sets Empire City Track Record for Mile and Seventy Yards.

After having been apparently beaten, Jockey McAtee rode a brilliant finish on Harry Payne Whitney's Rocket to win the Katonah Handicap by a head from C. A. Stoneham's Dry Moon at the Empire City track yesterday afternoon. The two had raced at the head of their field for the whole of six furlongs of the race, being lapped all the way. At the head of the stretch Rocket had only a head advantage of Dry Moon. Under a vigorous ride by Rice the bay son of Olambala came up into the lead and the crowds in the stands felt certain that Rocket would be beaten. Then McAtee made a last desperate attempt and Rocket just poked his head in front at the winning post. The race was run in the excellent time of 1:08 3-5 over a fast track. Rocket carried top weight of 126 pounds, conceding four to Dry Moon and twenty to J. S. Cosden's Good Times, which finished third.

It was a field day for little McAtee, who piloted three winners during the course of the afternoon. There was an unexpectedly large attendance and late comers found that the programs were sold out. It was not a successful day for the form players, as only three favorites came through. A new track record for a mile and seventy yards was established by J. E. Widener's Shuffle Along in the second race which was won in 1:42 3-5, clipping 1-5 of a second off St. Isidore's record in 1918.

Nine went to the post in the Katonah with Rocket the public choice, closing at 13 to 5. Dry Moon also was in high favor at 16 to 5, with a lot of support for J. S. Ward's Indian Trail at 3 to 1.

Rocket broke well and immediately went to the front, with Dry Moon in attendance. H. M. Howard's St. Allan had some early speed and was not far from the leaders until they were nearly around the turn, after which he stopped. Bluemont also suffered interference around the turn, which killed any chances the other Cosden starter might have had. Good times was away slowly, but ran a good race, and only two and a half lengths separated him from Dry Moon at the finish.

There was no protest over the bumping and roughing in the middle stages of the race, but there was an unexpected one from Rice, who had the mount on Dry Moon. Rice claimed that McAtee kicked his horse in the exciting finish, and McAtee was also called in. He denied the charge and James McLaughlin, the patrol judge, reported that there had been no foul. Rice's protest was dismissed as frivolous.

Paula Shay, the three-year-old black filly by George Smith-Affiance, which was the winner of the Rockland Purse last Friday in the colors of J. L. Holland, was an easy winner of the Palisades Purse yesterday afternoon at a mile and a sixteenth. The filly was claimed out of the race last week by Joe Marrone, and she ran in his colors yesterday. After this winning effort she was claimed back by Holland for $4,000.

James Butler's bay filly Variation carried off the Sunshine Purse, a selling event for juveniles at five and a half furlongs, beating the favorite, Billy Warren, in handy fashion by two and a half lengths.

Bridge Will Interfere With Crew Races on Charles River

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., July 17.—A temporary bridge, which is being erected over the Charles River, will prevent the rowing of college races over the full one and seven-eighths course next year. The bridge, which will be used until the completion of the new cottage farm structure is ready for use, has been erected 200 yards to the lee of the present starting line at the bridge. A Henley course will be remeasured by Harvard authorities, it is said.

ETHELINDA FIRST IN MICHIGAN TROT

Wins Grand Circuit Race for Three-Year-Olds — Geers Fails to Break Record.

KALAMAZOO, Mich., July 17.—Races for three-year-old and two-year-old colts held the interest of horsemen at today's Grand Circuit meeting. Ethelinda, a Peter the Great colt, driven by Walter Cox, won the three-year-old event in straight heats. Taliman's Hollyrood Leonard and Ilo Guy, the second Cox entry in this event, furnished most of the opposition.

The two-year-old trot was won by Mister McElwayn, driven by Ben White. He stepped the two miles in 2:09¾ each, good time for the event. It was Pop Geers Day at the track, and there was a large crowd out to see the veteran driver attempt to lower the local track record of 2:00, made by Single G. in 1916. Geers drove his pacer, Sanardo, but the best he could do was 2:01½. Bosco Putnam of Davidson, Mich., piloted Glenn P. to victory in the 2:18 pace. The 2:09 pace resulted in a victory for Radio over a small field.

RUMSON POLO FOUR WINS BY ONE GOAL

Defeats Whippany Freebooters, 9-8, as Jones Scores in Last Minute of Play.

Special to The New York Times.

RUMSON, N. J., July 17.—In a hard-fought polo game which was decided in the last few seconds of play, the Rumson four defeated the Whippany Freebooters by the score of 9 goals to 8 at the Rumson Country Club today.

Rumson outplayed its opponents during the first half, leading the Freebooters by 6 to 3 at the rest period. General Borden and W. S. Jones Jr. had scored three goals each. The Whippany players improved in the second half. Harry East got loose on several occasions and tied the score at 8-8 in the latter part of the final chukker. With but a few seconds to play, Jones got on the ball and with a beautiful aerial shot scored the winning tally as the bell rang.

M. B. Metcalf Jr. was unmounted in the initial chukker when his pony slipped but escaped injury. C. F. Berg was also thrown from his pony when he tried to ride off Jones, who was on the ball at the time. J. C. Ford Johnston Jr. played a strong game at back and prevented a goal in the final chukker. General Borden's fine mallet work and accurate shooting also featured.

This was the third game in the Rumson Country Club tournament. Tomorrow the Flamingoes will meet Camp Vail and the Miami Valley four from Dayton, Ohio, will play the Green River team.

The score:

RUMSON (9).	WHIPPANY FREEBOOTERS (8).
No. 1—W. S. Jones Jr.	No. 1—E. H. Tower.
No. 2—General H. S. Borden.	No. 2—Harry East.
No. 3—M. B. Metcalf Jr.	No. 3—H. B. Albright Jr.
Back—J. F. Johnston Jr.	Back—C. F. Berg.

Goals—Rumson: Borden 4, Jones 5. Whippany Freebooters: East 6, Albright 2, Tower 1. Referee—C. S. Lee.

Will Carry 126 Pounds in the Mount Kisco Stakes Today.

The Westmont Stable's Tryster, five-year-old son of Peter Pan and Tryst, is asked to carry top weight of 126 pounds in the $3,000 Mount Kisco Stakes, the feature of this afternoon's card at the Empire City track at Yonkers. A field of five was named overnight, with J. S. Cosden's three-year-old Dunlin next in the favor of the handicapper, with an impost of 119 pounds. He will give ten pounds to the Greentree Stable's Moonraker, while the latter's stablemate, Galantman, and Frank J. Farrell's Horologe will carry 114 pounds each. The race will be run over the course of a mile and seventy yards.

The presence of a race at a mile and a quarter recalls the old days, when races over a distance for platers were held every few days. This is the Old Hickory Purse and seven were named, with Ray Jay having the post of honor The Fishkill Claiming Handicap at a mile has attracted a field of eleven, with Rev. Jay having the post of honor with 120 pounds. Big fields are likely to go to the post in the first two races on the card, claiming events, with 21 and 23 entries, respectively.

DETROIT BOATS WINNERS.

Take Most of Power Events in Interlake Regatta.

PUT IN BAY, Ohio, July 17.—Detroit entries were the winners in most of the Inter-lake Yachting Association regatta power boat events here this afternoon, annexing almost as many firsts as Toledo entries claimed in the sailboat races this afternoon. Baby Gar won in Class B, Whitewood in Class E and You Tell Em in Class J. All are Detroit boats. Comfort, Put In Bay Yacht Club, won in Class A and Navajo III in the G, or large cruiser, class.

Under the rules of the regatta the boats finishing first in their respective classes the most times in three races will be declared the winners and rewarded with trophies and pennants accordingly. The second series of races is scheduled for tomorrow, the sailboat races in the forenoon and the power boat races in the afternoon.

WILLIAMS EXTENDED AT LONGWOOD NETS

Special to The New York Times.

CHESTNUT HILL, Mass., July 17.—Both the singles and doubles of the thirty-first annual lawn tennis tournament of the Longwood Cricket Club were carried through on schedule today, the courts being in much better condition than they were yesterday. There were no upsets. Interest centred mainly in the play of R. Norris Williams 2d of Philadelphia, who was unable to get here on the opening day and had to play two singles and one doubles match this afternoon.

Williams's first opponent was W. W. Ingraham of Providence, who fought valiantly for two sets. Ingraham won the first set 8—6, and the score was 5 all in the second before Williams finally struck his pace and won at 7—5. The Philadelphian continued to improve through the third set and won, 6—3. Williams's second match, against H. W. Seabury of Longwood, was won easily at 6—1, 6—2, 6—1. Paired with Nat Niles in the doubles, he gained another victory quickly, defeating Martin and Turner of Newton, 6—2, 6—3.

Shimizu Bothered by Injury.

Williams and Niles seem due to meet the Japanese pair, Shimizu and Fukuda, who played one match today and won without much trouble. The Japanese players are behind the field, as Shimizu is still bothered by the injury which kept him out of the singles. The Nipponese probably will play A. De Casenova and R. Kettell of Boston tomorrow morning and then meet Williams and Niles in the afternoon. The Californians, Wallace Bates and Harvey Snodgrass, won in impressive fashion from R. Johnston of Pittsburgh and T. A. Robinson of Boston, losing only two games in the first set and taking the second at love.

Phil Neer and James Davies of Leland Stanford played two doubles matches and won them both in straight sets. First, they beat Abbott and Marlow of Longwood, 6—0, 6—1, and then, in the only match played in the third round, the Californians disposed of H. H. Whitman and G. Lyon of Longwood, 6—3, 6—2. In the singles, Bates took three straight sets from Hoffman Nickerson of New York, 6—3, 6—1, 6—0. Snodgrass had no trouble with Sidney Beals of Longwood, whom he defeated in three sets, losing only one game in each frame. Nat Niles won from G. P. Gardner, and Neer defeated Del Tunis of Boston, 6—0, 6—1, 6—2. The veteran player Harry Johnson, paired with G. P. Gardner Jr., disposed of the young Californians, Stratford and Bryant, in doubles, 6—1, 1—6, 6—3.

Refuses Default.

S. Kashio, one of the three Japanese players in the tournament, advanced by default in the singles, and, with L. B. Brice of Boston, beat Greenough and Bundy of Longwood, 6—3, 6—1. Arnold Jones and W. W. Ingraham won by default. W. J. McQueeney of Worcester had a default from R. N. Bradlee of Boston, but several hours after the scheduled time of the match Bradlee appeared on the courts, stating that he had overslept. McQueeney declined to take the default. He insisted on playing and was beaten, 6—3, 6—2, 6—4.

Tomorrow Nat Niles and Phil Neer will play one of the feature matches in singles. Fukuda and Wallace Bates will meet in a second, while Harvey Snodgrass will face G. G. Plimpton of Longwood. Arnold Jones's opponent in the fourth round will be "Rab" Seaver of Longwood, who has won three comparatively easy matches.

The summaries:

Singles, Second Round—R. N. Williams 2d, Philadelphia, defeated W. W. Ingraham, Providence, 8—6, 5—7, 6—3.

Third Round—R. N. Williams 2d, Philadelphia, defeated R. W. Seabury, Longwood, 6—1, 6—2, 6—1; R. N. Bradlee, Boston, defeated W. J. McQueeney, Worcester, 6—3, 2—6, 6—2; M. Fukuda, Japan, defeated Karl Pfaffman, Quincy, 6—1, 1—6, 6—4, 6—1; Wallace Bates, San Francisco, defeated Hoffman Nickerson, New York, 6—3, 6—1, 6—0; Carl Fischer, Philadelphia, defeated C. Bryant, Angeles, 6—4, 6—4; J. S. Nicholl, Longwood, defeated J. E. Russell, Longwood, 6—1, 5—7, 6—2, 6—3; Arnold W. Jones, Providence, defeated John Nelson, Manchester, N. H., 6—4, 6

RICKARD TO CONFER WITH KEARNS TODAY

Promoter Expects to Clinch Match Between Jack Dempsey and Luis Firpo.

CONTRACT IS IRONCLAD

Tex Declares South American Cannot Fight for Title for Any One Else This Year.

A definite announcement on the proposed world's heavyweight championship bout between Jack Dempsey and Luis Angel Firpo is expected tomorrow. Promoter Tex Rickard, who is angling for this fistic plum, had no new developments to report yesterday. Jack Kearns, manager of Dempsey, reported negotiations at a standstill so far as the champion was concerned, and Firpo, the challenger, was not in town. Firpo is expected to return here this morning. A conference is planned for this afternoon between Rickard and Kearns, when, it is expected, the complicated situation surrounding this match will be clarified.

Rickard is confident he will sign the match for a date around Labor Day. He has several details to arrange, however, before articles can be signed. What these details are the promoter is keeping to himself. He said yesterday that he does not intend to discuss intimate details of the match in advance. He does not want to acquaint rival promoters with his plans.

Rickard denied that there existed any differences between himself and Firpo over financial matters in connection with a heavyweight championship bout for the South American challenger.

An Ironclad Contract.

"Firpo is signed to an ironclad contract with me," said Rickard. "This contract provides that Firpo must fight Dempsey for me, and me only, if I can arrange the match before the end of this year. I feel sure I can arrange the match. As a matter of fact, it is almost closed now. Only a few details remain, and I expect to clear these up by Thursday at the latest.

"As to where the bout will be held I have not decided. It may be held here and it may go to Argentina. I am not fooling on this South American proposition. It is an even money bet right now that Dempsey and Firpo will clash in the Argentine when they box for me. I have long since learned my lesson from depending too strongly upon any one place. I do not intend again to be confined to any one locality with any important bouts I contemplate. Kearns has told me he is ready to permit Dempsey to box Firpo any place. Dempsey is ready to go to the Argentine if necessary, and Firpo wants to box the champion before his countrymen. Of course, I would prefer to have the bout around here, but I am not overlooking any locality which proves attractive."

Rickard said he is eager to close the match without further delay. In fact, he practically admitted that he must have some definite word on the bout by tomorrow. Firpo is scheduled to leave this city tomorrow to start an exhibition tour which will keep the South American busy until July 31. If the completion of arrangements for the proposed bout is delayed until Firpo's return it will be too late, Rickard said, to insure success for the bout. The promoter said he wanted to close the match at least six weeks in advance of the battle date.

Wills Bout Pending.

Another reason for speed in either signing or discarding the proposed Dempsey-Firpo clash is the desire to clear the path for a bout between Dempsey and Harry Wills, New Orleans negro challenger. This match is proposed for a date in advance of the World's Series at the Yankee Stadium, and the officials of the Cromwell A. C. are eager to sign the bout. The desire of Kearns to have Dempsey first box Firpo, however, is delaying the signing of a Dempsey-Wills match.

Kearns did not visit Rickard yesterday at Madison Square Garden. The champion's manager communicated with the promoter over the telephone and learned that Rickard had no new developments. Kearns made an appointment with Rickard for this afternoon at the Garden. Kearns reiterated that he had not yet signed any contract or agreement for either of the proposed bouts.

"I'm still waiting on the promoters. They know what I want for either or both of the proposed matches. I'm waiting to hear from them, ready to sign when they give me the word," said Kearns.

WHITE IN RING TONIGHT.

Chicago Lightweight Meets Mitchell at New York Velodrome.

Charlie White, veteran Chicago lightweight, will attempt to demonstrate his qualifications for a lightweight championship bout tonight at the New York Velodrome. The Chicagoan is scheduled for a fifteen-round bout against Richie Mitchel, rugged Milwaukee lightweight, as the feature of an attractive card. This contest will witness the third clash between the lightweights. Their first meeting was a no-decision affair. In their second, held last December in Madison Square Garden, White scored a knockout victory after a spectacular encounter. The winner of tonight's match is expected to secure a bout against the winner of the Benny Leonard-Lew Tendler battle. A knockout is expected. Considerable betting has been reported, with even money being offered that the bout does not go the limit of fifteen rounds. Both boxers are reported in shape and ready for a hard battle.

The semi-final of twelve rounds is expected to furnish an exciting scrap. The principals will be Carl Duane and Phil Rosenberg, rival Bronx bantamweights. Eddie (Cannonball) Martin and Joe Eyler are slated for six rounds. The opening four-round encounter will bring together Jack Stark and Jimmy Hutchinson.

Waterbury Releases McCorry.

WATERBURY, Conn., July 17.—Bill McCorry, outfielder and utility pitcher for the Waterbury club, was released unconditionally today. He formerly managed the Albany club and was also with Pittsfield.

Firpo in Tame Exhibition With Sparring Partner

OGDENSBURG, N. Y., July 17.—Luis Angel Firpo, conqueror of Jess Willard and aspirant for Jack Dempsey's heavyweight crown, lumbered through a lethargic six-round exhibition no-decision bout with his sparring partner, Natalio Pera, at the Fair Grounds here today. Pera, who weighed in at 196, appeared to take the offensive throughout, and won what few plaudits the crowd of 800 had to give. Firpo planned to leave for New York tonight, en route to Boston, where he is to appear in an exhibition bout tomorrow night.

COMMISSION STOPS LYNCH-BURMAN BOUT

Champion Must Explain Violation of Rule or Match for Sept. 14 Is Off.

Joe Lynch's scheduled championship battle against Joe Burman, Chicago bantamweight, at Madison Square Garden on the night of Sept. 14, will not be permitted by the State Athletic Commission unless Lynch and his manager, Eddie Mead, make satisfactory explanation to the boxing governing body of their failure to observe the commission's rule on championship challenges. The world's bantamweight titleholder yesterday was suspended indefinitely for failure to comply with the six-months challenge rule, and announcement was made that Burman, who had a challenge reposing with the commission for the last six months, would be recognized as champion.

Chairman William Muldoon of the commission declared that the board had received no notification that the Lynch-Burman match had been closed. He added that the proposed bout would not be permitted until Lynch and his manager had satisfied the commission with an explanation of why Burman's challenge was ignored so long and why the match was made without either consulting or advising with the commission.

Mead was suspended indefinitely at yesterday's meeting of the commission for his part in the bout last Monday night at Newark, N. J., between Mickey Walker, whose world's welterweight championship had been declared vacated, and Nate Seigel of Boston. Mead is the manager of Seigel and his suspension resulted from the fact that he handled a boxer against a man under suspension in this State.

The situation surrounding the world's middleweight championship title was definitely cleared when Johnny Wilson, Boston boxer who gained the title from Mike O'Dowd, and Harry Greb, Pittsburgh light-heavyweight, appeared before the commission and consented to be matched at the Polo Grounds on Aug. 21. Complications arising out of this match were responsible for the suspension of Wilson during the indoor season of 1921-22. In granting its sanction to the match the commission insisted both Wilson and Greb that neither boxer will be permitted to take part in any bout in advance of the Polo Grounds match. Further, the commission instructed the boxers to engage in at least four or five weeks of training in country quarters away from this city.

The rule requiring amateurs to give ninety days' notice before becoming professionals was changed to read sixty days.

GIBBONS TO ENTER MOVIES.

Boxer Will Sign One of Five Contracts Offered Him.

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 17.—Five motion picture companies are bidding for the services of Tommy Gibbons, St. Paul heavyweight boxer, Eddie Kane, his manager, said today. Four offers have been received from California producing firms and a fifth from New York. One company wishes to star Tommy in a serial story of twelve episodes, one in a thrilling romance and the others would leave the plot to Gibbons and Kane.

Kane said that he would accept one of the offers as soon as satisfactory arrangements can be completed. Gibbons, however, now has a vaudeville contract calling for fourteen weeks.

LEONARD CONFIDENT OF MAKING WEIGHT

Expects to Tip Scales at 134 Pounds for Title Bout With Tendler.

Satisfied with his condition and confident he will be able to make the lightweight limit without weakening himself, Benny Leonard feels sure he will retain his world's lightweight championship against Lew Tendler, Philadelphia southpaw challenger, when they clash Monday night in a fifteen-round bout at the Yankee Stadium. The title holder today plans to enter upon four days of intensive training at his camp at Tannersville, N. Y. Leonard expects to end his training on Saturday and return here Sunday. The champion's weight yesterday was reported at 136 pounds. Leonard is confident he will weigh 134 pounds, one pound under the class limit, when he steps on the scales Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

"I am feeling fine and will be ready for a hard bout when I enter the ring against Tendler," said Leonard. "I am satisfied with my condition and I am satisfied, too, that I am going to give Tendler the beating of his life. I have been sparring daily in my training with left-hand boxers, and have perfected a method of attack which will minimize the confusion which ordinarily results in bouts between boxers of right and left hand styles. After I beat Tendler the other challengers can have bouts if they want them. White, Friedman, Kansas, Mitchell or any others who care to challenge. Billy Gibson can make as many matches for me as he likes. I am not thinking of returning to the stage, but I have changed my plan. If I can't get one or two more bouts before the end of the year I may take my family on that delayed trip to Europe. Maybe I could get some lucrative matches over there."

Tendler, under instruction from his manager, Phil Glassman, is tapering off in his training. The challenger is reported within a few pounds of the weight and Glassman is satisfied that the need for heavy work in the camp at Delanco, N. J., is a thing of the past. Against Joe Saunders, Jerry Hayes and Joe Libby, welterweights, Tendler boxed six rounds. He devoted some attention to shadow boxing, punching the bag and tussling about the ring with his camp mates. The challenger is confident that he will overcome Leonard's speed, cleverness and boxing skill and gain the title Leonard has held for the last six years.

Betting on the outcome of the battle was reported more active yesterday. In the Wall Street district W. L. Darnell reported wagers of $2,000 against $2,000 that Leonard will retain his title. The Tendler end of the bet was assumed by several Philadelphians. The firm announced that it has $9,000 to offer at odds of 9 to 5 that Leonard will outpoint Tendler and is offering $2,000 at odds of 5 to 7 that Leonard wins by a knockout. Inquiries are reported coming from different parts of Pennsylvania regarding the betting odds.

It was learned that an order for a special pair of gloves to be used in the title bout has been sent to Sol Levinson, San Francisco sporting goods manufacturer, with instructions to have the gloves delivered here by Saturday. A new scale, said to be tested and approved by the United States Bureau of Weights and Measures, will be used when the boxers weigh in Monday afternoon at two o'clock, according to an announcement made yesterday.

Murphy to Race Abroad.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 17.—Jimmy Murphy, 1922 automobile speed king, plans to leave here next Thursday for Europe, where he will drive an American car built in Los Angeles in the Italian Grand Prix at Monza on Sept. 9, and in a race at Barcelona, Spain, Nov. 4.

Stanton Allowed Prior Claim To Regain Shelby Bout Loss

GREAT FALLS, Mont., July 17.—At a private meeting of the largest creditors of the Dempsey-Gibbons fight promotion organization, held here, George H. Stanton, representing the Stanton Bank and Trust Company, which closed its doors last week, was allowed a prior claim in settlement of the debts of the promoters, according to information obtained from attorneys representing some of the creditors. Creditors holding about $160,000 of the debts were represented at the meeting, it was said. Mr. Stanton's claim of $50,000 is for money advanced as half of the $100,000 paid Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, June 15. Profits from the motion picture rights will be the source of possible payment to the creditors.

79,526 SAW FIGHT BY OFFICIAL COUNT

Government Figures Give Gross Receipts of Firpo-Willard Contest as $390,837.

TRENTON, N. J., July 17.—There were not 100,000 people at the Willard-Firpo fight July 12 at Boyle's Thirty Acres, Jersey City. The actual attendance was 79,526, according to a letter received today by Allan Trimble, Chairman of the State Boxing Commission, from Frank Ferguson, Federal Internal Revenue Collector for the Northern District of New Jersey. There were 75,712 paid admissions and 2,788 complimentary and 1,026 press tickets.

Gross receipts amounted to $390,837, 10 per cent. of which, $39,083.70, was paid to the United States Government and $35,175.33 to the State as tax, $316,077.97 remaining for the promoters. The paid admissions were apportioned as follows:

At $1, 7,576, or $5,576; at $2, 16,670, or $33,340; at $3, 10,584, or $46,092; at $5, 16,064, or $80,320; at $7, 6,887, or $48,209; at $10, 9,513, or $95,130, and at $15, 6,488, or $81,570.

Despite the detailed statement of the official ticket count issued at Trenton, N. J., yesterday, Promoter Tex Rickard insisted that his estimate of 100,000 spectators at the Jess Willard-Luis Firpo bout in Jersey City last Thursday night was not excessive. The promoter declared that the figure he placed on the attendance was reasonable when all firemen, policemen, ushers, vendors and other employes were included. In addition to the vast crowds which swarmed over the guards and "crashed" the gates or gained admittance through scaling the high fence of the arena with the aid of ladders.

MATCH NOW UP TO BOXERS.

French Federation Drops Carpentier-Siki Negotiations.

PARIS, July 17.—Neither Georges Carpentier nor Battling Siki having complied with the request of the French Boxing Federation to sign up before July 16 for a match which the Federation undertook to organize for the benefit of scientific research, the Federation has decided to abandon the undertaking and leave it to the two boxers to arrange a match between themselves or not, as they please.

M'CRAY PROHIBITS BOUT IN INDIANA

Governor Refuses Permission for a Match Between Dempsey and Gibbons.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 17.—Governor McCray has refused a group of local business men permission to stage a Dempsey-Gibbons fight in Indianapolis, it became known today, but the promoters are going ahead with their plans, in the hope of holding the match at Fort Benjamin Harrison, a Government reservation just north of the city. Members of the group, in commenting on the Governor's refusal to permit holding of the match here, declared they are of the opinion the Executive's juriadiction does not extend over the Government property.

Following the announcement of the business men, Governor McCray said he would ask the Attorney General for an opinion as to whether he is empowered to prohibit the match at Fort Harrison, and added:

"It is my impression that I am Governor of all Indiana, and not just part of it."

Whether the promoters will be able to obtain permission from army officials to stage the fight at the fort, also is problematical. Although professional boxing matches are held on the reservation weekly, Colonel Allen B. Parker, Commandant, said tonight he would not grant permission for the staging of a match of the dimensions of a heavyweight championship contest. The Indianapolis men will have to get permission for such a contest from the War Department, he said.

BUFF'S CAREER ENDS IN DEFEAT BY CATENA

Former Champion's Manager Tosses Towel in Ring During Ninth Round.

Henry Catena, Greenwich Village flyweight, shattered the "come-back" dreams of Johnny Buff, former world's bantamweight champion, last night in a scheduled ten-round bout at the Queensboro A. C., Long Island City. Under a terrific shower of rights and lefts to the jaw and body, Catena battered Buff to such an extent that Lew Diamond, Buff's manager, tossed a towel into the ring fifty-seven seconds after the start of the ninth round—a mute token of defeat for the Jersey City veteran.

Buff was on the floor being counted out when the towel came into the ring. Three times he was sent down and twice he regained his feet without waiting for a count. In the seventh session Catena floored Buff under a wicked assault, and soon after the start of the ninth Catena again floored the former champion with well-directed blows to the jaw. On both knockdowns Buff came erect without delay. After the second knockdown, however, Buff was helpless, and a right to the jaw sent him down for the third time. Then the towel came flying through the air, the signal for Buff's defeat and the end of his ring career.

Manager Diamond announced after the bout that he would not sign any more bouts for Buff. The little Jerseyite was to have boxed in Aurora, Ill., Friday night, and at Terre Haute, Ind., a week later, but these matches have been canceled, in the knowledge that Buff is through as a boxer.

In the semi-final of ten rounds Sammy Cohen won the decision over Manny Wexler. Joe Dillon won the decision over Harry Aarons in another ten-round skirmish.

MATCH RACE WON BY WILLIE SPENCER

Defeats Piani and Eaton in Mile Event at Velodrome—Goullett Double Victor.

Willie Spencer, American bicycle champion, took four heats to defeat Orlando Piani, Italian star, and Ray Eaton, the champion of 1919, in a three-cornered match race decided in mile heats at the New York Velodrome last night before a gathering of 15,000 fans. The rules of the race stipulated that one rider had to win two heats to be declared the winner. Spencer was the speediest man in the first heat and outsprinted Eaton and Piani in that order. Piani came back in the second heat and, riding from in front, beat Eaton and Spencer. Eaton won the third heat from Piani and Spencer. A fourth and deciding heat was necessary and Spencer succeeded in winning, beating Piani and Eaton.

It was also a big evening for Alf Goullett, who won the mile open early in the night by beating Pete Van Kempen and an hour later came through with a victory over Van Kempen in a five-mile tandem paced match race.

Frank Corry of Austria, paced by Otto Miller of Brooklyn, won the twenty-mile motor-paced race and created a new track record. Corry whirled around the saucer following the sputtering motor in 27 minutes 51 4-5 seconds. The former record was 27:52 4-5. Corry and Clarence Carman of Jamaica, Long Island, had a great duel all the way, but Carman cracked with a mile and one-half to go and Corry rode around him. Willie Ziyt was pacing Carman, and before he realized that Carman was not behind him he was a quarter of a lap away. Ziyt's result Paul Verkyn, paced by Jean Villepontaux of France, raced into second place and battled Corry to the tape, losing out by not more than twenty yards. Carman was third.

Cecil Walker, riding from scratch, won the two-mile handicap, beating Mario Bergamini, who was also on scratch. Walker spreadeagled the field on the last lap. Grenda was third from ten yards, and McNamara, who had ten yards, was fourth. The time, 3:55 3-5, was very fast.

The summaries:

Half-Mile Handicap, Amateur—Won by Louis Maya, New York City (80 yards); Harold MacLean, Newark (75 yards), second; J. Glotsin, Empire City Wheelmen (30 yards), third; A. Lane, Acme Wheelmen (35 yards), fourth; Gene Curry, Newark (60 yards), fifth. Time—0:55 1-5.

One-Mile Open, Paced, Professional—Won by Alfred Goullet, Newark; Pete Van Kempen, Holland, second; Arthur Spencer, Newark, third; Alf Grenda, Tasmania, fourth; Willie Keller, Newark, fifth; Cecil Walker, Australia, sixth; Willie Spencer, Newark, seventh. Time—1:09 1-5.

One-Mile Open (amateur)—Won by Henry Bruhn, Philadelphia; Charles Winter, New York City, second; Willie Winn, Bayview Wheelmen, third; Louis Benezatti, Unione Sportiva Italiana, fourth; Arthur Nemo, Unione Sportiva Italiana, fifth. Time—2:05 4-5.

Two-Mile Handicap (professional)—Won by Cecil Walker, Australia (scratch); Mario Bergamini, Italy (scratch), second; Alfred Grenda, Tasmania (10 yards), third; Reggie McNamara, Newark (10 yards), fourth; Bobby Walthour Jr., Newark (60 yards), fifth; Jacob Magin, Irvington (35 yards), sixth; Fred Spencer, Plainfield (35 yards), seventh. Time—3:55 3-5.

N. Y. A. C. HONORS NOBLES.

Golfers Raise Fund to Make Him Life Member of Club.

One hundred and sixty-eight players competed for the various golf prizes offered in the New York Athletic Club's one-day tournament at the Westchester Hills Country Club, White Plains, N. Y., yesterday, but Charles C. Nobles gained the greatest honors although not among the golfers.

After J. G. Anderson had equaled the amateur record for the course and thereby won the low gross prize with a round of 95, and J. J. Slattery had captured the low net honors, obtaining a 76, which with his handicap of 26 gave him a 73, a drive was made to raise $500 toward a fund to make Nobles a life member of the N. Y. A. C. Before the contributions had finished pouring in over $1,000 had been raised, and besides the membership a perpetual cup will be donated in Nobles's name to be competed for annually.

McTIGUE MAY SAIL AUG. 15.

Will Leave on That Date Unless He Gets Title Bout Here.

Unless he is advised today of some definite plans for a match in which Mike McTigue will defend his world's light-heavyweight championship title around Aug. 15, Joe Jacobs announced yesterday that he intended to discard plans for a bout for McTigue in this country and take his champion abroad for several matches he has under consideration. Jacobs said he has been seeking for the last several days to interest Promoter Tex Rickard in a bout in which McTigue would face either Gene Tunney, American light-heavyweight champion, or Tom Gibbons, St. Paul light-heavyweight. Rickard yesterday told Jacobs he would attempt to give the manager definite answer this morning at 11 o'clock.

Corns

Just Say Blue-jay

The simplest way to end a corn is Blue-jay. Relieves the pain and the corn soon disappears. Made in clear liquid and in thin plasters. The action is the same.

NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, JULY 18, 1923.

THE MINNESOTA PROTEST.

MR. LA FOLLETTE has another Senator. President HARDING and the Republican Party have received another ominous warning. Governor PREUS, an able and popular man, an old friend of KNUTE NELSON and inheritor of his common sense, moderation and patriotism, has been beaten by a picturesque and amusing dirt farmer, who seems to be of the shallowest intellectual content, a vague promise maker devoid of constructive notions and mostly uncertain as to the means of remedying the grievances which have swept him into office. He may grow at Washington; he needs to. In Minnesota the cynical call him "Yenerally speaking JOHNSON." He is not important save as the temporary vehicle of an immense irritation and discontent.

It was absurd for Mr. LA FOLLETTE to denounce Governor PREUS as a representative of private monopoly and the special interests. He is no hidebound Republican. The mine owners in the Iron Range district were displeased by his signature on the Occupation Tax bill. He made co-operative marketing one of his main issues. Mr. JOHNSON accused Governor PREUS of stealing "Socialist thunder."

In fact, nothing could beat JOHNSON. In vain did Governor PREUS seek to isolate himself from the Washington Administration. In vain did he proclaim himself a low-tariff man, and so seek to placate the farmers, who feel themselves buncoed by the Emergency tariff and the Fordney-McCumber tariff; feel, as farmers very largely do all over the West, that they have had a merely phantom protection for their products while the price of everything they buy has been jacked up. In vain did he tell the workingmen, reverting to the old fashion, of the tariff that had protected them from foreign competition. Government ownership of railroads an end to injunctions, the diminution of the power of the Supreme Court, the bleeding of "wealth" and the other familiar beauties of Mr. LA FOLLETTE'S and Mr. JOHNSON'S platform attracted labor. MAGNUS is going to have freight rates reduced immediately and keep wages up.

The farmers were "mad clean through." The slump in wheat was enough. Socialists, Farmer-Laborers—most of the Democrats—the Non-Partisan League—men and women of all sorts and conditions—smote the Republican Party. The day was fair. The farmers had a chance to stay at home and work. There was no possible excuse. JOHNSON'S majority may reach 70,000 or more. So another Republican Senator is lost in the State which gave HARDING a plurality of 877,000 over Cox. If the disaster is deserved, though not by Governor PREUS, it is none the less regrettable.

The familiar phenomenon of agrarian distress has produced familiar consequences. These may or may not be temporary; and 1924 is another year when Mr. JOHNSON, now chosen only for the short term, will be a candidate for a full term. There is no real community of interest between the farmers and the workingmen; and if miscellaneous groups in Minnesota have united in a local election, that doesn't make probable such union in a national election. The danger is that in view of the dissatisfaction, general throughout the West, with the present economic condition of the farmers, timber-backed politicians of both parties will think of bidding for the farmer and labor vote and swallowing the wild nostrums of Senator LA FOLLETTE.

The Democratic Party tried that sort of thing and wandered in the wilderness long; nor is that party wise if it chuckles over the Minnesota election. Practically, it has been gobbled up in Minnesota. The same thing may happen to it elsewhere, has happened to it in Wisconsin. If anything can save the Republican Party from the defeat which it richly deserves, it will be Democratic paltering with crasy financial and economic doctrines. The farmers blow off their wrath, but they are essentially conservative. If they put up with curious company at a State election when their wrath is hot, they are not long in coming to a cooler temper. Mr. LA FOLLETTE, who is exactly as much of a Republican as MAGNUS JOHNSON, has one more recruit for that far from compact group which holds the balance of power in Congress. The next session is likely to be rich in declamation, poor in achievement. There is no reason for excitement. The result in Minnesota was inevitable. We wish better luck to Governor PREUS next year and invite the farm bloc to wear sackcloth—unless it's on the free list—for at least thirty days.

THE MAYOR'S WAY OUT.

Evil-minded persons are saying that the Mayor went to Albany to embarrass the Governor politically. If Governor SMITH declines to call a special session of the Legislature at Mr. HYLAN'S request, there will be, it is hinted, a fine chance to open on the Governor as a friend of the scoundrelly traction companies. But it is safe to say that no such plot hostile to Governor SMITH could find lodgment in the pure mind of Mayor HYLAN. He is simply consumed with a desire to serve the oppressed people of this city. Beaten in one project, he flings himself impetuously upon another. Far from trying to put other politicians in a hole, he is willing himself to jump into hole after hole. And it should be noted that even in his passionate outburst he is able to beget sufficient temperance to make ready a way of retreat. In his statement yesterday he gave a pretty clear indication of the "position prepared in advance," in the good old German phrase. His words were:

> Let me repeat, if the Legislature does not promptly enact legislation enabling the City of New York to purchase and operate up-to-date, sanitary, commodious, well-lighted, well-heated, well-ventilated, modern buses, the Board of Estimate and Apportionment will have no option but to issue bus franchises to private operating corporations.

Governor SMITH will need only to point to that as the one way out of the muddle into which the Mayor has got himself. Before facing the expense of a special session of the Legislature, the Governor is entitled to demand proof that it would reverse itself at the demand of Mayor HYLAN. There is no evidence that this could be expected. All the evidence is directly to the contrary. The conclusion is inevitable that Governor SMITH would not hurt himself politically, but rather heighten his reputation for seeing things straight, if he advised the Mayor to meet squarely the situation created by the decision of the Court of Appeals, and to see to it that the needed buses are operated in the only method in which they can be under the law.

RESTRICTION VS. COMMON SENSE.

The reason given for the excess of British immigrants during the current month over the quota is that between the time that ships sailed from England and the day of their arrival here a large number of Englishmen who had been sojourning for a few weeks in Canada crossed the border. The quota was thus filled before the ships got in. The aliens they brought now face deportation unless a ruling can be made to permit them to enter and to charge them against the August quota. The injustice of deporting them is obvious to every one. Equally obvious is the absurdity of a provision which can be administered in such a stupid manner. It is difficult to believe that a little more care in administration, a little more co-operation between the Immigration Bureau, the Consular Service and the steamship companies, would not have made such a situation quite unnecessary.

Commissioner CURRAN suggests that the steamship companies ascertain from the Government the status of each quota before sailing. He points out that although the Baltic, which carried most of the excess of British emigrants, sailed on July 7, the immigration authorities had not heard of her load until July 14, by which date the British quota was already exhausted. It seems inconceivable that a steamship line would take a load of immigrants without first being sure that they would be permitted to land. Nor is it easy to believe that our passport bureau could fail to keep a sufficient check on the numbers of visas granted, so that the Government would know ahead of time when a quota would be exhausted. Major CURRAN himself recognizes this fact when he says that "it is a challenge "to human intelligence if the execution "of the quota law cannot be so carried "out as to avoid having a single hu"man being come all the way across "the ocean and then having him go "all the way back simply because we "were not sufficiently acquainted "with the situation beforehand to let "him know what he could expect."

There are troubles enough in the administration of the existing law. But there are several changes which should be incorporated in the revised bill to be presented to Congress next Fall. The first is for the admission of immediate relatives who may be in excess of the quotas, in order to avoid breaking up families. The second is to give to the Commissioner or to a specially appointed board sufficient discretion to act humanely in cases where red tape demands deportation in violation of common sense. The third is to enjoin upon the steamship companies the necessity of assuring themselves before their ships sail that they are not carrying immigrants in excess of the quota. The fourth is to distribute the quotas into ten monthly instalments of 10 per cent. each instead of five instalments of 20 per cent. as at present. In this manner much of the congestion at Ellis Island could be avoided.

MR. GREW DOES IT AGAIN.

For the hundred and forty-seventh time the Lausanne conference has reached complete agreement on all points and is about to dissolve into history, and for the hundred and forty-seventh time The Associated Press reports that this happy consummation is due chiefly to the herculean labors of Mr. JOSEPH C. GREW, head of the American delegation. It is a dull morning that doesn't see Mr. GREW saving the conference all over again.

This last time Mr. GREW really did save the conference, or an important part thereof.

We are given to understand that he won over ISMET Pasha against the pleas of the British, French and Italian delegates. The treaty as provisionally agreed on a few days ago was to embody a number of concessions to European companies made before the war—such as the Turkish Petroleum Company's Mogul arrangement, which rested on very shaky moral grounds and had previously had no legal standing whatsoever; the French railroad concession in the north, which interfered with another end of the Chester project, and so on. This arrangement was a good thing for England and France, it may have been a good thing for Turkey, but it was certainly bad for the United States. To gain it, England, France and Italy had given up about everything else—certainly everything else which could be taken out of the hide of the Greeks and Armenians. They had given up so readily that the prudent ISMET had misgivings, and so far as can be judged from the dispatches was preparing to take back his concessions even before Mr. GREW saw him.

Mr. GREW did see him and persuaded ISMET once more of the virtues of the open door, which permits the Oriental seller to lead the aspirants for concessions to bid against each other. And, after a struggle, the "great Powers" which had already yielded everything that belonged to other people yielded this treasured possession of their own, perhaps in belated homage to the New Testament principle that if a man asks you for your coat, you should give him your cloak also. European diplomacy now stands shivering in the winds from the Swiss glaciers waiting for a chance to go home and buy some new clothes.

If the United States has won a great victory, it is only over England, France and Italy. Our struggle with the Turks, in the negotiation of the separate Turkish-American treaty, is still to come. We might postpone the Te Deums till we see how Mr. GREW comes out of that.

HOPES OF THE ENGLISH LABOR PARTY.

Defeat of Mr. PHILIP SNOWDEN'S motion against the capitalist system by a vote of more than two to one in the House of Commons was only what everybody expected, including the Labor members themselves. They were simply going through a sort of dress parade. They may have thought that their action would give a certain aid and comfort to their friends, the Russian Soviets. The latter came into power as the sworn enemies of capitalism, but since have been embracing as much of it as they could induce to come to their arms. A closely similar process would undoubtedly be followed in England if the Labor Party ever became strong enough to form a Government. This is virtually admitted by the best heads among the Labor leaders.

Mr. SNOWDEN himself has just finished a series of articles in The London Morning Post in answer to the question, "What will happen if and "when a Labor Government comes "into office?" Writing for the favorite organ of the aristocrats, Mr. SNOWDEN naturally did not seek to startle them out of their seven senses. He pitched his hopes rather low, and roared gently. Starting out with a discussion of the chance of the Labor Party ever winning a majority in the House of Commons, he admitted that this was not probable for some years to come. What may first occur, he thought, is the placing of the Labor Party in the position of having more votes in the House of Commons than any other. That would seem to force a Coalition Government. But of this Mr. SNOWDEN would be highly distrustful if it brought the Labor Party into a working agreement with either the Liberals or the Conservatives. What he regards as preferable would be a Coalition Government made up of the other parties, which would presently so fill the cup of capitalist iniquity that the Labor Party would as a result secure a clear majority in the House of Commons with a mandate to form a purely Labor Government.

Supposing this in office, what would it do? Very little, according to Mr. SNOWDEN, to frighten or even disturb the English people. The Labor Party would prove itself to be as nationalist and even Imperial as any other party. Nor in domestic legislation would it proceed by violent measures. Caution would be the note in everything. Nothing would be done to alarm capital or drive it out of Great Britain. To be sure, the Labor Party would be compelled to proceed to nationalize certain industries. Mr. SNOWDEN specifies the land, mines, railways, electric power, banking and insurance. That looks like a large order, but it is explained that it will be executed very gradually and quite painlessly to the patient. There will be nothing like confiscation. The shareholders in companies taken over by the Government will merely have their interest paid to them from the Treasury instead of by the private corporations. Everything will be easy and beautiful and harmonious, if Mr. SNOWDEN and his friends are able to carry out their program, and no one will be a shade the worse for the great transition from private industry to national control.

That there are some "extremists" in the Labor Party Mr. SNOWDEN concedes. But he asserts that they will be kept under. He does not deny that there is danger of a Labor Government becoming a tool of the trade union. But this he believes can be escaped. Altogether, he is in these articles as mild a mannered man as ever scuttled the ship of state. But Monday's vote in the Commons indicates that it will be a long time before he gets a chance to try his hand at it.

THE LID IN ITALY.

Signor MUSSOLINI has evidently concluded that to make Italy great, it is first necessary to make her pure. Each day sees some new measure for the enforcement of virtue. Yesterday it was a decree that the newspapers should print nothing that was untrue, or at least nothing that was unsatisfactory to the Government. Today it is the announcement that after Aug. 1 "no games are permitted which "savor, either openly or secretly, of "gambling." Stern warnings are addressed to officials that there is to be no connivance at violation of the law, no graft. In short, MUSSOLINI is behaving like any leader of a reform administration pledged to extirpate ancient but vicious practices.

Aside from the numberless games of chance at casinos and clubs, there are the national lotteries. They brought in some 329,000,000 lire to the Government last year. They certainly "savor of gambling." It is unthinkable that this new crusade has no higher purpose than to insure the Government a monopoly; presumably the national lotteries will have to go, too. Italians are addicted to a game of chance which requires no apparatus whatever, but is played merely with the fingers. It will be pretty hard to catch all the criminals who indulge in this, but it must be done.

When it is done, Italy will be almost as virtuous as our own moral nation, where lotteries, once sanctioned by a few recreant States, have long been prohibited by law. It is true that we still have lotteries—though we call them by another name. In this city alone millions of dollars are lost, if not won, on them every week. But officially they do not exist; and thus our national conscience is spotless. It is good to see that Italy, too, has chosen the better part.

A MANILA EPISODE.

The resignation of the Philippine Cabinet is not a grave symptom of friction between Governor General LEONARD WOOD and MANUEL QUEZON, President of the Senate. It is true that QUEZON as a politician is often at swords' points with General Wood about details of policy, but their personal relations have been agreeable. The Governor General recognizes QUEZON as a Filipino with a large following who is a man of ability and character. QUEZON realises that General Wood upon his return to the United States will be accepted as an authority upon the capacity of the Filipinos to govern themselves, and that the President and Congress will call him into consultation.

Politically, of course, the Governor General and the President of the Senate have their differences. The Legislature is independent of the Governor General and may reject his recommendations. The Governor General himself is responsible only to the Government at Washington. He may appoint his own Cabinet, but it must be confirmed by the Philippine Senate. The Legislature is often deadlocked for weeks together, and the Governor General can only use his personal influence to get anything done. A man of less experience and force of character than General Wood would be baffled in such a situation.

In the complication that has now resulted in the resignation of the Philippine Cabinet General Wood seems to be in the right. The affair is a good deal of a comedy. The central figure is RAY CONLEY, Chief of the Secret Service, who offended many influential people in Manila by raiding gambling houses. Charges of bribery were preferred against him. Three times he was tried before a Filipino judge and acquitted. General Wood, believing in the integrity of CONLEY, who was an old soldier, directed the Secretary of the Interior, J. P. LAUREL, a graduate of Yale, to reinstate the Chief of the Secret Service. It was never the desire of QUEZON, who interested himself in the matter, to have a public trial. It seems to have been proved that perjury was committed in the attempt to convict CONLEY. The case against him broke down.

General Wood could have had peace by sacrificing the man, but he insisted that he have a square deal. The controversy became political. General Wood was assailed as a dictator, and yet CONLEY was tried before a Filipino Judge. In the end the whole Cabinet resigned, with the President of the Senate pulling the wires.

Social as well as political influences were active, no doubt. The Filipino element might have made an issue of the closing of banks by the Governor General, of his refusal to extend the time for the payment of land taxes, of his recommendation of rubber leases on a large scale, and of his general policy of taking the Government out of business, but the explosion came when an unpopular police officer was reinstated. The cause of the rupture with the Governor General being so grotesque, it would not be surprising if on sober second thought members of the Cabinet decided to withdraw their resignations.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Danger Small, but Real.

People who are afraid of lightning are more apt to get derision than sympathy from those who are not afraid of it, but the timid have the right to say that it is no imaginary danger that excites their alarm, while the courageous can claim only that the risk is small. That, after all, is no excuse for ignoring it. And in many cases what seems to be fear of lightning is less a mental disquietude than a physical disturbance of nerves and viscera, with difficulty distinguished from fear. Indeed, for these are fear's familiar consequences, and yet not the real thing—not cowardice, to be explicit.

It was recently reported that far more than the usual number of deaths from lightning had occurred in Germany this Summer. That means, of course, simply that there have been more than the usual number of thunderstorms, and is not due, as might have been assumed in other days and in not a few countries, to German peculiarities in making and carrying on war.

Here, too, there have been, or seemed to be, a like increment in such fatalities, and a notable frequency of cases in which persons walking along sea beaches have been struck and killed. That has had its effect on the patronage of shore resorts, though there is no evidence, or any reason for thinking, that the danger from the lightning is greater in such places than on open ground inland, and probably it is much less than it is under any tree, heavily foliaged—just the sort of trees beneath which, unfortunately, people are most likely to take refuge in showers.

Unavoidable Dangers Diminished.

Whoever has either justified or exaggerated fear of lightning can gain, by taking certain precautions, if not safety, at least a diminution of the risk—how much it would be hard to tell, but at least a little. What these precautions are is well told in a statement on the subject just made by Professor A. G. MCADIE of the Blue Hill Observatory in Massachusetts.

His advice is based on the fact that it is judicious as much as is possible or convenient to keep out of the paths where lightning finds the going easier than it does elsewhere. It seeks "good conductors," or the better of two, and that makes it safer to be where the air is dry than where it is wet—indoors rather than outdoors, that is. Perhaps there is no place where the danger is so great as in barns filled with new hay. From such barns a column of moist and heated air rises for some weeks, and that is a road that lightning likes.

If caught out in the open when the flashes are frequent and severe, the thing to do, Professor MCADIE says, is to lie flat on the ground and wait till the storm passes or diminishes. Keep away from trees, always, and, in the house, don't stand in open doors or windows, especially if they are near a chimney. Going to bed or standing on glass or rubber insulation gives confidence and will do no harm, though the additional safety so acquired is probably too small to measure. Cut off the radio antennae during thunderstorms and give them direct connection with the ground. Lightning rods, if properly made and cared for, are efficacious; otherwise they are an added danger.

People struck by lightning are more apt to be stunned than killed, and determined efforts at resuscitation always should be made in such cases. There is next to no peril from lightning in blocks of city houses, and none at all in large buildings of steel construction. The latter frequently are struck, but the damage never has gone beyond a shattered flagstaff or a dislodged coping stone.

Cheerfulness Was His Specialty.

That JOHN M. SPRAUL, the editor of The American Magazine, should have gone on steadily with his work after he knew himself doomed to death by cancer, and after he knew that thus he would shorten his life, illustrated both the man's courage and his character. It also, by showing the intense interest he had in the conduct of his magazine, in no small part explains the success he had achieved in pleasing its readers and vastly increasing their number.

His associates saw no difference in him during the last days of his active service, and his own editorial contributions to the magazine, which had become one of its notable "features," not only were provided up to the very end, but for many succeeding issues, so that he will speak in his own tone of cheer and optimism for months to come.

That was the tone which the whole magazine had acquired under Mr. SPRAUL'S management. His "policy" from the beginning of his editorship was to present a different phase of life from the one to which not a few magazines of twenty years ago devoted much of their energy in portraying. He fixed attention, not on the evils of business, of politics and of the world in general, but on the happier and better developments of human activities; not on criminality or ruthlessness, but on virtue and generosity and kindness; not on failures, but on successes.

There are those who feel and say that this gives a false idea of life, and is merely a reaction from one extreme to another. Such, however, was not the view of this magazine's buyers. They liked to be told pleasant things—which can be just as true as unpleasant ones—and it made them happy, or, if they were unhappy, less unhappy, to read of fortunes made by folk whom they thought much like themselves, and of other high achievements from small beginnings, in a world that is still one of opportunity and rewards.

By heeding and gratifying these preferences, and doing it sincerely, because that was his own temperament, Mr. SPRAUL gained the great circulation which his magazine attained.

Provisions for Trouble Inadequate.

Whenever there is an accident in the subway there is almost sure to be a demonstration of the fact that the builders of these lines did not much have in mind the possibility of derailments or collisions. Their confidence in the excellence of their work and the adequacy of their precautions have been in large measure justified, for the trains have run in enormous numbers and rapidly with amazingly few disturbances of their arranged operation.

But, now and then, trouble has come—something or somebody has failed. And it has seemed of late that the failures are increasing in numbers.

However that may be, there is reason for saying that on the subway lines more provision for the inevitable, though rare, interruption of traffic should have been made. The facilities for escape from stalled trains are far from what they should be, if great anxiety and inconvenience, to say nothing of danger, are to be avoided; and it would be highly desirable if the officers of the company should instruct their employés to explain delays to the passengers and promptly give those employés the information on which the explanations could be based.

The dangerous crowding of stations when service is suspended also could and should be prevented.

These are problems which the subway engineers are competent to handle, and that they still are unsolved is a just ground of complaint.

Trade Agreement With Soviet.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE NEW YORK TIMES of July 9 contained a dispatch from Moscow by your special correspondent, Walter Duranty, concerning an agreement concluded between the Soviet Government and the Allied American Corporation. The agreement concluded between the Soviet Government and the Allied American Corporation is undoubtedly not a concession, but only a temporary commercial agreement which the People's Commissariat for Foreign Trade may conclude independently without the sanction of the Concessions Committee. Similar agreements entered into with various European concerns have not been considered either as concessions or as mixed company arrangements. Mr. Duranty is absolutely correct, however, in pointing out the special interest attaching to the agreement with the Allied American Corporation, which is the first American firm to conclude this kind of a commercial agreement.

I wish also to correct the inference in Mr. Duranty's dispatch that this contract leaves all questions of export and import entirely to the discretion of the firm, while the People's Commissariat for Foreign Trade is supposed to relinquish all control in the matter. To my knowledge commercial agreements of this type invariably contain a proviso that the firm is to apply for licenses on all commodities which it desires to export from or import into Russia, as this is a general law in force throughout the Soviet Republic.

English School Histories.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A few weeks ago, while out of the city on business, I read a letter in THE NEW YORK TIMES asking if any of its readers knew the trend of the histories used in the English schools. I attended school in England from my sixth to my nineteenth year and can cheerfully testify that during all that time I never read a word in a textbook derogatory to an English hero. England is proud of her heroes and tries to inculcate in the minds of her school children a deep respect for them and the motives underlying their actions. Would that America might do the same!

WILLIAM EMORY SMITH.
New York City, July 14, 1923.

THE CROSSROADS KNEW THEM FOR A DAY.

From The Near East.

'Twas sundown when we topped the hill and thought
We saw the smoking spiral of a gypsy's fire;
The ancient lure of fortune-telling
crones
Wove its old spell, and flowered in desire.

Our car approached the little nomad camp
Half hid by willows, on a sighing stream—
And through the dusk, from far away
A night hawk sent his doleful, warning scream.

No gayly flaunted skirts and laughing
eyes
Flashed through the bushes as we blew our horn—
No voices spoke to wheedle silver coins
In fair exchange for secrets yet unborn!

In answer to our thoughtless call there
The figure of a girl with frightened
eyes,
Knee deep she stood, amid the wayside
ferns,
And hushed her new-born baby's wailing cries.

Near by, an old man sat upon a stump,
His claw-like hands a-trail upon the ground.
Heedless and deaf to any one's approach,
Bowed in his rags, he made no move or sound

A gaunt old horse, half starved, munched grass and grass—
His twitching tail a warning to the flies
That settled on him when he paused to doze,
Or gaze about, with patient, dull old
eyes.

And just beyond a straggling bush we saw
Their wayside camp: a cart 'neath which to creep—
One side was hung with tattered quilts and rags,
Held down by stones—and here they had to sleep.

And that was all, except a little fire
Beneath a battered pot set on two stones.
One friend they had—a dusty yellow cur,
Whose cheerful bark belied his scarce-hid bones.

We left her standing there, amid the
ferns,
Hushing her child, a wailing, tragic load—
A monument to war, above whose head
The stars shone down, upon an endless road.

TRIBUTE TO DR. MACLEAN.

He Receives Loving Cup at Close of University Union Work in London.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 17.—Dr. George E. MacLean, who is about to return to America after several years' service as Director of the British branch of the American University Union, was the recipient today of a silver loving cup and portrait of himself, by Lady Goblanes, in his academic robes.

The presentation was made at the American Women's Club. Sir Charles Wakefield, ex-Lord Mayor of London, was in the chair and expressed the regret of Dr. MacLean's friends, both British and American, at his unexpected departure. He had been regarded, he said, in Anglo-American circles as a permanent institution and had won the esteem and gratitude of all who knew him. Sir Charles then read a letter from the secretary of the Prince of Wales, expressing His Royal Highness's cordial sympathy with the presentation and his appreciation "of the great services which Dr. MacLean has rendered both to his own country and to others during his residence in London."

The address to Dr. MacLean was signed by Sir Charles Wakefield, Lady Astor, Sir Israel Gollancz, Sir Arthur Shipley, Master of Christ College, Cambridge, and Sir Henry A. Miers, Vice-Chancellor of the University of Manchester.

Lord Charnwood, Provost Gregory Foster of University College, London, and Mrs. Curtis Brown, President of the American Women's Club, spoke and then Sir Israel Gollancz presented the loving cup, proposing Dr. MacLean's health with the old English formula, "Wassail!" Be of good strength!" Dr. MacLean said, was going to his own kith and kin, but assuredly he was leaving his kith and kin here also.

Dr. MacLean, Sir Israel and Sir Charles then pledged one another with the customary ceremonies, and Dr. MacLean expressed his deep thanks, not only for the presentations, but for all the help he had received in his work from Americans in London.

TANGIER PARLEY ADJOURNS.

British, French and Spanish Differences Make Agreement Doubtful.

LONDON, July 17 (Associated Press).—The allied experts engaged in the Tangier conference adjourned today until Aug. 22. In the interim the results of their discussions will be communicated to their respective Governments for decision.

The conference thus far, it was stated tonight, has been characterised by the utmost friendliness and genuine desire to arrive at a modus vivendi for building a formal conference of plenipotentiaries to settle the future of the country, but there is such an acute conflict in the views of Great Britain, France and Spain that the diplomats are most cautious in predicting a successful outcome.

Indeed, some of them feel that further discussions will prove wholly abortive if France increases her military and economic ascendency, Great Britain holds out for internationalisation and equal commercial rights for all nations, and Spain seeks to extend her present holdings to include the control of Tangier.

British business interests seem alarmed over the possibility that the Government may agree to abolition of the capitulations, which are considered a political factor of great weight. Great Britain and the United States alone retain capitulatory rights in Morocco.

WILL KEEP CAMP DEVENS.

Secretary Weeks Says Army Will Retain Many of the Buildings.

AYER, Mass., July 17.—Many of the buildings at Camp Devens will be retained and the great cantonment where thousands of New England soldiers were trained for overseas service may be converted into a permanent army post, Secretary of War Weeks said after spending a large part of his inspection tour in gathering statistics regarding the camp. He came here yesterday to review the Twenty-sixth Division in training at the cantonment.

"I have some figures in my pocket which I am going to take back to Washington with me," Secretary Weeks said. "Many of these buildings are better than half the barracks occupied by the army. They should be preserved. They are all well built, with good foundations, and will last a long time.

"Many of the buildings will undoubtedly be retained. Please don't quote me definitely as saying that Devens will be retained as a permanent army post, but predict as much as you like and you won't be far wrong."

MALVY ALLOWED IN FRANCE.

Defeatist Minister's Banishment Suspended When His Father Dies.

PARIS, July 17 (Associated Press).—Louis J. Malvy, former French Minister of the Interior, banished for five years in 1918 on conviction of betraying the duties of his office during the war, was permitted to return to France recently because his father, an octogenarian, was dangerously ill at Souillac, near Cahors.

When the former Minister reached the family home, however, he found his father dead. He was authorized to remain in France until the funeral was held. M. Malvy's period of banishment ends in August and he has announced his intention of becoming a candidate for Parliament in the 1924 elections.

André Marty, the Communist ex-naval officer who is serving a term for complicity in the Black Sea mutiny during the war, has been authorized to leave Clairvaux Prison-for Perpignan, where his mother is seriously ill.

OPPOSES CATHEDRAL FUND.

Editor of Episcopal Quarterly Has Other Uses for $15,000,000.

Plans to raise $15,000,000 with which to complete the Cathedral of St. John the Divine are opposed in an editorial in The Chronicle, a national Episcopal quarterly, published yesterday. The editor is the Rev. Dr. Alexander C. Cummins, rector of Christ Episcopal Church, Poughkeepsie.

In the article Dr. Cummings suggests that the $15,000,000 be collected and invested and the income used in sending out new missionaries and in raising the scant salaries of those already in the field.

MUSSOLINI UNITING BUREAUS

He Will Appoint a Socialist, It Is Said, as Under-Secretary.

ROME, July 17.—Premier Mussolini is reorganizing the Ministries of Agriculture and Labor with the object of uniting them in one Ministry, with two Under-Secretaries.

One of these officials, says the Giornale d'Italia today, will be Edmondo Rossoni, President of the Fascist trade unions, and the other Signor Colombino, one of the heads of the General Confederation of Labor. The latter is a member of the Socialist Party.

MERCIER BLESSES NEW LOUVAIN HALL

Wing of Library Just Finished Is a Quarter of Restoration Projected.

CARDINAL PRAISES AMERICA

Dr. Butler, for American Restoration Committee, Pledges Completion of Work in 1925.

LOUVAIN, Belgium, July 17 (Associated Press).—Louvain University, world-famous treasure house of art and learning, destroyed by the Germans early in the invasion of Belgium, is rapidly rising from its ashes. Today less than two years after the laying of the cornerstone, Cardinal Mercier, Primate of Belgium, blessed the completed first wing of the restored library, in the building of which the American Committee for the Restoration of Louvain University played so large a part. Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University and Chairman of the executive committee of the American organization, delivered an address and placed in the library a book containing the names of the American teachers and school children who contributed nearly $40,000 to the restoration fund.

The finished wing, dedicated today, includes the provisional reading room and administration room. These finished buildings approximate a quarter of those projected under the plans, which call for the expenditure of $1,000,000, half of which already has been raised.

The architecture is of the pure Flemish Renaissance type, the so-called Rubens style, the material being white stone and red brick, with roof of blue slate. The new library fits in harmoniously on the upper side of the Place du Peuple, the other three sides of which are occupied by private dwellings of the same style, just completed, the whole constituting a characteristic ensemble of fine effect.

The ceremony took place in the presence of Crown Prince Leopold, who placed the first book on the shelves—a volume containing a list of the Louvain students who died in the World War. Henry P. Fletcher, the American Ambassador; representatives of the Belgian and French Governments, the clergy, the provincial and communal authorities, and the professors and students of the university.

Speaking with great feeling, Cardinal Mercier alluded to the beginning of the work of rebuilding the university in July, 1921, and the rapid progress that had been made.

"We were almost stunned, gentlemen of the National Committee of the United States," he said, "by the contrast which your intrepid initiative made to the ruins heaped up around us, with the echoes of the guns still almost audible and grief still darkening our atmosphere.

"You alone, I believe, never doubted the success of your enterprise. It was one of my astonishments during the visit which I paid your country in 1919, the memory of which is always a comfort and charm to me, to see everywhere the schools, the academies, the art institutes, the charitable organizations, the churches, the universities spring up before us and testify, with an irresistible eloquence, of your disinterestedness, of your constancy of will, of your consecrated worship of science and the fraternity of souls.

"Only two years have passed since Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler and the National Committee of the United States formed the project to reconstruct in Louvain that which the Germans, in a fit of criminal folly, had destroyed, and already the magnificent edifice displays one of its wings and permits us to foretell its splendor, when, in 1925, the Université Brabançonne will celebrate its fifth centenary and on which occasion your compatriots will come in crowds to admire their work of art.

"It is yours, in fact, this work of art; your artists, Whitney Warren and Charles Wetmore, conceived it; their eldest co-worker, Mr. Greenough, directed its execution; your workmen erected it. Before it will file the future generations, happy to bless your chivalrous act and to perpetuate, by the fidelity of remembrance, the friendship which binds our little Belgium to the great and noble nation of the United States of America."

In closing Cardinal Mercier spoke with gratefulness of an additional $50,000 by the Educational Foundation to be used for shelving in the library, sufficient for 1,200,000 volumes, which was announced in a cablegram received today from Herbert Hoover, American Secretary of Commerce.

Tremendous cheers interrupted the Cardinal when he spoke of the American gifts, and the American, Belgian and French national anthems were played as an expert taken by each nation in the rebuilding was told.

In his address Dr. Butler said:

"In a world still troubled by the problems and still struggling with the difficulties created by the great war, we come today to mark the accomplishment of substantial progress toward repairing the war's damage. That progress, fortunately, is marked not alone by the rising fabric of the new and beautiful library of the University of Louvain, but by the close and tender ties of friendship and affection which have brought to the support of this undertaking tens of thousands, yes, hundreds of thousands of men, women and children in the United States of America which lies nearly 4,000 miles away.

"Affection and friendship laugh at distance, and the hearts of hundreds of thousands of Americans, old and young, have leaped across the ocean to bring their message of benefaction and helpfulness to this ancient university so sorely stricken and so cruelly mutilated in the earliest days of the great war.

"More than half the total amount needed for the completion of the library has already been received or is pledged; and day by day, week by week, the gifts, small in themselves but magnificent in their number and variety, keep pouring in and will continue to come until the end. To which end, we believe, to give to His Majesty the King, and His Eminence, your beloved Cardinal, the joy and happiness of celebrating the 500th anniversary of the foundation of the University of Louvain in a completed edifice, a monument and an everlasting monument to American interest and American affection for Belgium and her people. * * *

"The University of Louvain has had a splendid history. Great names and great influences have been associated with it and have gone out from it. Through suffering and through sorrow it has come to occupy a peculiar place in the affection of the world of scholars and of students. More than five hundred years of history, and each following five hundred years while time lasts, be increasingly beneficent and increasingly abundant in service to both God and man."

Pierre Imbart de la Tour, President of the International Louvain Committee, eulogized America for her decision to rebuild the library, reached immediately after it was destroyed. Rector Lefebre expressed the university's thanks to all the Americans who assisted in the restoration. He announced that 563,000 books would be on the shelves by October, and he invited Cardinal Mercier to preside at the opening of the completed library when the fifth centenary of the university is celebrated in 1925, as he knew Dr. Butler's promise of completion by that date would be

BARBARA WHITNEY ENGAGED TO MARRY

Betrothed to Barklie McKee Henry of Philadelphia, a Senior in Harvard.

HE IS CAPTAIN OF CREW

Bride-to-Be Is Granddaughter of Mrs. Vanderbilt—Wedding to Be Next Summer.

One of the important engagements of the season became known yesterday when Mr. and Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney made the formal announcement of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Barbara Whitney, to Barklie McKee Henry of Philadelphia.

Mr. Henry is a senior at Harvard, and the marriage will not be solemnized until after his graduation next year. He is captain of the Harvard varsity rowing crew.

Miss Whitney is one of the best known young women of society in New York and Newport, and she has been active in the social program of the younger people since her introduction to society on Jan. 4, 1922, when her parents gave a ball in her honor at their town residence, 971 Fifth Avenue.

Her older sister is Mrs. Roderick Tower, formerly Miss Flora Payne Whitney, whose husband also was a Philadelphian, being the son of the late Charlemagne Tower of that city. Her brother is Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, who married Miss Marie S. Norton in Paris last March.

Miss Whitney has been with her parents at their place at Old Westbury, L. I., this season, as their place at Newport has been taken by Count and Countess Laszlo Szechenyi, her uncle and aunt. Her mother before her marriage was Miss Gertrude Vanderbilt, daughter of Mrs. Vanderbilt and the late Cornelius Vanderbilt.

As a descendant of Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt she is a member of one of the most prominent New York families and has many relatives in Europe, who include Mme. Jacques Balsan, the former Duchess of Marlborough and Lord Queensborough. She is a granddaughter of Mrs. Henry White, Mrs. Elliott F. Shepard and the late William K. Vanderbilt, and a niece of Brig. Gen. Cornelius Vanderbilt and Reginald C. Vanderbilt.

Her mother has become one of America's famous sculptors, and is known in the world of art as Gertrude V. Whitney. She has a studio in West Eighth Street, this city, and frequently aids young artists by giving exhibitions of their work and offering prizes. In late years Mrs. Whitney has designed a number of patriotic groups and figures. She made the memorial to Colonel William F. Cody, the group of heroic figures symbolizing the bravery of American soldiers, sailors and marines, which stands in Mitchel Square, 167th Street and Broadway, the memorial group of "The Spirit of the Red Cross," now in the Hotel des Invalides in Paris, and many others.

On the paternal side, Miss Whitney is a granddaughter of the late William C. Whitney, and she is a niece of Payne Whitney.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., July 17.—Barklie McKee Henry, whose betrothal to Miss Barbara Whitney was announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, in New York today, is in his senior year at Harvard and is captain of the Harvard varsity rowing team. His mother was the beautiful Miss Alice Belknap of Washington, D. C. She got a divorce from W. Barklie Henry at Sioux City, Iowa, in 1908, on the grounds of desertion. Mr. Henry subsequently married Mrs. John L. Conaway, widow of the well-known "Jack" Conaway.

W. Barklie Henry is a cousin of Anthony J. Drexel. He formerly was connected with West & Henry, bankers, and now is President of the American Guard Rail Fastener Company.

MISS DAVIS BETROTHED TO W. M'M. ADAMS

Former Ambassador's Daughter's Engagement to Boston Man Is Announced in London.

LONDON, July 17.—The engagement was announced today of Miss Julia McDonald Davis, daughter of John W. Davis, former United States Ambassador to Great Britain, to William McMillan Adams of Boston, representative of a large American corporation in Scandinavia. The wedding will occur next October at Locust Valley, L. I., the home of the former Ambassador.

Mr. Adams holds the Military Cross for distinguished conduct in France during the war. He was on board the Lusitania when she was torpedoed, in company with his father, who was drowned. The younger Adams was rescued after spending many hours in the water.

MISS DINWIDDIE WEDS.

Social Worker Is Bride of L. L. Holladay at Charlottesville, Va.

Special to The New York Times.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., July 17.—Lewis Littlepage Holladay of Cleveland, Ohio, and Miss Elizabeth McMurtrie Dinwiddie, daughter of Mr. Edgar Dinwiddie of this city, were married here at noon today by Dr. George L. Petrie, pastor of the Presbyterian Church.

Mr. Holladay is a son of Mr. and Mrs. John Z. Holladay, formerly of this city and now at West Palm Beach, Fla. He is a graduate of the University of Virginia and was for some years a member of its Faculty. Mr. Holladay is now engaged in research work for the General Electric Company at Nela Park.

Eisendrath—Rosenthal.

Mrs. Louise Rosenthal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Sulzberger, and Edwin Eisendrath, both of Chicago, were married Monday by Rabbi Gerson Levi at the home of the bride's brother, Frank Sulzberger, in Chicago. The wedding was attended only by members of the immediate family. Mr. and Mrs. Eisendrath sail for Europe this week from Quebec.

MISS ELIZABETH COX WEDS.

Married to Captain Catesby ap Catesby Jones, U. S. A.

The marriage of Captain Catesby ap Catesby Jones, U. S. Army, of Richmond, Va., and Miss Elizabeth Cox, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles William Cox of Short Hills, N. J., took place yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in Christ Church, Short Hills and a reception followed at The Close, the Cox home. The wedding was first planned for June, but as Captain Jones, who is stationed at Fort Bliss, Texas, was ill, it had to be postponed.

Mrs. Archer Harman was matron of honor. Miss Mary Gifford was bridesmaid and little Miss Adele Harman, niece of the bride, was the flower girl. Bergus McKee was best man and the ushers included Professor John H. Lyon of Columbia University, uncle of the bride, Archer Harman and John Clark.

BERT SAVOY'S MOTHER SEEKS MISSING FUNDS

Amount Found in Dead Actor's Safety Deposit Box Far Less Than She Expected.

CHICAGO, July 17.—An investigation into the financial affairs of Bert Savoy, vaudeville actor, recently killed by lightning on Long Island, was started here today, when Mrs. Ida Walker, mother of the actor, consulted Louis Mack relative to straightening out the difference between the money Savoy was supposed to have and the amount found in his safety deposit box in New York.

Mack said today:

"Only $10,000 was found in Bert's safety deposit box, and we were led to believe through conversations with him shortly before he was killed that he was worth considerably more than this. His earning capacity was large.

"We do not anticipate taking any action in the matter until the will is filed for probate. But we certainly do intend to take some action after that, unless, of course, the money that Savoy was supposed to have turns up."

The will of Bert Savoy, whose real name was Bert Walker, member of the theatrical team of Savoy and Brennan, who was killed by lightning at Long Beach on June 26, was filed yesterday. He is described as a resident of Chicago.

The actor left his estate to his mother, Mrs. Ida May Walker, of 455 Addison Street, Chicago. His partner, James J. Brennan, is named as an executor with his mother. The three witnesses of the will are residents of Chicago, and for that reason an order to take their testimony was signed yesterday by Surrogate O'Brien.

PLANS OPERA INSTITUTE.

Max Rabinoff to Open School at Stony Point in 1924.

Plans for the establishment of an American Institute of Operatic Art at Stony Point, N. Y., have been made public by Max Rabinoff, for many years connected with the Chicago and Boston Grand Opera Companies.

Mr. Rabinoff said he had purchased thirty-six acres in that village and that six buildings were under construction. The plans to have the faculty include leaders of the Italian, German, Russian and French schools in all branches connected with opera, decorative art, choral ensembles, ballet and pantomime, dramatic art, costuming and make-up.

The announcement says that a limited number of aspirants for the dramatic stage will be received from the leading conservatories and music schools of the United States. Students will receive actual rehearsal under training conditions.

Mr. Rabinoff proposes finally to form a grand opera company, which will tour the larger cities of the country from coast to coast. The school will not open until the school year 1924-1925.

SHOWS PAINTINGS ABROAD.

Miss Mary Helen Carlisle Heads Exhibition in London.

Miss Mary Helen Carlisle of this city is holding an exhibition of paintings of British and American gardens in London, which was visited by Queen Mary on July 2, who showed much interest in the variety of the American gardens. The Queen, according to word received here, liked especially a picture, Eucalyptus Avenue in California, and a picture taken of the garden of C. Ledyard Blair.

Other American gardens shown are those of Mrs. Herbert L. Satterlee at Bar Harbor, Arthur Curtiss James at Newport, Egerton L. Winthrop, Louis C. Tiffany, John S. Phipps, and the gardens of the late Colonel Roosevelt at Oyster Bay.

The exhibition will continue in London until July 31.

PASTORS AID BALL TEAM.

Halt Sunday Game, but Plan Carnival When Told of Club's Debt.

Special to The New York Times.

GLOUCESTER, N. J., July 17.—Ministers of this town, who stopped a series of Sunday games by the Gloucester Baseball Club, yesterday agreed to hold a week's carnival to help the team pay off the debt for which the Sunday game had been arranged.

The Rev. J. Stockton Reddy, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, and Dr. W. Earle Zimmerman of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, both former athletes, started the movement. Other ministers have promised to co-operate. In return the club has agreed to turn over its grounds for the use of the Church League. Debts of the club amount to about $2,000.

O'Donnell-Hartford Bridal Sept. 8.

The wedding of Miss Josephine Hartford, daughter of Mrs. Edward V. Hartford of this city, and C. Oliver O'Donnell, son of Mrs. John Charles O'Donnell of Baltimore, will take place on Saturday, Sept. 8, at the Church of St. Gertrude, Bayville, L. I., at 5 o'clock. A reception will follow at the home of the bride's mother, who has taken the Winslow S. Pierce place at Bayville for the Summer. Mr. O'Donnell is a graduate of the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, and during the war he served as a First Lieutenant in the navy. He is a cousin of Adrian Iselin.

Boissevain-Carroll Bridal Plans.

The marriage of Miss Estelle Braniff Carroll, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Carroll of Brooklyn, and John Magee Boissevain, a son of G. Louis Boissevain and Mrs. A. Magee Boissevain of 993 Park Avenue, this city, will take place at the Plaza at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon, Aug. 30. Mr. Boissevain is in business at Fresno, Cal., and will arrive in New York on Aug. 24. The engagement was announced on May 21. Miss Carroll is a granddaughter of the late John Vincent Carroll, owner of the Fleetwood Stables.

Pauline Starke to Wed Jack White

LOS ANGELES, July 17.—The engagement of Pauline Starke, screen actress, to marry Jack White, motion picture producer, was announced here last night.

DESCRIBE BRUTALITY TO INSANE PATIENTS

Testimony Stirs Judge, Who Calls It "Sin That Cries to Heaven for Vengeance."

3 ATTENDANTS SUSPENDED

Witnesses at Hearing Tell of Alleged Assaults on Helpless in State Hospital.

Investigation was begun yesterday at the Brooklyn State Hospital into charges that attendants at that institution had treated insane patients with great brutality. Evidence elicited from an attendant who said he had resigned because he could not stand seeing the abuse that went on around him, showed many instances of cruelty.

County Judge Alonzo G. McLaughlin was so incensed when he learned the nature of the charges that he described the allegd cruelties as "a sin that cries to heaven for vengeance" and summoned all those concerned before him.

The hearing yesterday was marked by testimony from Matthew Michael Callahan than on one occasion Edward Lutz, an attendant who has been suspended because of the accusations, entered a ward, approached the bed of a Jewish patient and said to him, "Callahan, listen to this fellow give the Jewish war cry." Thereupon, the witness said, Lutz poured hot ashes from his pipe on the helpless patient's head until he cried out in agony.

Two others besides Lutz have been suspended pending the outcome of the inquiry. They are Leon Putnam and Richard Galvin. Maurice E. Gottlieb, Deputy Attorney General, appearing for the State Hospital Commission, and Assistant District Attorney Palmer, who appeared for District Attorney Dodd of Kings County, heard the testimony which was given in the hospital office before Dr. P. Rose Haviland, the acting superintendent of the institution.

Feared to Tell of Scenes.

Only two witnesses were questioned yesterday. The first was Philip Addis. He said that he was a widower and lived with his two small children at 2,718 Fulton Street, Brooklyn. He became an attendant at the hospital on July 6, he said, and remained there until last Sunday, when he resigned because of the brutal scenes he had observed. He testified that he had seen the inmates brutally treated the first day he worked at the hospital, but did not report it then for fear of being beaten himself.

Addis related many instances of abusive treatment he alleged had taken place in the hospital. He charged that on July 6 he saw Putnam line up the inmates for their baths and that when one of them slowed up in undressing he would strike him with his fists and kick him in the stomach.

He said that he had seen Putnam strike a Chinese inmate until the Oriental doubled up with pain, and that he had choked an Italian until he became blue in the face. He said Putnam made several stand under a hot shower and then forced them to change to an ice-cold one.

Another inmate, Barney Rose, said Addis, was beaten every day. One day Putnam Addis testified, ordered Rose and another inmate named "Hector" to sing him the Jewish song, "Eili, Eili." While the two were singing, Lutz came in, he said, and struck one of the singers in the jaw because he did not like the rendition.

Prejudiced Against Hospitals.

When asked if he had received payment for the details of his observation which he had furnished to a Brooklyn newspaper, Addis said that he had not received a penny but that he had made the charges because he felt prejudiced against hospitals because his wife and his father died in one.

The second witness, Callahan, testified that when he had applied for employment at the hospital a week ago he gave his name as "Martin" Callahan because he knew that "an able attendant by that name had once been employed at the hospital and I thought that it might get me the job." It did.

Callahan said that he had traveled over the country as a newspaper cartoonist before being employed at the hospital. He corroborated most of Addis's testimony and declared that the three suspended attendants were "first-class attendants, but that they had uncontrollable tempers." He testified that one day he had seen two inmates fighting each other. Putnam came in and separated the two, he said, and then said to Callahan: "Now I'll show you a real good left," whereupon Putnam struck one of the inmates "cold."

Discussing his proposed course, Judge McLaughlin said:

"I do not wish to discuss the charges at the present time, because I have not gone into them. However, the charges are most serious and will be sifted to the bottom. I have summoned all those patients committed to the hospital by me, together with their nearest relatives, for the purpose of getting at the truth next Tuesday. I appreciate that many of these patients are mental defectives, but I shall take steps at the hearing to see that the proper methods are used to get the truth.

"If any brutality was used, the guilty persons will be punished. It's a sin that cries to heaven for vengeance. I am speaking not at this time in condemnation of an individual or the institution, nor am I directing criticism at the management of the institution, but it appears that some attaches were unworthy of their trust and the truth must be brought out."

TO TEACH OPERA.

Eastman School of Music to Open New Department.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 17.—The Eastman School of Music of the University of Rochester will open a new department of operatic training on Sept. 18, George Eastman, its donor, announced tonight. Vladimir Rosing, the distinguished opera producer and singer, has been engaged to take charge of this work.

Twelve scholarships, each to include all tuition fees and $1,000 a year for living expenses, are offered to American singers, it being stipulated that candidates must have completed a vocal training that makes them finished to sing operatic music. To select the scholarship holders Mr. Rosing will hold auditions in New York, Boston, Chicago, Cleveland and Rochester, and possibly in New Orleans early in September, making early visits to these cities to perfect arrangements.

The training of these singers for opera performance will include all details. Those whose proficiency warrants it get an opportunity to appear in the Eastman Theatre in scenes from operas. When the company is formed and opera is produced, which is within the scope of Mr. Eastman's plan, those students who have earned recognition for excellence will be engaged as members of the company.

AMERICAN MAY OPERATE ON KING ALFONSO'S SON

Dr. Muncie of Brooklyn Leaves Paris Today, Presumably to Attend the Deaf Don Jaime.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 17.—An operation by an American doctor on Don Jaime, second son of the King of Spain, is believed to be scheduled for tomorrow. No confirmation could be had from Dr. Curtis H. Muncie of Brooklyn, the noted ear specialist who came to Europe for the purpose of endeavoring to cure the congenital deafness of the Spanish Prince.

"I can talk about public demonstrations, but I cannot discuss in any manner my private patients," Dr. Muncie said. "Ask me anything you like about my public work, but if you inquire into my private cases I must simply decline to answer in any way. I came to Europe to see one particular patient. I cannot discuss the patient's identity or even reveal the date set for the operation."

It was learned from a person who approached the Brooklyn doctor in regard to the prospective patient that after tomorrow morning his time is to be taken up with this patient only. It is thought that he will operate on the royal patient immediately if an operation is possible.

It is also said that a member of European royalty will go to Brooklyn next Spring to receive treatment for a month or more from Doctor Muncie's hands, and there are indications that this royal personage is the Spanish prince.

PAYS TRIBUTE TO CZAR.

Memorial Service Held for Slain Russian Ruler and Family.

Memorial service for Czar Nicholas and the members of the imperial family, killed by Bolsheviki on July 16, 1918, were held last night in the Holy Russian Orthodix Cathedral of St. Nicholas in East Ninety-seventh Street, near Fifth Avenue. The big church was filled with Russians.

The memorial address was delivered by Metropolitan Platon. In his remarks he contrasted the political life of the present day in Russia with what it was under the Czar, to whom he paid a warm tribute.

Neglecting old customers to go after new ones

It's more spectacular to bring in a new customer than it is to keep an old one happy.

New customers can be added as your business grows, or they can be dragged in to fill the gaps left by customers you have lost through inattention. At any rate, you need new customers.

But the new customer doesn't remain a new customer long. No matter how strongly he was "sold," he gets to be an old customer as soon as he is safely on the books.

Your old customers deserve the same attention from you that your prospects receive. Good printing supplies a way to give this attention to both customers and prospects.

The fact that a man gave you an order last year or last month doesn't mean that his business is going to come to you automatically forever. Of course you can't afford time to make personal calls and write personal letters just to keep him happy. But you can find time to keep in constant touch with any number of people through direct advertising.

Instead of trying to visit or write to every customer every month, call on your printer every month and tell him the things you would like your customers and prospects to know. Good printers know how to

JAPANESE APPROVE NEW YORK COURTS

Here to Study the Jury System, They Find Our Justice Is Warmly Human.

FAVOR DEATH FOR WOMEN

Think They Should Pay Same Penalties as Men—Gather Ideas for Jury System at Home.

Eight prominent Japanese jurists arrived yesterday in New York on a year's world tour to study the jury system. As a result of their impressions in other parts of this country they probably will try to introduce many of the best features of the American jury system in Japan. They even favor having women on juries, but fear that Japanese opinion would be opposed.

Although the visitors' main object is to study the jury system, they will review the working of capital punishment here and in other countries. All decidedly favor capital punishment for women as well as men. In Chicago they were impressed by the agitation against executing an Italian woman sentenced to death for murder. After listening closely to the main features of the case of Mrs. Anna Buzzi, condemned for the murder of Frederick Schneider in The Bronx, they expressed the opinion that she should suffer the extreme penalty.

The members of the commission are: Tamotsu Shima, President of the Tribunal Chamber in Tokio; Dajiro Oi, Secretary of the Judicial Research Commission; Justice H. Szuki of the Osaka District Court; Judge Y. Uno of the Tokio Criminal Court; T. Akiyama, Counselor to the Minister of Justice and Procurator of the Court of Appeal; K. Kanayama, Chief Public Procurator of Yokohama District Court; T. Murakami, Advocate and member of the Special Commission of Justice, and Hanama Saburo, architect to the Department of Justice.

Dajiro Oi, the only member who speaks English, explained that in March the Japanese Parliament made the jury system compulsory five years hence. Meantime, to have as perfect a jury system as possible, every year a commission of Japanese legal authorities will tour the world. Their observation and recommendations will be reported annually to a permanent special commission in Tokio. At the end of five years the commission will issue a final report, on which will be based the Japanese jury system.

Dajiro Oi talked yesterday in the office at 120 Broadway of Reese D. Alsop, who, acting for the Bar Association of New York, whose guests the Japanese are, conducted the visitors through the New York courts. He said Japan found that juryless courts made the judges experts in law, but failures in human nature. This brought him to what he called the warm-heartedness of courts in this city. He said he and his party were struck by the sociable and friendly atmosphere which prevailed in and about the buildings of justice.

"Why, the attorneys and judges and other legal functionaries shook hands as if they were at some party," he declared. "Nothing of that sort ever occurs in Japan. In New York the law does not appear to be a cruel and harsh instrument, as if it had for its sole object the hounding of criminals to penal servitude. Rather it appears to us as if the main object of the proceedings was to assist the accused to establish his innocence rather than his guilt.

"In court cases in Japan there is none of that warmth. I do not mean to say—and I am speaking for all the members of the commission—that Japanese judicial officials are without sympathy or understanding, but we control our emotions."

Elaborating the visitors' views on capital punishment for women, the spokesman said that all leading Japanese jurists were agreed that before the law women should be held equal.

"Though perhaps woman socially in Japan is held, according to Western ideas, to be the inferior of man, we believe that she has the same responsibility toward society as man," he added. He also explained that one reason for their wish to see women jurors in Japan in 1928 was that agitation for the vote was increasing among the modern women's party, and in another five years they might be granted equal suffrage.

Their observations in America have led them to believe that juries have too much power over Judges. So far they think a verdict should not be rendered solely on the decision of a jury, but that there should be new trials until both Judge and jury agree.

Yesterday the Japanese watched the impanelling of a Grand Jury and the workings of the police courts. Upon invitation of Judge Joseph F. Mulqueen, they watched the trial in General Sessions of a defendant charged with assault upon a child. Today they will visit the Federal courts. They will be here three weeks. Next they go to Boston.

An architect is with the commission to get new ideas for court houses, since it will be necessary to reconstruct the Japanese courts to provide sleeping and eating accommodations for the jurymen.

ELLIS ISLAND KITTEN ENTERS DESPITE LAW

Admitted to United States by Commissioner Curran and Called 'Dodo.'

A small black and white kitten, apparently smuggled in by some immigrant, was found yesterday afternoon at Ellis Island and admitted to the United States regardless of quota laws or literacy tests.

In honor of the eighty-eight inhabitants of the Dodecanese Islands, who recently cabled to Commissioner Henry H. Curran to learn whether they are to be classified as Greeks or Turks, the kitten was christened "Dodo."

The question of determining the Dodecanese nationality was placed before Commissioner General of Immigration W. W. Husband when he visited Ellis Island yesterday. "The State Department has ruled that the Islands belong to 'Other Asia,'" said the Commissioner, "and we will have to abide by that ruling. Under the 'Other Asia' quota only nineteen immigrants can be admitted in one month. If these Dodecanesians insist on coming over, they'll be sent back."

"In other words," explained Commissioner Curran, "it's a matter of yes, we'll have no Dodecanesians." Whereupon "Dodo" who had chosen as his headquarters the Commissioner's office purred loudly, and rubbed his back against a leg of the Commissioner's new mahogany chair.

"I think," he volunteered after further reflection, "we'd better amend that. We have 'Dodo,'" indicating the kitten, "but nineteen is our limit for the Canesians."

Your Automobile Casualty

INSURANCE

Will Cost You Less in

"The 20th Century Mutual"

FIRST of all, a "Mutual Company" is to be preferred to a "Stock Company." The former charges you 12½% less, and shares its profits with you. The latter charges you 12½% more, and divides its profits among its stockholders.

Now, it is only a question of "Which Mutual?"

We tell you: "The 20th Century!" And for many good reasons—

PERFECT MUTUALITY—"The 20th Century Mutual Automobile Casualty Company" is mutual from beginning to end. It protects its policyholders to a most remarkable extent. And, at the end of a year's activity, it divides its profits with them in a most mutualistic way.

A SPLENDID SHOWING—Last year, for instance, practically every policyholder expressed great satisfaction with the way we are doing things in protecting their interests.

GREATER RESOURCES—The amount of our reserve cash capital exceeds considerably that of any other Mutual Casualty Company in the city.

EXPERT SERVICE—Our Claim and Counter-Claim Department is handled by men of exceptionally fine qualifications. No one has yet put anything over on them.

50-CENT MOONSHINE BRINGS $60 A GALLON

'STANDARD BRANDS' POISON

Concoctions From Cellar Stills Loaded With Death-Dealing Ingredients of All Sorts.

LYE GIVES A STRONG "KICK"

PROHIBITION INSIDE OUT
Fourth Instalment

How moonshine of mountains and cellars is converted into "standard brands" at great profits is told today by the Prohibition Commissioner. Tomorrow Mr. Haynes describes the vogue of the double cross among the rum runners.

By ROY A. HAYNES,
U. S. Prohibition Commissioner.

IT is virtually impossible to buy good whisky from the illicit liquor interests in the United States today. What the bootlegger offers as high-grade imported whisky or bottled-in-bond stuff is neither. In 95 per cent. of the cases, or more, it is moonshine—not pure and simple, but watered, thinned down, adulterated and fearfully doctored with chemicals, many poisonous, to give it color, a kick and a head.

The moonshine still is the bootlegger's chief source of supply. From what other place can he get his liquor in quantity? Surely not from the rigidly controlled bonded warehouses—they are eliminated at once. As to smuggled liquor, some, it is true, is brought into the country; but not one-tenth as much as the illegal traffic would have us believe.

When reports of huge smuggling operations are circulated it should be remembered that the illicit liquor interests are conducting a great and elaborate propaganda campaign to discredit law enforcement and that the spreading of such reports is part and parcel of that campaign. No bootlegger, of course, is willing to admit that he can obtain only adulterated moonshine. Hence, fanciful tales of the wet wave sweeping in on our coasts and other related falsehoods pass from mouth to mouth to hide the real and dangerous origin of what the bootlegger has to sell.

Moonshiners of Old Days.

The moonshiner of old flourished largely in the Southern mountains, an illiterate, poverty-stricken backwoodsman whose poor hut and still were remote from towns, cities and railroad. This type of moonshiner made whisky from corn which he grew on his own semi-barren hillsides. He liked the taste of liquor himself, and besides it was easier and more profitable to market the small product of his farm in liquid form. Moreover, these sons of the soil, unlettered in the law's distinctions, firmly believed they had the right to do as they pleased with what they produced on their own acres.

They saw in the Government's repressive activities only meddlesome attempts to interfere in their private affairs. They came to regard the revenue officer as their deadly enemy—but generally not to be molested, unless he were the aggressor. Financially and educationally they were the poorest of paupers. But they were a simple-minded, home-loving folk for the most part, intense in their family ties, seldom given to violence, notwithstanding the popular misconception, and outlaws in but one particular.

True, there were bad men among them who handled one gun or two with equal deadliness and were ever ready to use both; and there were also large stills, here and there, in those days before prohibition, but these generally were the exception in both instances.

The Modern Type.

The modern moonshiner possesses none of the good qualities of his predecessor. He has all the vices of the old-time moonshiner plus a host of city-acquired vices which the untutored denizens of the mountains would have abhorred. He constructs his still not in the remote fastness of the hills but in the heart or suburbs of our cities. Usually his product is vile.

The old-time moonshiner, for instance, used lye with which to scrub clean the receptacles in which he placed his mash. After its application he would remove its traces with water from the near-by spring or creek. The modern moonshiner uses lye, too, but his design is to give his product a "kick." So he fills a pail with water and pours in his lye till the water will dissolve no more of it. Then into the fermented mass he pours the saturated solution. The proportion is generally one gallon of lye solution to fifty gallons of "beer," as the liquor for distilling is called. The "beer" is distilled, but a quantity of the lye inevitably remains in the product. In the course of a few weeks this kind of moonshine, if drunk continuously, is likely to eat out the lining of the human stomach.

Again, the old-time moonshiner, back in the mountains, found that if he soaked his malt in an extract which he called red ivy ooze, the liquor would have a better head. The modern Southern moonshiner, when he can get it, uses red ivy ooze, too, but in a far different way.

Red ivy ooze of the mountains was made by boiling the roots of the red ivy plant. That plant, as distinguished from the poison ivy vine, is a bush somewhat like laurel in appearance, and producing a small red flower from which it derives its name. It is a poisonous plant: cattle eating it when the grass growth on the hills becomes exhausted invariably die as a result.

Different Ways of Poisoning.

In that concentrate of poison the old-time moonshiner would soak his malt. The malt then was dried and used sparingly to enhance fermentation in the mash. An infinitesimal amount of the ivy poison was left in the finished product.

The modern bootlegger of the South pours his red ivy ooze directly into his "beer" in the usual proportion of one gallon of ooze to fifty of "beer." A considerable percentage of the poison remains in the finished product. If taken in heavy quantities or continuously, it is deadly.

The old-time moonshiner used cornmeal for his mash. Theoretically, it is possible to extract about three and one-half gallons of alcohol from the meal of a bushel of corn, but in most cases the moonshiner was able to obtain only from two and one-half to three gallons of liquor. The up-to-date moonshiner uses cornmeal (in the South) and sugar. A bushel of meal and fifty pounds of sugar will produce about six gallons of moonshine. In the North, as a rule, sugar is the chief ingredient used. It is cheaper, but the quality of the product is greatly inferior.

In our populous cities 90 per cent. of the moonshining is done by the foreign-born population. Their methods are exceedingly unsanitary. Their stills often are located on the upper floors of crowded tenement houses. They may be detected quite often by their peculiar odor. In the fresh air of the mountains it is possible to detect a still a mile or more away by the odor; not so, however, in the impure air of our cities.

Moonshining on City Edges.

Much of the moonshining of today is conducted on the fringes of the cities. The old-time moonshiner is dwindling in numbers, and there are fewer stills now in the mountain fastnesses of the South than there have been for generations. Prohibition agents, hunting down the illegal traffic under newer and more approved methods, have sounded the knell of the mountain moonshiner.

Moonshiners with large stills located near populous centres supply much of the illicit traffic today. These stills are local affairs, built to satisfy local bootleggers. There is no organization or association of moonshiners; that phase of the illegal industry is highly decentralized; and, because of that condition, the enforcement officer's task is all the more difficult.

Often the moonshiner is a city dweller of considerable means who has constructed his still convenient to a highway, arranged for the transportation of supplies, handed the sale of the product to half a dozen or more bootleggers for peddling at retail, and left the actual operation of the still to paid employes. The wages of such employes generally are about $10 a day for attending to everything at the still, from receiving supplies to making the moonshine and delivering it to the buyers.

Supplies for such establishments generally move by motor truck at night. If the still is one of, say, several hundred gallons' daily capacity, the value of supplies required mounts rapidly. Supplies—sugar, meal, fuel, &c.—generally are bought at wholesale prices in such cases.

From 40 Cents a Gallon Up.

The cost of making moonshine whisky varies from 40 cents or so a gallon up. In the case of one of the largest illicit stills ever apprehended by prohibition agents, situated not far from Washington, D. C., the cost of producing its 500 gallons a day was placed at about 50 cents a gallon. This liquor was sold to bootleggers at $2.25 a gallon at the still, the buyer transporting it. One of the chief buyers was a wholesale bootlegger of Washington. He sold it, after first adulterating it, in five-gallon lots or more at $8 a gallon. After buying it the bootleggers still further adulterated it and sold it at prices varying from $4 to $7.50 a quart.

Thus the stuff that cost the moonshiner 50 cents a gallon to produce reached the ultimate consumer at prices ranging from $32 to $60 a gallon, an increase of from 6,300 to nearly 12,000 per cent. Some of this liquor was colored with iodine.

An even more flagrant instance of profiteering in bootleg whisky was uncovered in an exclusive club of an Eastern city, where a pint of whisky, presumed to be bottled in bond, was sold for $12.50. Analysis proved the whisky to be a poor grade of bootleg whisky made from cheap alcohol and liberally adulterated. A gallon of alcohol, selling for 50 cents, supplied the basis of the stuff sold at retail for $166.67, a profit of about 33,000 per cent.

The vendor of this whisky was arrested and injunction proceedings were instituted to close the club.

One Barrel, Many Labels.

In another instance a "manufacturer" was apprehended while bottling four different kinds of whisky from a single barrel of alcohol. The labels on the bottles were first-class imitations of those used on two kinds of Scotch whisky, one brand of American rye and one of American bourbon. In addition, he bottled a high class of imported "gin" from the contents of the barrel. Various extracts and coloring materials were used to make his product resemble genuine brands.

That distillery was on the third floor of a crowded tenement.

In still another instance the bootlegger adulterated his product with water and added a quantity of a chemical mixture recommended by a friend to give it a kick. Among the bootlegger's customers was a locally well-known lawyer. The lawyer bought, drank and died. The bootlegger was charged with manslaughter. The stuff used to furnish the kick proved to be embalming fluid.

Ninety-eight samples of bootleg whisky obtained by enforcement agents in Philadelphia and thoroughly representative of the kind of stuff peddled by the bootleggers of that city were analyzed by Prohibition Unit chemists. Here is what the analyses disclosed:

Four of the samples were pure whisky.

Four were denatured alcohol mixed with coloring matter and other materials.

Ninety were denatured alcohol redistilled. They contained varying proportions of the poisonous denaturants.

Several of the samples were colored with iodine.

That is a fair sample of the bootlegger's "art," his wares and his customers' illicit beverage throughout the United States.

Baker at Age of 83 Maintains Record as Faithful Director

George F. Baker maintained his record for faithful attendance at the meeting of the Directors of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company held in Boston yesterday, despite the hot weather, his vacation and his age. Despite his 83 years he made the motor trip from Littleton, N. H., to Boston specially to attend the meeting.

Reports made recently show that he is the largest individual shareholder of the company, having more than 53,000 shares that pay him dividends of almost half a million dollars a year.

M'ADOO SAYS MORSE PAID $83,000 IN FEES

Former Secretary Also Received $33,000 in Notes for His Legal Services.

CROWD HEARS HIM TESTIFY

But the Witness Tells Nothing Not Already Brought Out in the Conspiracy Trial.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—William G. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury and successor to Stuart G. Gibboney as attorney for the Virginia Shipbuilding Corporation of Alexandria, Va., a Morse concern, testified today for the defense in the trial of Charles W. Morse, his three sons and four others on charges of conspiracy to defraud the Government.

The idea had gone abroad that examination of Mr. McAdoo might result in more or less important, if not sensational, disclosures, and the courtroom was crowded with spectators. Those who came to hear something out of the ordinary were disappointed, for, while Mr. McAdoo answered all questions promptly, no matter how fast they came, he testified to nothing that had not been brought out during the fourteen weeks the case has been on trail, and his cross-examination by District Attorney Gordon was fruitless so far as being of any actual value to the prosecution was concerned.

The jury learned again that Mr. McAdoo received from the Morse concerns $83,000 in cash and $33,000 in doubtful notes. Mr. McAdoo said he received $50,000 of the $83,000 for services performed for the Virginia Shipbuilding Corporation in its attempts to persuade the Shipping Board to make progress payments on ships on the ways at Alexandria. He said he owned no stock in the Morse company.

One payment of $100,000 was obtained from the Shipping Board under the administration of John Barton Payne, who succeeded Edward N. Hurley. Mr. McAdoo's testimony tended to show that he was unable to obtain this payment from Mr. Hurley after one or more conferences with the board. The sum of $50,000 in notes, was obtained, Mr. McAdoo stated, for services performed for the Groton Iron Works, of Groton, Conn., another Morse concern, but, as he recalled, these notes were never paid to his firm, McAdoo, Cotton & Franklin.

The sum of $33,400 in cash was obtained from a Morse concern for services performed, Mr. McAdoo stated, in connection with the securing of contracts to haul coal for the Italian Government in Morse boats. His firm was paid $1 a ton on these contracts.

Succeeded Gibboney as Counsel.

Mr. McAdoo testified that he was first engaged by Morse after Mr. Gibboney had been unable to make any headway with the Shipping Board under Mr. Hurley in connection with securing the progress payment of $100,000. The witness said he called Mr. Hurley on the telephone and arranged for a conference. He then called a Mr. Hyman, general counsel for the Shipping Board in Philadelphia, and asked that the payment of $100,000 be made immediately, because of the poor financial condition of the Virginia Shipbuilding Corporation.

The telephone conversation with Mr. Hyman related partly to a demand on the Shipping Board for a total of $1,425,000 in progress payments, but in particular he called for the immediate payment of the $100,000.

"Mr. Hyman told me," Mr. McAdoo stated, "that the claim of the Virginia company was not based on fact, and that if we were standing on our legal rights in the matter nothing could be done, but that if we came before the Emergency Fleet Corporation with our hands held up, exclaiming 'Kamerad!' something might be done as a matter of favor.

"I told Mr. Hyman that the Virginia company wanted no favors; that it would stand on its legal rights, and that if it did not have any legal rights it would not expect anything. I asked him if he meant to imply that the Shipping Board would deny this company its legal rights if it dared to assert them. To this he replied, 'No.'

Wrote Hurley He Was "Astounded."

"I wrote Mr. Hurley a letter in which I stated, 'I am astounded at the course this matter has taken, and I am sure that you cannot for a moment sanction such methods.'

"My firm declined to take the case of the Virginia company until it had made a careful investigation of the situation and was convinced that the treatment it had received at the hands of the Emergency Fleet Corporation was a very grave injustice."

Under cross-examination District Attorney Gordon tried to bring out something about an Italian being paid twenty-five cents out of every dollar Mr. McAdoo's firm received on the coal-carrying contracts, but the Government received no information of value on this point, not even considering other testimony to the effect that the Italian was afterward employed by the Groton concern.

So far as could be seen, Mr. McAdoo's testimony was highly satisfactory to the defense, though none of it could be used to refute the charges that Morse and his associates conspired to defraud the Government. It dealt almost wholly with alleged ill-treatment received by a Morse concern at the hands of the Shipping Board.

Charles M. Schwab will be the next witness of note to be summoned to testify for Morse. His testimony is expected to be confined to the operations of the Virginia Shipbuilding Corporation.

NEW BUCHAREST CLUB AN AMERICAN VENTURE

Col. Greble Has Established the First Complete Athletic Field in the Balkans.

BUCHAREST, July 17 (Associated Press).—Against strong opposition from the anti-foreign clique which opposed the project for two years, Colonel Charles Greble of Philadelphia has succeeded in building a complete athletic field on the outskirts of Bucharest. The place is known as the Bucharest Country Club, but it goes far beyond the usual limits of a club; it is really a miniature city.

Through American enterprise the first golf course, the first tennis court and the first baseball diamond in the Balkan countries have thus been opened. In addition there are a splendid clubhouse built on American lines, a polo field, shooting ranges, a running track, a swimming pool and a lake for boating and fishing.

King Ferdinand recently dedicated the grounds, and after the local Bishop had blessed the clubhouse His Majesty drove the first golf ball on the course. Queen Marie started the initial polo match and Prince Carol served the first tennis ball. Young Queen Marie of Jugoslavia threw the first ball in the game between the members of the American colony and the Rumanian Government staff.

The object of the club is to afford recreation to members of the American colony, but any Rumanian or foreigner is eligible to membership. It was due to the pertinacity and personal zeal of Colonel Greble and the active encouragement and support of King Ferdinand and Queen Marie that the club was formed.

The King and Queen are very friendly toward Americans and American enterprise.

Scorned Anaesthetics for Amputation; Dying Man Thinks Only of Wife

John O'Connor, 22, of 451 East Third Street, Brooklyn, a brakeman employed by hte B. M. T., died yesterday in the Norwegian Hospital from injuries received when a railroad coal car passed over his body at Sixty-third Street, between Fifth and Sixth Avenues. His legs were amputated at the scene of the accident without recourse to anaesthetics. O'Connor, who was conscious until within a few minutes of death asked the doctor not to tell his wife until all was over.

"I know I am going," he said. "Do not let her see me like this." His fortitude won the admiration of all who had gathered round as he lay in intense pain.

At 6:30 A. M. O'Connor was riding on an electric switch engine in charge of James George of 6,214 Eighteenth Avenue, Brooklyn, and as it approached the switch at Sixty-third Street, O'Connor jumped down to open it. In leaping from the moving train of open coal trucks he caught his foot in a rail and was thrown against the switchbox. O'Connor fell back between the engine and the first coal car, which passed over him. The second car stopped over his body. It took one hour and twenty minutes to extricate him, O'Connor being mangled during this operation.

Dr. Kurechenmann of the Norwegian Hospital said it was necessary to amputate at once and asked O'Connor if he would have anaesthetics, which O'Connor declined, and the operation was performed while the Rev. Thomas Raynor of the Roman Catholic Church of Our Lady of Perpetual Help, Fifty-seventh Street and Fifth Avenue, administered spiritual comfort.

After the operation O'Connor was removed to the hospital, where he died in twenty minutes.

Dr. Kurechenmann, Father Raynor and several of O'Connor's coworkers went to O'Connor's home and told his wife, whom he had married seven months ago.

COSGRAVE AND CRAIG CONFER IN LONDON

Free State and Ulster Leaders Discuss Irish Railway Questions.

FIRST TIME THEY HAVE MET

President of Free State Is Soon to Visit Northern Ireland and See Premier Again.

LONDON, July 17 (Associated Press).—Premier Craig of Ulster and William Cosgrave, President of the Irish Free State Cabinet, met in London today to discuss the problems of the Irish railways that concern the two sections of Ireland.

After an hour's talk they adjourned their conference, with a decision to meet again for its resumption.

BELFAST, July 17 (Associated Press).—Leaders in both North and South Ireland were greatly interested today over the announcement of the meeting between William Cosgrave and Sir James Craig in London, this being the first time the two have met, at least as the heads of their respective governments.

Coincidentally it was announced by officials of the Free State Government in Dublin that President Cosgrave soon hoped to visit the North of Ireland on official business and might then meet Premier Craig again.

The announcement said any suggestion that the visit would be connected with the Ulster-Free State boundary question was unfounded.

There were no cases of murder, attempted murder, manslaughter or incendiarism in Ulster during the last three months, Lord Chief Justice Moore said today in opening the Belfast Crimes Commission. In the same period last year, of these crimes there were respectively 89, 60, 2 and 140.

DUBLIN, July 17.—A message from Eamon de Valera was read at the Sinn Fein meeting at the Mansion House this evening. It declared that the Republicans were ready to swear allegiance to a sovereign people, but not to a puppet or an impostor. Nor would they ever swear allegiance to a foreign sovereign, whether he was a symbol or a reality. Many MacSwiney addressed the meeting for two hours.

WORLD SURGEONS HOLD CONGRESS IN LONDON

Prince of Wales and Lord Curzon Greet 748 Experts, Representing 28 Nations.

LONDON, July 17 (Associated Press). The sixth triennial congress of the International Surgical Society was opened today by the Prince of Wales at the Royal Society of Medicine, with 748 surgeons representing twenty-eight nations in attendance.

Those present included Dr. William J. Mayo of Rochester, Minn.; Professor W. W. Keen of Philadelphia; Dr. F. G. Banting of Toronto, discoverer of "insulin," the new diabetes treatment; Serge Voronoff, of monkey gland fame, and Dr. Knocker of Berne, thyroid gland expert.

The Prince of Wales, welcoming the delegates, said he trusted that relief from pain and prolongation of life would result from the deliberations of so many leading surgeons. He was glad to extend personal welcome to the society's last President, Professor Keen, "who, despite the eighty-six years he carries so lightly and the weight of his world-wide reputation, is again among us, ready as always to participate in a very meeting, social or scientific, of this distinguished gathering."

Lord Curzon, the British Foreign Secretary, expressed gratification that the congress had chosen for the first time to meet in this country. During the course of the congress the latest discoveries will be discussed, especially those relating to tuberculosis.

LONDON, July 17.—At the opening of the triennial congress of the International Surgical Society Lord Curzon, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, and Neville Chamberlain, Minister of Health, welcomed the delegates on behalf of the Government. Addressing the delegates, Lord Curzon said:

"No doubt, in the course of their movements the delegates will go down to the Houses of Parliament, where so many of us are engaged, quite ineffectively, in dealing with the maladies of the body politic of the world.

"Near to the Houses of Parliament is a place with which I am associated. It might be called the operating room of the British Empire. I speak of the Foreign Office. There I am engaged at the present moment in applying the scalpel to some of the most unpleasant and, I may say also, diseased conditions of the body politic of Europe."

Valparaiso University to Pay Debts.

VALPARAISO, Ind., July 17.—Financial reverses suffered by Valparaiso University will not cause the school to close, it was learned today following a meeting of the Board of Directors of the institution. The Directors ironed out all financial difficulties. After the meeting Dr. Horace K. Evans, President, stated the Trustees have decided the school will continue and have made arrangements to finance the debts, amounting to nearly $300,000, contracted during the recently allowed to be defaulted through a misunderstanding.

LAY 10 FATALITIES TO SALVARSAN

Government Records Show That Five Soldiers and Five Sailors Died After Treatment.

DOCTORS HELD AT FAULT

The Number of the Cases Treated With the Drug Is Estimated at 67,000.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Government records here show that during the World War five American soldiers and five American sailors died after treatment with European and American preparations of salvarsan.

It was said at the United States Public Health Service that no preponderance of these deaths had followed the use of any particular make of the preparation, and it was added that there was as much, if not more, likelihood that death had resulted from an improper administration of the drug, or a faulty diagnosis of the patient, as from any inherent defect in the remedy offered for use. It seemed to be the opinion of Public Health Service officials that death was caused more often by fault of the doctor than of the drug.

On the deaths in the army, four occurred at Camp Custer and one at Camp Jackson, the manufacturer of the drug not being specified in the reports. The deaths in the navy occurred at Newport, Philadelphia and Olongapo, P. I., and on board the Vixen and the Galveston. Both European and American products were used in these instances.

Including these deaths, the Health Service has reports of eighteen fatalities in the United States since Jan. 1, 1914, following treatments with salvarsan, arsphenamine or similar drugs, of German, French and American manufacture. No British salvarsan has been used in this country. It had not been proved, it was said, that a distinct proportion of deaths followed the employment of any special manufacture.

Salvarsan, or arsphenamine, as it is commonly known in the United States, was subject to Government contol during part of the war years. Late in 1917 the Public Health Service licensed three or four American firms to make this product. Though it was of much poorer quality than that now on the market, it was then almost up to the German standard. Early in 1918 the Surgeon General of the Health Service directed that no more of the medicine be sold in the United States until it had been officially tested, and this rule obtained until about a year ago.

Supplementary regulations for the control of arsphenamine, neoarsphenamine and sodium arsphenamine in interstate traffic, approved June 1, 1920, provided that "in addition to tests made by the manufacturer + * * final tests of the product as prepared for the market shall be made on each lot by the United States Public Health Service before its release."

Statistics as to the number of cases in which salvarsan was used in the Army or Navy were not available, but it was ascertained that out of 4,127,478 men in the military service 67,026 were afflicted with ailments in which this drug was used, and it was said at the office of the Surgeon General of the Army that practically all of these men undoubtedly were treated.

At the trial in Wilmington, Del., of the Government's suit to recover seized German patents sold to the Chemical Foundation, Inc., it was asserted by Isidor A. Kresel, counsel for the Foundation, that Hermann A. Metz, a leading manufacturer of salvarsan, sold to the Government during the war salvarsan that caused the deaths of American soldiers. Mr. Metz has denied this charge, and has quoted the Public Health Service in support of his claim that such few deaths as occurred were due to outside conditions or the carelessness of those who prescribed the drug.

AUTO DOES A HIGH DIVE.

Two Women and Child Escape With Lives in Accident at Dayton.

DAYTON, Ohio, July 17.—Two women and a child were injured this morning when an automobile they occupied plunged down the 100-foot embankment which surrounds the Miami Valley Hospital here and dived from a four-foot stone walk into the street. Those injured were Mrs. Malcolm Duncan, of New York City; her daughter, Virginia, 3 years old, and Miss Mabel Leedon, of Dayton, driver of the machine. All were cut and bruised.

Miss Leedon told police she thought the steering wheel was unlocked. She started the engine and drove ahead. The steering wheel did not act and the car started on its plunge.

Revenue Agent Held in Bribe.

Joseph A. Engel, a Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue, was held in $2,000 bail yesterday by United States Commissioner Hitchcock to answer a charge of having accepted a bribe of $100 from Louis Englander, a soda water manufacturer who is alleged to have violated the law by failing to file an income tax return.

PUTS HABER PATENTS IN NUISANCE CLASS

FILED TO BLOCK AMERICANS

Five Witnesses Are Heard for Defense in Government Suit Against Chemical Foundation.

Special to The New York Times.

WILMINGTON, Del., July 17.—Five witnesses testified today in the Government's suit to upset the Alien Property Custodian's sale of German dye and chemical patents to the Chemical Foundation, Inc. They were for the defense and offered expert opinion in support of the contention that the patents were of low value because they omitted essential data.

Colonel Henry W. Anderson, Government counsel, centred his main attack in cross-examination on Dr. Charles H. Parsons, who had testified that the Haber patents were of no value to Americans. Colonel Anderson produced records of Congressional hearings at which Dr. Parsons predicted the success of the Haber process.

Dr. Parsons and his successor on the stand, Professor Alfred O. White, of the University of Michigan, explained that when they talked before the Congressional committee of the high value of Haber processes they were referring to the generic term "Haber Processes," which includes American, French and German methods. They said they had in mind the modified Haber process of the General Chemical Company, which was employed at the Government's nitrate plant No. 1 at Sheffield (Muscle Shoals), Ala.

In cross-examination Dr. Parsons admitted that he had never personally manufactured under the German or General Chemical process, acting in advisory capacities only, so that of his own knowledge he could not testify to the difference between the two systems. Neither had he undertaken personally to make a "catalyst," the element requisite for fixation of nitrogen.

Professor White, who was a Colonel attached to the nitrate division of the War Department during the war, emphasized the engineering difficulties involved in the German process.

"It is true," he said, "which taxed the inventive resources of Germany, backed by Government supervision and aid, for the years from 1909 to 1913, before they achieved what they thought was commercial success. I think it more than coincidence that Germany did not inaugurate the war until a year after announcement of the successful development of this process."

Germany used in explosives the nitrates developed by this process.

Says Americans Lacked "Know How."

Isidor Kressel, counsel for the Foundation, asked: "If the German Haber patents were available to our Government during the war, why is it that the German method of producing ammonia synthetically, which was successful in Germany, was not adopted here?"

"We didn't know how," and the engineering details," the witness replied. "Though a patent makes considerable disclosure, it does not tell the whole story."

Considering all the circumstances, Professor White gave it as his opinion that the German patents possessed only a nuisance value by which the Germans could prosecute infringements. The defense has insisted that many of the German patents were held here only for that purpose, the Germans refusing to manufacture in the United States and, by filing these patents, preventing Americans from manufacturing the products.

Professor Harry A. Curtis of Yale, who was with the Nitrate Division during the war, agreed with Professor White that under the circumstances the German Haber patents were of no value to the American manufacturers.

Bearing on the Foundation's contention that the absence of essential data in the patents minimized their value, James F. Stiles Jr., chief accountant of the Abbott Laboratories in Chicago, a Foundation licensee, testified that his employers spent months of time and $64,805 in research work on German patents before they could produce satisfactory novocain, cinchophin, neocinchophin, acriflavine and proflavine.

Tells of Insufficient Data.

Dr. Elmer K. Bolton, director of the chemical section of the dyestuffs department of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Company, testified to the great difficulty encountered by his company when it undertook during the war to make dyes from the by-products of explosives. He said that, because of the insufficiency of data in the German patents licensed by the foundation to the company, some of the dyes have not yet been brought to satisfactory grade.

Many of the processes filed in Washington by the Germans, Dr. Bolton said, proved to be obsolete. Extensive research by expert chemists over a period of years had been necessary to develop the steps the German patents omitted. In many instances poor colors ensued from adherence to the German formulae.

Dr. Bolton testified to the ease with which dye plants could be turned quickly into munitions factories in time of war. The foundation has declared one of the great values of American development of the dye industry to lie in the fact that it can be turned to assistance of the Government in the national defense.

BIT OF FABRIC COST 2 BALLOONISTS' LIVES

Board of Inquiry Finds It Jammed Valve and Caused Navy Aeronauts to Fall in Lake.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKEHURST, N. J., July 17.—A special board of inquiry, after examining the wreckage of the United States Navy balloon A-6698, concluded today that a piece of fabric which jammed the gas valve was responsible for the death of Lieutenants J. J. Roth and T. B. Nuit in Lake Erie on July 4. The bag and basket of the craft reached the Naval Air Station here from Cleveland Saturday. The investigation had continued since then.

Preliminary examination indicating a faulty valve had been made previously by Commander Robert Weyerbacher, in charge of the construction of the ZR-1, and Commander Frank R. McCrary, in command at the hangar.

The special board found evidence that a piece of the bag fabric in some manner got over the mouth of the valve opening and that when the valve was opened slightly more than a half inch it passed beyond this fabric section which then jammed the opening, preventing the automatic closing of the valve. Reconstructing in their minds the conditions of the flight the officers of the board believed that the two balloonists, when they found that they had too much lift, pulled open the valve. Then, finding that the valve refused to close automatically as it should and that they continued to fall, it is believed that the rulers cut the bag loose in an attempt to keep from being smothered by it when they struck the water.

It was reported in Lakehurst today that another entrant in the balloon race, Captain Marthur, had a similar experience with a faulty valve, but as he was over dry land, was able to come down in safety.

Memorial services for Lieutenants Roth and Nuit will be held at the Lakehurst Station tomorrow. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon all flags will be lowered to half-mast. Services will be conducted by Chaplain James Duncan McNeil of the Philadelphia Navy Yard.

Municipal Flag Upside Down On City Hall With Hylan Away

While Mayor Hylan was in Albany yesterday to negotiate with Governor Smith for legislative help in straightening out the bus tangle, the American flag atop the City Hall was flown for half an hour upside down. Early workers hurrying through the park stopped and wondered if it was an admission on the Mayor's part that he was in trouble. But after an investigation it was found that the fault lay entirely with Mike Liata, an assistant janitor, whose duty it is to hoist the colors every morning over the Mayor's official domicile.

"You're crazy," replied Mike.

"Come out here and see," they insisted.

Mike went into the park and took a look. In a jiffy he was on the roof and had the error corrected, and business went along as usual.

FILIPINOS EXTEND BREACH WITH WOOD

The Cabinet and the Council of State Charge Him With Undue Dictation.

HE ACCEPTS RESIGNATIONS

Governor General Tells Quezon and Others That They Challenge and Threaten.

MANILA, July 17 (Associated Press).—The political war between Governor General Leonard Wood and Filipino officials is a fight to the finish to test the powers of General Wood, a high official of the party of Manuel Quezon, President of the Senate and critic of the Wood Administration, said today.

The controversy, precipitated by the reinstatement of Ray Conley, United States Secret Service Agent, came definitely to a head today with the resignation of the Council of State, as well as the Cabinet. Conley resigned.

The resignations of the Cabinet and the Council of State came suddenly after all day and all night sessions of members of the Filipino political groups and a gathering of the Council of State and the legislative council at Governor General Wood's official residence, Malacanan Palace.

A delegation of officials filed into the executive office, with Quezon at its head. As they stood in a group before the Governor General's desk, Quezon read the collective resignations of the Cabinet members and of the Council of State, with the signature of each attached.

As Quezon finished, Governor General Wood rose, briefly expressed his regret at their actions and promptly accepted the resignations.

Conley originally was charged with bribery, but on investigation he was cleared and General Wood reinstated him. J. P. Laurel, Secretary of the Interior, resigned in protest, and Mayor Ramon Fernandez of Manila did likewise.

"We have observed for some time that it is your policy and desire as Governor General to intervene and control, even to the smallest details, our Government, both insular and local, in utter disregard of the authority and responsibility of the department heads and other officials concerned," the officials said in tendering their resignations. "This policy recently culminated in an unfortunate incident which shook to its foundations the public opinion of the country when you, by undue interference with the powers and jurisdiction of the Secretary of the Interior and the Mayor of Manila, reinstated a member of the Secret Service who had been legally suspended from office and whose resignation you subsequently accepted on your own initative.

"To make matters worse, you took this action without hearing the proper officials.

"This series of acts constitutes clear violation of the fundamental law of the land and other legal provisions, especially those of Act 2,803, Section 2,447, of the Administrative Code. At the same time it is a backward step and a curtailment of Filipino autonomy guaranteed by the organic act and enjoyed by the Filipino people continuously since the Jones law became effective.

"Having followed this course of conduct in your relations with the Executive Departments and other offices of the Insular and local Governments, thereby violating the sacred pledge of the people and the Government of the United States to guarantee to the Filipino people the exercise of the greatest possible measure of self-government pending the recognition of independence we beg, with the deepest regret, frankly to state that we are unable to assume with you responsibility in the execution of this policy and therefore we have decided to tender our resignations jointly as members of the Council of State and individually as Secretaries of the departments."

The Secretaries involved are those of the Interior, Finance, Agriculture, Justice and Communications. Manuel Quezon, President of the Senate, and Speaker Roxas of the House of Representatives also resigned.

In reply, Governor General Wood said:

"I have listened with deep regret to the statement you have just read and which comes to me as a surprise and clearly indicates previous concerted action on your part, action taken depending the recognition of independence, notice has come to me until my arrival at this conference.

"Your action is not based on any previous protest or complaint. It indicates organized and preconcerted attack by the Filipino Department Secretaries, members of the Legislature and members of the Council of State upon the authority of the Governor General under the organic act and as the representative of the sovereign power of the United States.

"In my opinion your action is wholly uncalled for. I beg to state most definitely and emphatically that each and every declaration made in your statement which charges neglect of the prerogatives and rights of the secretaries or disregard for the organic law is without the slightest foundation in fact. You are aware of this, because here in your own presence Secretary of Justice Santos declared that during our entire association of more than a year no recommendation of his has ever been disapproved.

"Secretary of Agriculture Corpus makes the same general declaration. These are the two Secretaries with whom I have had the most dealing.

"We need not go further. You have made no effort whatever to adjust alleged disagreements. Your plans have been deliberately made and your action is in the nature of a challenge and threat which I cannot ignore.

"I regret exceedingly this occurrence. It can be productive of only unfortunate results—results prejudicial to the cause in which we both are interested. It means an abandonment of posts and obligations at a time of great responsibility and on alleged issues unsupported by evidence and unworthy of the attention of serious-minded men.

"I desire to thank you all for your courtesy and co-operation in the past and again to express my regret at this action.

"Under the circumstances there is no alternative left for me but to accept, as I now do, your resignations as presented."

BUILDERS LIFT BAN ON NEW CONTRACTS

Big Firms Say Stabilization of Costs Enables Them to Bid on Projects.

SEE END OF WAGE TROUBLE

Downward Tendency in the Price of Steel and Lumber Helps Decision.

MORE WORKERS EXPECTED

Conference Brings Announcement of Readiness to Begin Additional Construction Work.

An announcement yesterday by the United States Realty and Improvement Company that it was again in the market for new construction business and a general improvement in the building labor situation reported by this and other large construction companies gave a reassuring tone to the building industry as a whole.

While in some quarters there was a tendency to confine this optimism to the labor situation, officials of several large construction companies agreed that the conditions which caused a temporary abandonment of several large building projects last May had shown sufficent improvement to warrant carrying out plans for future construction.

The announcement by the United States Realty and Improvement Company followed a conference of the Directors and the managers of its subsidiary, the George A. Fuller Construction Company, who came here from different parts of the country. It was stated that, whereas the company had decided sixty days ago not to take any additional building orders, the improvement in the labor field and stabilization of wages had prompted the Directors to take new contracts with confidence that they could be carried out with reasonable profits to the company.

Ready to Make Contracts.

The Fuller company at present has approximately $18,000,000 worth of construction on its books throughout the country and about $6,000,000 worth of building in progress in New York City. An official of that company said yesterday that the company was willing now to give prospective builders a contract price based on prevailing costs for both labor and material. This, he said, had not been possible for the last two months or more.

"We interpret the market to mean stabilized costs at the present level," he said. These costs, in some instances, are lower. Labor is back on the job, and we are not anticipating further trouble in this regard. With the agreements reached in May, wages were increased $1 a day in some cases, and others from $1 to $4, including bonuses. These bonuses average $2 a day in the bricklayers' trade.

"All trades are working now and there is a tendency toward a greater supply of workers. There is no surplus now, but it is probable there will be by the first of next year. The last survey of the Building Trades Employers' Association showed that about 50 per cent. of the speculative apartment house construction would be completed by Aug. 15. The completion of this work will release many mechanics for other construction.

"Another factor in the improvement has been the publicity which has attracted workers from outside the city. There seems no reason why there should not be abundant labor by next Jan. 1."

Delay in Getting Materials.

At the offices of the Thompson-Starrett Company it was stated that the company has in course of construction approximately $40,000,000 worth of building, all of which is going ahead without serious interruption. An official remarked that there was a downward tendency in the cost of steel and lumber. The only delays, he said, are caused by failure to get materials delivered promptly. The company is in the market for new contracts.

R. H. Shreve of Carrere & Hastings, architects, was of the opinion that the early relief in the building situation was to be seen in the decreased volume of construction.

"We are going at a moderate rate of speed, that's all," he said. "There is no more labor than there was, but there is more labor for

A $3,000,000 Radio Purchase.

Gimbel Brothers, it was announced yesterday, has closed a deal with the Radio Corporation of America for the purchase of 20,000 Radiola R. C. receiving sets, manufactured by the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co., over 60,000 of which are now in use in the United States. The purchase price was not divulged, but it was said that the value of the merchandise, at present nationally established list prices, is approximately $3,000,000.

BUSINESS NOTES.

The account of M. Hirsch & Son, Shreveport, La., is now represented in this market by Kopple & Bachr, resident buyers, 1,270 Broadway.

Ralph T. Beggs, 45 Leonard Street, has been appointed selling agent for the products of the Bedford Street Weaving Company of Belfast, Ireland. They include colored linens, knitted suitings, crashes, glass checks and canvases.

Cahsen Bros., Birmingham, Ala.; the Barton Company, Manchester, Vt., and Charles Nechman's Department Store, Newport News, Va., are now represented in the local market by F. Lilienthal, resident buyer, 1,150 Broadway.

TO SUPERVISE SPONGERS.

Action Is Proposed by Woolen and Worsted Manufacturers.

Endorsement of the principle of a new plan of adjustment which has for its aims the elimination of unfair returns and claims on piece goods was voted yesterday by the members of the American Association of Woolen and Worsted Manufacturers at the semi-annual meeting held at the Waldorf-Astoria. The special committee dealing with the question was empowered to complete its plans and further enlist the approval and support of the members.

The plan contemplates taking the adjusting of claims arising on piece goods out of the hands of a group of public adjusters and putting it under the direction of the association. Under the new system, which it is planned to make effective as of Jan. 1 next, the special association department, which will be created, will place one representative in each sponging establishment where the work justifies it, while other spongers will be grouped and one man made responsible for each

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Moderate Rally in Grain Prices Brings Upturn in "Specialty Stocks"—Sterling Higher.

Markets of all sorts have been plainly awaiting a stimulant. It developed yesterday, even if only in moderate proportion, in slightly higher prices for wheat. While even the wheat market could not be termed robustly strong, there were some gains in the near-by options, and this quiet strength, greatly emphasized by the recent weakness in the grain markets, was eagerly seized upon in the financial district as the excuse for a rally in stocks.

Practically the entire advance, such as it was, developed in the final hour of business and was confined almost entirely to speculative issues which have been heavily sold for the decline. The main body of stocks did little or nothing, but the improved tone which characterized dealing and the firmness of all markets, after irregularity in the morning, was widely construed in the financial district as the development of a more cheerful sentiment toward the immediate future. All of the markets have worked themselves into a position where they are more or less ruled by the whims of speculators, and developments of a sort which would influence speculative sentiment must be given serious attention. One of these, no doubt, would be a sharp rally in the wheat market; another, which may yet come along, would be a favorable turn to the international negotiations on reparations; still another would be any physical change in the attitude of buyers as a class toward forward commitments. And there is always the prospect of an overnight recognition of Mexico, to give the market the thrill it has been searching so keenly for.

There was an outward manifestation of disapproval over the result of the Minnesota election, or at least professional speculators ascribed this as the reason for moderately heavy sales of stocks for the decline in the day's earliest hours. This was an influence in the wheat and other markets, in which first-hour quotations were practically the lowest of the day. But, as has been so evident in the last ten days, the market's resistance to new selling was such as to discourage further operations of this sort, and after temporary declines and the moderate rally which followed the lifting of this pressure, it settled once more into the doldrums, only to rally again in the final hour when wheat turned upward. It is much too early to say, of course, whether the buying which advanced "specialties" yesterday is of sufficient constant and determined sort to carry the rally through for any reasonable length of time. It may be said again that the most important development of the week is the resistance which has been demonstrated on fresh liquidation, but, of course, the fact is to be taken into consideration that the sudden development of unsettling factors of importance either at home or abroad may have the effect of wiping out these previous "resistance points."

Sterling followed much the same course as did American markets. It was irregular and lower at the start, the early quotations representing a decline of approximately 2½ cents to the pound from the recent high levels established, but it, too, had the benefit of moderate buying power and closed the day at a fractional advance, taking along with it, sympathetically, most of the European exchanges. In this market in particular, there is evident a disposition to mark time until a clearer conception of the French and German attitudes on Great Britain's forthcoming note to Germany may be gained. The fact that this note is to be sent to all of the Allies, including the United States, has led many bankers here to the opinion that a strong bid will be made for united allied action in bringing the problem of reparations to a point from which settlement may be reasonably expected.

It must be admitted that most of the factors which are depended upon to furnish market stimulus in the immediate future have not yet developed sufficient completeness or definiteness to be utilized as such. Under such circumstances the markets can do little more than wait until these factors become positive and unmistakable. The most important of them, of course, is the reparations problem and, nearer home, the attitude of buyers on forward commitments. But, in the meanwhile, such a development as a sharp rally in grain or, in fact, any strengthening of importance in commodity prices no doubt would bring instant Stock Exchange recognition.

MONEY.

TUESDAY, JULY 17, 1923.

Stock Exchange call money was firmer on noticeable contraction in supply, opening and renewing at 4% per cent.; rate later hardened to 5, with a final of 5½ per cent. Money for fixed periods ruled dull, with bid at 5 and offerings at 5¼ per cent., unchanged from prevailing quotation; dealers reported a few trades arranged at lenders' rate. There is a good inquiry from interior banks for choice name merchants' notes, which are going over 60 days; city banks are only moderately interested.

LOW MARK REACHED IN BOND OFFERINGS

New Underwriting Activities Have Fallen Off So Sharply Banks Cut Personnel.

An exodus of officers and responsible employes from many of Wall Street's important investment banks is under way, according to reports made yesterday by such companies, the proportion being somewhat larger than in the usual vacation season. The reason, it was explained, lies in the unusually quiet condition of the investment market, and many of the banking houses have been reduced in personnel to a point which is probably the lowest in more than a year.

New underwriting activities have fallen off to the low figure for the year, offerings for the week ended last Friday having totaled $21,626,000 and this week's offerings to date having been considerably less than half that amount. This period of quiet is believed in bond house circles to be a normal breathing spell and it was learned yesterday that the banking houses are anticipating in the Fall a revival of business on a scale commensurate with the financing of the Spring months.

"After a long period of unusual activity," it was stated by a representatives of one of the larger private banking houses yesterday, "we are not particularly sorry to see a falling off in new business. At the present moment we anticipate no sharp or sudden revival, as investment requirements seem to have been filled for the time being at least."

Bankers themselves, it was stated, are not encouraging new financing on a large scale and in a number of instances have arranged short-time loans to hold industrial companies over for a month or two, when it is expected the market will be ready for offerings of bonds on a heavy scale. As to the Dawes Report, according to its counsel, "has done so that regardless of the action of the higher court the railroad will have the right to go before the Interstate Commerce Commission later with its protest.

GARDEN CITY OFFERS BONDS

Long Island Town Will Use $883,300 Issue for Water Works.

An issue of $883,000 Garden City 4½ per cent. bonds is being offered today by Stacy & Braun and Eldredge & Co. The bonds are due from 1924 to 1963, and are priced to yield 4.25 to 4.40 per cent. Proceeds will be used for water works and similar improvements.

The New York Title & Mortgage Company is offering a new loan of $700,000 at 5½ per cent. on the property at 153-159 Madison Avenue, corner of Thirty-second Street. This property is said to have been sold recently for $1,287,000.

Offering of $600,000 equipment trust certificates of the Bertha-Consumer Company (a coal mining corporation) is being made by Harrison, Smith & Co. and Cassatt & Co. at prices to yield 5.50 to 6.10 per cent. The bonds mature from 1924 to 1933, and are secured by 420 new cars, valued at more than $900,000.

Hoagland, Allum & Co. are reported to have purchased $2,300,000 first mortgage 6% per cent. bonds of a Chicago office building, which it is expected will be offered shortly.

RAILROAD APPEALS TENTATIVE VALUATION

Delaware & Hudson Protests $95,680,800 Total Fixed by the I. C. C.

Officials of the Delaware & Hudson Company have decided to appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States the case in which an injunction was denied on Monday by the United States District Court, to restrain the Interstate Commerce Commission from entering the "tentative valuation" of their railroad properties at $95,680,800. This announcement was made yesterday by W. C. Noyes, General Counsel for the railroad. He stated that the appeal probably would be filed within a month, and that he hoped the case would be heard early next Winter.

This is said to be the first time a railroad has attempted to prevent the Interstate Commerce Commission from entering a "tentative valuation" of its property. Officials of the railroad have previously pointed out that the valuation of $95,680,800 was approximately 80 per cent. below what they believed was a fair figure.

Counsel for the Delaware & Hudson contends that the Valuation act provided in Section 19-A that the Interstate Commerce Commission should find the original cost to date; the cost to reproduce the railroad, and the cost of reproduction less depreciation, as well as an analysis of the methods by which these costs were determined, and the reasons for the differences in the different costs. This, he said, the commission failed to carry out.

The Valuation act provides that in case the railroad company does not agree to the "tentative valuation" the road must file an objection with the Interstate Commerce Commission within sixty days. As the Delaware & Hudson, according to its counsel, has done so that regardless of the action of the higher court the railroad will have the right to go before the Interstate Commerce Commission later with its protest.

MORTGAGE CO. PROSPERS.

Shows Profit of $436,690 for First Half of Year.

The New York Title and Mortgage Company reports for the first half of this year, ended June 30, an undivided profit of $436,690 after providing for dividends, taxes and employes' profit sharing. This sum brings total undivided profits to $2,157,000, making total resources of the company $9,521,814, against $8,907,288 on Jan. 1.

According to the semi-annual statement which was issued by Harry A. Kahler, President, the volume of business during the period was 48 per cent. in excess of the business done in the same period of 1922. Guaranteed first mortgages outstanding on June 30 were reported at $62,995,530. President Kahler states that more than $300,000,000 of guaranteed first mortgages have been sold to investors by the company.

FEW BONDS DUE IN AUGUST.

Obligations Expected to Be Paid Without Refinancing.

Most of the corporative obligations that will fall due during the month of August will be paid off without refinancing, according to the belief in financial circles. The amount involved in most instances is so small that no refunding will be required. For the month of August the entire obligations falling due are $28,374,560, against $73,107,850 in July and $56,486,630 in August of last year.

Railroads form the group that has the largest amount falling due with a total of $11,714,490, of which the Western Maryland notes total $5,500,000 and the New York, Lackawanna & Western construction bonds $5,000,000.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Firm Tone at the Close.

Following a weak tone at the opening yesterday, the stock market hardened as the day progressed and firmness prevailed at the close. Most stocks ended the day at or near the best prices, and, while not changed, with few exceptions, were confined to fractions, a better feeling was evident in both speculative and investment circles. At the start the professionals who are still operating on the short side of the market endeavored to make capital out of the results of the Minnesota election. They sold stocks on the news, causing some declines in speculative leaders, but Wall Street soon realized that the election was purely the result of local conditions and would in no way affect the Republican majority in the Senate, except to reduce it by one member. The strength at the close was in face of an advance in the call money rate to 5½ per cent. There were many reports circulated in the financial district to help certain groups of stocks. Rumors of early settlement of problems which may hasten Mexican recognition helped stocks of companies interested in Mexico, while unconfirmed reports of salt water invasion of the Santa Fé Springs oil field in California caused a firm tone in oils toward the close.

"Bull Leaders" Receive a Jolt.

The larger operators in the financial district who still cling to the constructive side of the stock market received a mild jolt just after the opening of the Stock Exchange yesterday. The shock lasted only a short time, but it caused some unsettlement for a time. The uncertainty was due to the appearance in the Steel crowd of a large speculator who offered 6,000 shares of Steel common at the market. This offer for a time gave rise to the belief that another wave of liquidation was about to develop in this stock and caused a downward reaction in other sections of the list. The sale of the 6,000 shares, with other selling attracted by the offer, caused a decline in Steel from 90¾, the opening price, to 89⅝. When the 6,000 shares in question were disposed of, however, it was found that there was no more stock for sale. This caused great relief to the remaining "bulls." After that the stock gradually recovered and closed at 90⅜, unchanged from the previous close.

Oil News and the Stock Market.

There were several developments in the world of petroleum yesterday which were looked upon as constructive, from Wall Street's point of view, and caused a moderate recovery in the oil shares listed both on the Stock Exchange and on the outside market. One report was that salt water had invaded one of the prominent California oil fields, and another was that the Standard of New Jersey had contracted for the delivery of 36,000,000 barrels of oil from the California Petroleum Company. The report of salt water invasion was not confirmed in this city, and, while it was accepted with reserve, those traders who take a chance bought some stocks on the hope that the report would be confirmed. The source of the information, however, was such as to forestall the making of large commitments on the long side. The announcement of the contract was looked upon as forecasting important developments in the industry. That it will benefit both companies appears to be a foregone conclusion, but important deductions were made in connection with the announcement. It was argued that if the flood of oil was to continue in California, Standard of New Jersey might be expected to give Standard of California preference in supplying the Eastern company with crude oil. Making the contract with an independent company was accepted as an indication that prominent Standard Oil officials look for an early end to the present flush production on the Pacific Coast.

Treasury Withdrawals.

With the withdrawal tomorrow of $4,000,000 from the local Federal Reserve District by the United States Treasury, operations of this sort for the week will amount to $10,100,000. This money, it was explained, is going to meet current requirements solely, and no large operations are contemplated until September, when Government note and bond maturities and interest payments will have to be cared for. The present withdrawals, and most of those remaining for subsequent weeks of this Summer, were described yesterday as "pocket money" requirements of the Government.

One View of the Future.

There is an almost unanimous belief in the leading bond houses of the financial district that the Autumn months will see a recurrence of heavy new financing on a scale to compare with the early months of this year. The reason for this belief, it was explained yesterday, lies in the fact that banks have been able to finance industry through one of its periods of greatest activity and expansion without recourse in a large way to the resource of the Federal Reserve System. As a consequence, the banks now have a comparatively small total of obligations to pay off. This fact will pave the way for a large total of deposits and cash on hand when industrial concerns will have paid off current obligations, and this money, it is reasoned, will naturally find its way into bonds and some of the better-grade stocks. But until the Autumn months, it was stated, there appears only the faintest prospect of any large new financing projects, banks, in fact, advising industrial concerns against coming into the market with long-term issues at the present time.

The Vacation Season.

One of the best evidences of inactivity in the bond market is the fact that many desks in investment banking houses are vacant, an official in one such company said yesterday. Nearly every official in that company whose work could be spared for the time had seized the present period of quiet as an ideal vacation period, he said, and the same condition generally prevails in other Wall Street houses. While it is folly to attempt to estimate the number of salesmen, officers and others who are now on vacation, it was said that the number probably exceeds that of any time in the last year or two, and, judging from the present prospects of new financing business, there is little reason to believe that the number of men on the job will have to be materially increased for at least a month or thereabout.

Earning Dividends Early.

When the reports of June earnings are made public by the railroads within the next few days they are likely to show, in the opinion of many in the financial district, that there are some railroads in the country which have more than earned their dividend requirements for the entire year out of the profits for the first six months of operation. Thus they will have all the net income from the second half of the year to put into their surplus funds for years that are not so successful from the railroad operating angle. Most of the roads that will be able to report this condition will be in either the East or the South, where operating conditions have been the most favorable in the first half of the present year, and where the railroads do not count so heavily for their profits on the crop movements of the late Summer and Autumn.

Beginning March 22, the Stock Exchange officially quotes Liberty bonds in units and fractions, the fractions being 32ds of a unit, and the quotations after the decimal point representing one or more 32ds. In the above table, therefore, the figures of highest and lowest prices during 1923 and since date of issue are reduced to the form now used in the Stock Exchange quotations.

Watchful Waiting

for a better market, is a good pastime for those to whom the incidental worry means nothing, but is it not a better plan to have one's investments governed by a definite and sound policy such as is outlined for each client by this Service?

The periodic reports and advisory bulletins on our clients holdings relieve them from such worry and are alone well worth the minimum annual cost of $200, for the Supervisory Service.

STANDARD CLOSES HUGE OIL CONTRACT

To Buy 36,000,000 Barrels From the California Petroleum Company.

COVERS THREE-YEAR PERIOD

Trade Circles See a Forecast of a Drop in the Enormous Output on the Pacific Coast.

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey has just closed a contract with the California Petroleum Company under which the latter will deliver to the Eastern corporation 36,000,000 barrels of oil. Deliveries will be made at the rate of 1,000,000 barrels monthly, so that the contract will cover three years and call for shipments of about 30,000 barrels daily. The price under which the oil will be delivered will be based upon the selling price of gasoline in New York, and in view of the fact that the California Company will deliver the oil at seaboard, rather than at the well as heretofore, the price, it is understood, will be well above the posted prices for California crude.

To deliver the oil at seaboard, the California Petroleum Company is laying a 100-mile pipe line, connecting its wells in the six important producing fields in Southern California, where it has locations, with the loading terminal of the company at San Pedro Harbor, California. From there the oil will be shipped to the East via the Panama Canal in the tankers of the New Jersey company to its refinery at Bayonne.

Announcement of the closing of the deal was made yesterday by Thomas A. O'Donnell, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the California Petroleum Company, who said:

"The California Petroleum Company has closed a contract for the sale of 36,000,000 barrels of light gravity Southern California crude oil to the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, oil to be delivered at terminal of our company at San Pedro harbor into ships of the New Jersey Company. The deliveries are to be at the rate of 1,000,000 barrels a month, covering a period of three years, at a fluctuating price, based upon the market quotations for gasoline and fuel oil at Newark, N. J., and New York harbor."

Mr. O'Donnell said that the company was erecting fifty 80,000 barrel oil storage tanks, for the purpose of storing the oil pending shipment. Some of these tanks will be erected on the 264-acre track adjoining the company's terminal at San Pedro. The terminal facilities now being completed at San Pedro will be capable of handling from 12,000 to 15,000 barrels of oil hourly. The company is also operating casing head plants in California with a capacity of delivering 30,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily, from which 20,000 gallons of gasoline from natural gas are produced.

In addition to the contract with the New Jersey Company, California Petroleum has a contract with the Union Oil of California, which calls for the delivery of 8,000 barrels of oil daily. These two contracts assure the company of a market for 38,000 barrels of oil daily.

It was remarked yesterday that the closing of a contract between Standard of New Jersey and the California Petroleum Company, which is an independent organization is significant, even though it is in line with the recent policy of the Standard Oil officials to get oil wherever possible. It is argued that if there was a possibility of the current flush production of California being maintained it would be only natural to expect that the New Jersey Company would give preference to the Standard Oil Company in the matter of such purchases. The closing of the contract with an independent, however, according to opinion, leads to the conclusion that Standard Oil officials are of the opinion that the California fields will be on the wane in the matter of flush production within the near future.

ENDICOTT-JOHNSON SALES.

Net Shows $5,982,978 Gain in Six Months Ended June 30.

The Endicott-Johnson Corporation for the six months ended June 30 reports net sales of $33,478,179, against $27,495,209 in the same period last year. FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

After Weak Start, Market Firms Up, With Higher Rates at Close.

Although not accompanied by an increase in business, in fact the volume was slightly less than on Monday, transactions in European exchanges yesterday took a decided brace after an initial spell of lower rates, with the result that a good part of the losses of the preceding session were canceled before the day's close. The reaction in the forenoon was attributed to the weak finish on Monday, some of which carried over, but the tone was later changed on the appearance of good institutional buying, coupled with covering by previous sellers for the decline.

Sterling started at a loss of ⅞ cent at $4.58⅝, dropped a fraction from this level, and rallied to $4.59⅛, but shaded this at the close; French francs likewise were easier at the start, but got up to 5.85⅛ cents from a previous 5.79¼, finishing at a 2-point gain at 5.83¼ cents. Holland, Stockholm and Swiss were higher, while small losses were reported in Spanish, Italian, German and a few minor Continentals. Mid-Europeans were irregular, while Far Easterns and South Americans were heavy. Canadian reacted to 97.26 cents from 97.32 on Monday.

In the subjoined table the quotation on sterling represents dollars and decimals of a dollar; all others represent cents and decimals of a cent. Quotations preceded by the decimal mark indicate a price measured in fractions of a cent.

CONSOLIDATED DUES NOW $40 A MONTH

Board of Governors Raises Rates for Members of the Exchange $5.

DUE TO HIGHER EXPENSES

President Tweedy Tells of Efforts by Officers to Keep Out Undesirable Brokers.

The Board of Governors of the Consolidated Stock Exchange of New York has adopted a resolution increasing the dues of members from $35 to $40 a month. The increase becams effective July 1. Before the war the dues were $25 a month. The increase, according to Laurence Tweedy, President of the Exchange, was necessitated by the advance in the cost of conducting the business of the Exchange.

"There are many items in the daily expense of the Exchange which have increased our costs over recent years," said Mr. Tweedy. "We have to pay our help higher wages. Our taxes were increased $12,000 last year. The President's salary has been raised to $10,000 a year, against $6,000 paid before the war. And in addition there are many other items. For this reason we have been forced to make a slight advance in the monthly dues. Another factor is that the Exchange's other sources of income have fallen off of late, particularly in connection with the Clearing House. The Exchange owns the entire capital stock of the Clearing House. Due to the recent dullness of the market, however, the Clearing House, which clears stocks for members for a nominal charge, is just about meeting expenses."

The Exchange has started to campaign for new members. "We welcome all applicants whose character warrants admission to the Exchange, and especially those who desire to build up a business with the public," said Mr. Tweedy. "My study of the financial status of our firms has impressed me with the substantial profits that can be made in the commission business, provided it is carried on in a straight, legitimate and careful way."

The Exchange recently sent out a questionnaire to all members of the institution. Returns to the questionnaire were examined by Mr. Tweedy and Ogden D. Budd, Chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means, and by the Bureau of Auditing and Accounting. According to Mr. Tweedy they all show a gratifying financial condition and show all of the members of the Exchange doing business with the public are conducting their business on conservative lines.

"We do not stop with the questionnaires, however," said President Tweedy yesterday. "Though important, they are but a part of our policy of leaving nothing undone to protect the public. The fact is that the new element in the Board of Governors of the Exchange obtained some power about a year ago, and since that time our record has been very clean.

"Our auditors are constantly looking over the books of houses which do a commission business. The board feels that the customers of these members are entitled to all the protection possible, and that is what we have been endeavoring to obtain.

"The newspapers have referred during the past few weeks to a clean-up campaign on our Exchange. The truth is that this activity on the part of the officers and committees of the Exchange is the result of a settled policy. The bars are up and the doors are closed on our Exchange to those men seeking admission to membership who have no legal or moral right to be brokers and handle the funds of customers."

The Board of Directors of the Air Reduction Company, Inc., has called for payment on Oct. 1, 1923, $500,000 par value of the outstanding 7 per cent. debenture gold bonds, due in 1930. The bonds at present are callable at 105 and interest. Announcement of the serial numbers will be made the last week in July.

OUST BROKER'S TICKERS.

Consolidated Exchange Head Says M. W. Janis Was Not a Member.

The Consolidated Stock Exchange tickers were removed from the brokerage office of M. W. Janis at 15 Broad Street, according to a statement last night by Laurence Tweedy, President of the Exchange. Mr. Janis, Mr. Tweedy said, was not a member of the Exchange and did no business through it.

"This action was taken," said Mr. Tweedy, "as a result of information submitted by the Better Business Bureau of New York. An investigation was also made by the Bureau of Auditing and Accounting of the Exchange. Evidence in the case convinced the Exchange that the ticker service should be discontinued."

Leather Company Earnings Drop.

The Barnet Leather Co., Inc., for the first six months of 1923 reports net earnings, after charges and Federal taxes of $57,927 against $94,803 in the same period last year. After payment of preferred dividends and reserves for sinking fund there was reported a deficit of $51,578, against a surplus, after the same deductions, of $1,803 in the first half of 1922.

BROOKHART SEES BIG LOSS IN CROPS

VISITED FIFTEEN COUNTRIES

Declares Congress Should Call Extra Session to Aid Marketing Here.

Senator Smith W. Brookhart returned yesterday from a two months' trip to fifteen countries in Europe, during which he studied the agricultural situation there, especially as related to the co-operative movement. Declaring that the bumper crops throughout Europe threaten a price depression that will be disastrous to farmers here, the Senator said that an extra session of Congress should be called to devise some Government marketing measure to enable the farmers to get cost of production out of their present crop.

"During my trip to Europe," said Senator Brookhart, "I saw the leaders of the common people in nearly all the countries. I talked to the statesmen of this upward movement and met the leaders and active managers of the great co-operative organizations everywhere. My conclusion is that economic co-operation upon the simple principles of the weavers of Rochdale is the only constructive idea that has survived the war. I believe that it is the only plan that will end the criminal trusts and combinations in America and give to the producers and consumers the just rewards of their labor.

"The thing that demands immediate attention in an extra session of Congress is the agricultural situation. A good crop is coming all over Europe, including Russia. I saw nearly two thousand miles of it, and the Russian peasants have planted, notwithstanding the propaganda in America that they refused to plant. The farmers of America need to know these facts above all others. When they are known it is plain that the Lenroot bill and other legislation passed at the last session are flimsy makeshifts and wholly inadequate for agricultural needs.

"Radio dispatches on my boat said there are prospects for big crops in the United States. For forty years the farmers have received less money for their big crops than for little ones. They did the extra work in harvesting and handling, and paid the extra freight for shipping, and took less return for it all."

"They are in the same situation now, made worse by their own post-war deflation and aggravated by the railroad inflation. Every other business sells its product in a protected home market and is able to charge the farmer cost-of production and in many cases an extortionate profit besides. For example, during fifteen years before the war the steel trust collected $28 per ton for rails in the United States, f. o. b. factory, and sold its surplus at $20 in foreign countries and paid the freight. The American farmer sells about 10 per cent. of his product in foreign markets, but that little surplus fixes the price on the big 90 per cent. sold at home.

"As for the political situation, I have read only three of the President's speeches. One urged a self-perpetuating World Court, the last word in universal autocracy. Another urged a confiscating tax in railroad rates upon the people of the United States, especially the farmers, to sustain $7,000,000,000 of water in railroad valuations. It denounced the Government of the United States as a railroad manager, but neglected to say that private ownership increased the operating expenses upon our people by $1,485,000,000 the first ten months after the Government turned them back. It said the roads could not be replaced for $19,000,000,000, but neglected to say that the value of all the stocks and bonds representing all the value of all the roads was less than $12,000,000,000. In the third speech he favored drafting all the people and all the property in the next war. But he said not a word about taxing the profiteers and dollar-a-year patriots all around him for the millions and billions of blood money which they took from the Government during the World War just past, to pay the bonus we promised the soldiers.

"I should think about three more speeches like these would elect Henry Ford by about ten million majority, if the President is the candidate. It is time the Republican Party was looking for a candidate who will fight for the common people, some one like Judge Kenyon."

GROUP ELEVATED LINES.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 17.—Another chapter in the troubled financial history of Chicago's transportation service was written today. It consisted of the announcement of plans for readjustment and reorganization of the Chicago elevated railroad system. The plan is offered by a protective committee representing holders of $14,000,000 of notes issued in 1914, and which have been in default for several years.

The effect of the plan will be to consolidate the four companies into one corporation. Although the roads have been operated for several years as a unit, they have maintained their separate corporate entity, and their securities have been undisturbed.

The present plan calls for a drastic scaling down of capitalization. The present outstanding debt and securities of the four companies is about $121,895,000. In the new corporation it is proposed to reduce this total to $87,196,500. The property value of the company as fixed by the Illinois Public Utilities Commission's valuation on June 30, 1919, for rate-making purposes, is $89,514,932.

WILL ATTEND PULP HEARING

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—American paper and pulp wood interests will be largely represented at the hearing to be held at Ottawa to inquire into the pulp-wood situation before deciding whether the embargo on the export of pulp wood to the United States shall go into effect, according to an official statement made today.

It is not believed, however, that the State Department will be represented at this conference, though the department has been officially informed that the hearings will be held before any definite action is taken. It was explained that it was not customary for Governments to be represented in such inquiries, and instances were cited of British steel interests having been represented at tariff hearings in the United States without the official participation of their Government. No date has thus far been set for the conference.

This Government has impressed the Canadian Government with the seriousness of the proposed ban on pulp-wood exports to the United States.

WAGNER AGAIN IN TRADE.

Broker in $2,000,000 Crash Joins Armour Grain Company.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 17.—E. W. Wagner, former head of the grain commission and stock brokerage firm of E. W. Wagner & Co., which failed in December, 1921, became associated today with the Armour Grain Company. No announcement of his position with the firm was made, but it was said he would become closely associated with George E. Marcy, the President.

The Wagner firm failed with losses of more than $2,000,000, according to announcement made on the New York Stock Exchange. Mr. Wagner accused the Directors of the Exchange of not living up to an agreement to give him more time. Had that been done, he said, all his obligations could have been met.

Chicago Yellow Cab Recapitalizes.

CHICAGO, July 17.—Recapitalization of the Yellow Cab Manufacturing Company from 200,000 to 600,000 shares was approved by the Directors today. The new 400,000 shares will be sold to stockholders at $12.50 a share. It is planned to pay dividends at the rate of $5 a share annually on the new capitalization.

Holyoke Paper Mill Firemen Strike.

HOLYOKE, Mass., July 17.—Close to 100 stationary firemen in the paper mills of this city went on strike today to enforce demands for a wage increase. The men walked out at the fifteen local divisions of the American Writing Paper Company and independent mills in Mittineague and Woronoco.

The plan for the segregation of the Lehigh Valley Coal Company and the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company will be completed and made public within a very short time, it was learned yesterday.

SAYS GOLD STANDARD AND BANK SAVED US

Bankers' Chief Asserts That They Averted Chaos That Overwhelmed Europe.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 17.—The necessity of the present credit system, the gold standard, the Federal Reserve Bank and of defending the banking system from attacks by radicals was stressed by John H. Puelicher, President of the American Bankers' Association, today in an address at the opening session of the twenty-first annual convention of the American Banking Institute.

Dr. C. Wallace Petty of Pittsburgh and Carl E. Talman of Richmond, Va., President of the Institute, also were speakers.

Were it not for the gold standard and the Federal Reserve Bank, America would have been engulfed in the financial maelstrom of Europe, Mr. Puelicher said. He told the institute bankers that unless they battle in public against the detractors of the country's fiscal system the Federal Reserve Bank will follow into oblivion the First and Second Banks of the United States, its two predecessors.

The banking and economic leaders of the country were urged by Dr. Petty to enter public life to avert an impending crisis which threatened disaster to the nation. He related how false prophets had predicted the close of the World War would bring greater international concord, a return of prosperity and a marked spiritual advance. Instead, he maintained, the nation has spent its last four years in dollar-chasing and selfishness such as America has never seen before.

RAIL PAY ROW MENACES.

Expect Fight on Wages and Working Conditions in Fall.

The threatened issue between railroad officials and the representativs of the brotherhoods in regard to wages and working conditions is anticipated by railroad officials in September, it was learned yesterday. Contracts of large Eastern systems will expire on Sept. 30.

Action by officials of the Eastern roads, officials believe, will be emulated throughout the country although some of the contracts will not expire before the next Spring. If, for example, it was pointed out, the roads of the East grant increases in wages, it would be difficult for those in the remainder of the country to keep from taking a similar attitude. Recent adjustment of the wages of shopmen is taken as an indication of what to expect. At first a few railroads increased shopmen's wages by 3 or 4 cents an hour and the increase gradually spread.

If the brotherhoods accept practically the same conditions as exist today from the Eastern railroads whose contracts expire on Sept. 30, lines elsewhere would be unable to grant increases and meet competition, it was said.

That the brotherhoods will ask for substantial increases is almost a foregone conclusion in railroad circles. The Western division of railway conductors and trainmen's organization recently announced that "war-time pay," which was from 60 to 64 cents a day higher than the present rate, was inadequate.

SAY SHE WILL SUE BROKERS

Lawyer to Try to Recover $60,000 in Case Involving Dead Employe.

Bernard Sandler, attorney for Joseph Jacobs, waiter, who alleged that he had been defrauded of $30,000 by Smith Weigand, broker, who ended his life on Sunday, said yesterday that he was preparing papers in a civil suit to recover the money his client is alleged to have lost. He said he expected to file his action within a few days.

According to the lawyer, the suit will be against W. C. Langley & Co., brokers, 115 Broadway, where Weigand was employed as head of the stock department. He said he will contend that although Jacobs dealt directly with Weigand, the latter was an employe of Langley & Co and therefore their agent. Mr. Sandler denied that he had planned to question Weigand before his death about his personal affairs, as had been intimated in a statement credited to Philip Wittenberg, counsel for Weigand.

Adirondack Power Earns $61,293.

COTTON OFF AGAIN ON LIMITED BUYING

Final Prices Show Loss of 12 to 25 Points—Some Good Rains.

With lower temperatures and some good rains in Oklahoma and private reports that showers were falling at points in Texas, cotton declined again yesterday. The election in Minnesota and tension over European affairs restricted buying so that prices at one time showed a loss of 120 points from the extreme advance of last week. This in itself proved a sufficient incentive for room operators to shift to the buying side, and later in the session October sold from 23.43 to 23.86. General rains in Arkansas and parts of Tennessee continued the hope that relief would be forthcoming for Texas and trading remained limited. Final prices showed a loss of 13 to 26 points.

Early influences exerted an unsettled effect on sentiment which continued the selling movement of the previous two sessions. Liverpool displayed little resistance during the morning, with prices there slightly below Monday's closing. With private reports of rain in the Southwest circulating, weight of contracts carried quotations steadily lower. October started about 10 points off and during the first hour had broken through 23½ cents to 23.43. Stop loss orders were reached during the decline, which helped the break and without uncovering sufficient scale buying to prevent lower figures. Selling came from commission house sources, with scattering orders from the South and West. Outside of moderate trade demands for distant positions, buying power was not impressive. But with December below 23 cents, quotations showed a loss of over a cent from high prices of Friday. As there were no evidences that the drought had been broken, several interests began to accumulate contracts on the theory that three days' loss in prices entitled the market to some recovery. Selling pressure lessened, Liverpool bought back cotton sold the previous day and a slow reaction started.

A recovery of 20 points attracted enough cotton to halt the rise around midday. Then weather details showed twenty-three stations in Texas with temperatures of 100 to 109 degrees and no rain reported at any point in the State. This produced further covering during the afternoon and October rose 20 points more above 23.85. All early loss being regained, trading quieted down again, but various private advices of a reliable nature concerning progress of the crop in some of the most important producing sections of the Southwest were not such as to encourage selling pressure. Local operators who sold during the morning bought back cotton with sustaining influence on the market. Outside of Texas and most of Oklahoma, weather proved favorable. Heavy rains fell in Arkansas and a portion of Tennessee, with showers in Eastern States. Oklahoma temperatures were lower, only five stations being over 100, and rains fell at four or five points in the State. The general trend of crop estimates outside of Texas and Oklahoma is still upward. A decided improvement has occurred over a large portion of the belt, but Texas has now reached the point where general rains are needed to prevent a lowering of recent excellent prospects in that region. Even more than in an ordinary season the world depends in great measure upon production west of the river for the supply of American cotton.

An additional quantity of July contracts became available the last hour, and this, together with private reports of showers in Texas, brought closing selling. Execution of several orders in January left that month 25 points lower than Monday. Trading continued moderate throughout. Southern spot markets were unchanged to a decline of half a cent, making a loss of a cent at some points this week.

PROTEST COTTON CHANGES.

Liverpool's Proposals on New Standards Heard by Washington Conference.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Proposed changes, principally as to color, of several of the grades of the United States official cotton standards, recently accepted as universal standards for trading in American cotton through an international agreement between Government officials and representatives of the leading cotton associations of the world, were submitted by representatives of the Liverpool Cotton Association at a conference today at the Department of Agriculture.

Two dozen representatives of the American cotton trade and Department of Agriculture officials met with the British representatives. They appointed a committee of seven to take up the question in detail, in an endeavor to reach an agreement at a session tomorrow. Any agreement reached will then be taken up before the full conference for ratification.

Question Duty on Paint Brush Handles.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Representatives of domestic manufacturers and importers of paint brush handles met today before the Tariff Commission in the first hearing held under the "flexible provisions" of the Tariff act. The request of importers for a reduction of 50 per cent. in the present duties was opposed by American producers, who asserted the result would be to remove the bars which now protect the industry from low cost European handles. The Commission had rendered no decision when the hearing was ordered adjourned until September 6.

Plumbers' Helpers See Victory.

The second day of the strike of 800 plumbers' assistants on all building construction in New York City brought many recruits to the new union with headquarters at 228 East Eighty-sixth Street, it was reported yesterday. Certainty was expressed that the men would win their demands for a standard wage scale of $10 day and recognition of the union.

Harlem Bus Owner Says Special Examiner Got Money From Him by Threats.

John R. Smith of 3,155 Broadway, who owns sight-seeing buses operating from the northwest corner of 125th Street and Seventh Avenue, complained before Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield yesterday that James O'Neill, who, Smith said, was a special examiner in the Finance Department, had obtained $500 from him by threats.

According to Smith, $500 was paid to O'Neill in two instalments. He said he gave $250 to O'Neill on April 19 last at O'Neill's home, 189 Claremont Avenue, and $250 to Pierce Mulrooney, a friend of O'Neill, at the same place on April 24. Smith alleged O'Neill demanded the money under threat that O'Neill would put him out of business. Commissioner Hirshfield said he was investigating the matter.

Admission was made at the Controller's office that a man named O'Neill was employed there, but it was said no complaint had been made against him.

SUIT OVER RADIO CONTRACT.

Equipment Concern Asks $125,000 From De Forest Company.

Papers were served yesterday in Jersey City on the DeForest Radio Telephone and Telegraph Company of Jersey City in the suit brought by the Wholesale Radio Equipment Company of Newark. The Newark company wants $125,000 for breach of contract, alleging that on Oct. 6 last it signed a contract with the DeForest Company by which the plaintiff company was to handle the defendant company's products for two years.

The DeForest Company recently notified the Newark concern that the contract would be canceled on June 23. The plaintiff company had $7,500 worth of the defendant company's products on hand, it said, the value of which was depreciated by the sale of the defendant company's products by the defendant company to other agents in the same territory at a lower price.

AUTOS PAWNED IN PARIS.

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

PARIS, July 17.—Henceforth one can hock automobiles in the Paris Mont de Piété, or municipal pawnshop, nicknamed by all Frenchmen "My Aunt," which has constructed a big garage so that hard-up owners can drive in and get loans on their cars.

The Mont de Piété advances an average of 20 per cent. of the value of the car and charges only 2 per cent. interest.

The authorities have instructed the clerks not to make loans on de luxe machines like limousines and speed cars, but only on drivers and little buses belonging to the poorer classes.

CREDITS BIG SEASON TO TUT-ANKH-AMEN

Dry Goods Men Hear Egyptian Fad Lifted Dull Silk Trade to High Record.

CRAZE SPREADS OVERNIGHT

Speaker Charges Japanese With "Killing the Golden Goose" by Excessively High Prices.

That the excavation of King Tut-ankh-Amen's tomb created, through publicity, an entirely new silk season was the declaration of F. B. Patton, Chairman of the silk group of the Dress Fabric Association, National Wholesale Dry Goods Association, which with other groups of the Dry Goods Association held a convention at the Waldorf yesterday.

The Egyptian fad, which Mr. Patton said is now a thing of the past, changed a dull season to one of the liveliest the silk business had experienced in years.

"Spring and Summer of 1922," said Mr. Patton, "will probably stand as the record season for some time to come. The law of life from death was exemplified in the silk trade. Almost overnight Egyptian prints were developed as a fashion craze. The exploration of an old tomb furnished the necessary setting to change the vogue to a riot of designs and color combinations.

"Frequent reference is now made by manufacturers and trade journals to the time when the market will become stabilized. It is not true that the raw market on recent levels invites uncertainty; that just as long as it is priced as high as the traffic will bear, rather than on the principle of a fair profit above cost, just so long will the question of price hang as a nightmare over the market."

Mr. Patton charged that the Japanese are "killing the golden goose" through their excessively high price for raw silk.

George R. Auferheide, President of the Wholesalers' Association of Dress Fabric Buyers, said that prospects for the Fall are bright, but he warned manufacturers that the present prosperity and employment conditions, good as they are, must not be taken as a reason for advancing prices.

Following the business session there was a luncheon on the roof.

PHONE DROVE HER MAD

Coroner's Jury Finds Insanity Caused Mrs. Nolte's Suicide.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., July 17.—That Mrs. Anna M. Nolte, aged 53, wife of Frank E. Nolte, Borough Engineer of McKee's Rocks, who ended her life after receiving a score of "poison telephone messages" during the last month, did so "when her mind became unbalanced as a result of the messages which declared her husband was going out with other women" was the verdict of a Coroner's jury today. Mrs. Nolte swallowed bichloride of mercury tablets and died in the Ohio Valley Hospital.

An affidavit of Miss Cleola M. Beck, a roomer at the Nolte home, stated that Mrs. Nolte had told her that on a number of occasions an unidentified man and woman had called on the phone to say that Mr. Nolte was running around with other women." The mysterious woman promised to reveal her identity but never did.

Enjoins Garment Union in Chicago.

CHICAGO, July 17.—An injunction restraining Morris Sigman, President of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union and Meyer Peristein, Vice President and organizer of Cleveland, from attempting to unionize the open shops in Chicago was granted today by Federal Judge Carpenter. The injunction was granted to Mitchell Brothers, whose attorney said the injunction was similar to the Daugherty railroad injunction in effectiveness.

'EAT MORE WHEAT' PLAN URGED TO AID FARMER

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 17.—Buy a barrel of flour, pay for 1,000 bushels of wheat for future delivery and eat one more slice of bread each day. This three-fold plan, was advocated in Chicago today, as a means to check the wheat decline and restore confidence among the farmers and allied interests. A grain dealer, commenting on the proposition, said:

"Were the grain interests to give notice to the country that wheat is worth more money and should be selling higher, they would probably have buying orders for 60,000,000 bushels inside of two weeks. This might advance prices 10 to 15 cents a bushel, and the farmers, reassured, would hold back their grain instead of rushing it to market."

TRIBUTES FOR DR. LEIDY.

Scientists Will Commemorate Centenary of His Birth.

On Dec. 6, 1923, the centenary of the birth of Dr. Joseph Leidy will be commemorated at several meetings in the Academy of Natural Sciences of Philadelphia. Dr. Leidy, who died in 1891, was a distinguished naturalist.

A large number of scientific organizations throughout the world have been invited to designate representatives to attend the meetings which have been planned to present suitably the comprehensiveness of Dr. Leidy's researches.

There will be established a Joseph Leidy Memorial Medal, as a trust with the Academy of Natural Sciences of Philadelphia, to be awarded in recognition of pre-eminent contributions to the biological sciences.

The joint committee in charge of the commemoration is composed of twenty-one representatives of the above listed organizations. Both the joint committee and an executive committee in immediate charge of the preparations have established headquarters at the Academy of Natural Sciences of Philadelphia.

FREED IN SMALL CASE PLOT.

Three Acquitted of Alleged Jury Bribery in Governor's Trial.

WAUKEGAN, Ill., July 17.—Charges that Governor Small was acquitted by a corrupted jury in his trial in the Lake County Circuit Court here last June, were swept from the slate today when the jury hearing the trial of John B. Fields, Edward Kaufman and Edward Courtney returned a verdict of not guilty for all three defendants.

The jury reached its verdict in one hour and ten minutes. A thunder of applause from the crowd in the court room greeted the result.

The defendants were charged with conspiracy to place a bribed juror, Fields, on the panel, which heard the evidence in the Governor's trial.

Southern Pugilist Fatally Shot.

NEW ORLEANS, La., July 17.—"Young Cheney" (Christian Burkhardt), New Orleans featherweight pugilist, widely known in the South, was shot and fatally wounded in an altercation today with Alexander Kostaki. Burkhardt died in a hospital two hours later just after he had peered "through the darkness of death," as he expressed it, and identified Kostaki as the man who shot him. Kostaki admitted he shot Burkhardt, but declared he fired only after the pugilist had attempted to draw a weapon.

Colonel Wolfe Transferred.

Colonel Orrin B. Wolfe, Post Commander at Fort Slocum, will be transferred on Sept. 3 to the Second Corps Area, where he will serve as Chief of Staff of the Ninety-eighth Division at Syracuse. He will be succeeded at Fort Slocum by Colonel John J. Bradley, now Chief of Staff of the Seventy-seventh Division.

FRENCH SEIZE ON TRAIN 27,000,000,000 MARKS

Hold Reichsbank Officials at Limburg Till They Surrender Keys of Vaults.

FRANKFORT-ON-MAIN, July 17.—A shipment of 27,000,000,000 marks has been seized by the French occupation forces while in transit north of Eltville, near Mayence. A German railway official and two assistants were arrested in connection with the shipment.

LIMBURG, July 17.—The French forces seized 375,000,000 marks when they occupied the local Reichsbank last Thursday, it is stated in semi-official German quarters.

Under the pass control enforced by the occupation authorities in the Ruhr, Limburg is still regarded as part of unoccupied Germany, but patrols have guarded the Reichsbank Director and his chief assistant in their offices since the days of the occupation, and it is announced this will be continued until the keys to the bank vaults are given up.

The city's telephone service has been discontinued since Thursday on account of the occupation of the central offices.

DUESSELDORF, July 17 (Associated Press).—The explosion Sunday in the huge automobile parking station at Weitmar, a suburb of Bochum, which resulted in the French authorities ordering punitive measures imposed upon Bochum, was caused by a bomb thrown from a passing street car, according to the French authorities here. Several citizens, including the head Burgomaster, were arrested, but all were released shortly afterward.

Bochum today is almost completely isolated from the rest of the Ruhr. Street car traffic in the town has been suspended and all the restaurants, picture shows and other places of public assembly have been closed. The French have allowed the German city authorities until July 20 to produce the alleged bomb thrower. Should they fail to do so more serious measures will be taken, it is declared.

The Belgian authorities at Gladbeck, near Oberhaus, have arrested forty-eight citizens as hostages to ride in military trains as a preventive against sabotage on the railways.

COLOGNE, July 17.—Living expenses increased 110.05 per cent. in Cologne during the three weeks ended July 11. The prices of necessities on that date were 27,454 times the average for 1913-14, figuring the mark at its face value.

The minimum expense at which a family of four, consisting of two adults, a boy of 11 and a girl of 5, can live for a month is officially computed at 3,577,-947 marks.

BERLIN, July 17.—Ruhr anthracite coal now costs 1,661,600 marks a ton gross, under the new tariff established by the Federal Coal Association for markets in unoccupied Germany. The tariff shows a general increase in prices of 63 per cent. The gross quotation includes taxes and transportation costs.

Upper Silesian coal is increased by 273,002 marks a ton net and Central German lignite briquettes by 206,729 marks net.

Troops End Mexicali Mayor's Siege.

MEXICALI, Lower California, July 17.—Mayor Juan Loera of Mexicali and fourteen political supporters, who had been barricaded in the City Hall since Saturday night, were removed today by a Federal guard. The Mayor and three of his companions, who were wounded in a shooting affray Saturday, were taken to a hospital. The others were taken to the Federal barracks, all being under guard. Loera's political followers are reported gathering for a reprisal, and many Mexican as well as foreign business men have closed their establishments and left for the American side of the border, taking their funds with them.

Amoskeag Cuts Cotton Operations.

MANCHESTER, N. H., July 17.—Notices were posted in the mills of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company today of a further curtailment in the cotton department, due to business conditions. Until further notice the cotton department will operate the first four days of each week. Between 10,000 and 11,000 textile operatives are affected. The worsted and mechanical departments, where about 4,000 are employed, will remain on full time.

PROTESTS RODEO AT FAIR.

S. P. C. A. Opposes Wild West Show on Grounds of Cruelty.

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals again has entered the ring as opposed to "bulldogging," steer-wrestling and other such sports enjoyed by the copuncher, as exemplified in rodeos or Wild West shows given in this part of the country. Its most recent appeal was made following the report that such a show is to be a part of the State Fair in Syracuse this Fall. It also indicates that some action will be taken to prevent a rodeo planned next month in the Yankee Stadium.

An appeal already has been made to Lieutenant Governor Lunn, as Chairman of the State Fair Commission, and to J. Dan Ackerman, Secretary of the commission, to eliminate this feature of the fair "because the manner in which animals are used and treated in these exhibitions is often extremely cruel, and the performances demoralizing in its effects, especially upon the young."

SAYS FATHER BEAT HER.

Child Found Locked in Room With Two Cats—Parent Arrested.

Lena Stinplof was found yesterday afternoon by Detective Dan Cavone and Special Agent J. K. Whalen of the Children's Society, locked in a room, in the rear of 244 West Tenth Street, with only two cats for company. The officers had to climb a rear fire escape and break through a window before the child could be released.

After telling neighbors where Lena could be found, Cavone took her to the Charles Street Station. The child's shoulders and legs were covered with welts and bruises which she said had been caused by beatings her father had inflicted on her. Frank Stinplof, the father, went to the police station last night and was arrested on a charge of felonious assault. Lena was sent to the Children's Society where she was treated by a physician. Stinplof will be arraigned this morning in the Jefferson Market Court.

OUR FLAGS PIQUE CANADIANS

Ban Sought on Tourists Flying Stars and Stripes on Autos.

ST. CATHARINES, Ontario, July 17.—American flags flown on automobiles by American tourists in Canada have caused Canadians so much annoyance that the Lincoln County Council has passed a resolution protesting against the practice. The Council will send a copy of the resolution to the Dominion Government and ask that the promiscuous flying of foreign flags be forbidden.

The appeal drafted to accompany the resolution says that proper respect is not paid to the Canadian flag. "American tourists, it states, should either fly the Canadian emblem along with the Stars and Stripes or discontinue altogether the display of flags.

Stereotypers Oppose Arbitration.

OMAHA, Neb., July 17.—Laws of the International Stereotypers and Electrotypers' Union of North America will not be subject to arbitration during 1923, the annual convention of the organization in session here decided today. A decision to this effect was first reached in Cincinnati, Ohio, last year following expiration of an arbitration agreement with the American Newspaper Publishers' Association. An effort by some delegates to bring about an amalgation of all the printing crafts was defeated, some of the members saying that, although they desire to work in perfect harmony with the other crafts, "we do not desire to lose our identity."

SHOT TWICE IN DUEL, MAN FLEES TO CHURCH

Startles Congregation Kneeling at Mass After Receiving Fatal Wounds in Street.

About 100 men and women were kneeling at mass in the Church of St. John the Martyr, 254 East Seventy-second Street, yesterday morning when Father Michael W. Doherty, who was in the chancel, glanced to the rear of the edifice and in the dim light discerned the figure of a man holding a pistol.

Within a few seconds a policeman rushed into the church and grasped the weapon from the intruder. The man then fell to the floor, weakened from the loss of blood from two bullet wounds in his right breast. He was taken to Bellevue Hospital, where it was said he would die. He is in the prison ward, charged with attempted felonious assault and with violating the Sullivan law.

According to Patrolman Irving Frey of the East Sixty-seventh Street Station, who arrested the wounded man, his injuries were received in a fight with Patrick Cotter, 30 years old, of 1,384 Second Avenue, at Second Avenue, near Seventy-second Street. The victim of the shooting was Michael Rogers, 27 years old, of 26 East 129th Street. Both are metal lathers.

Cotter was charged with felonious assault and was later held by Magistrate Hatting in the Harlem Court without bail for examination Friday. If Rogers dies the charge will be changed to homicide.

A family feud is said to have been the cause of the battle. The wives of the two men are cousins, and, according to the police, Cotter had objected to Rogers's attentions to Mrs. Cotter.

When the men met yesterday both drew weapons and opened fire. Twelve shots were exchanged, two finding a mark in Rogers's breast. Cotter came out of the duel unscathed.

Rogers ran into the church, where he was caught. Father Doherty administered the last rites.

"Rogers must have been reading up on old Roman law," remarked Captain John J. Wall of the East Sixty-seventh Street station, where Cotter was taken. "In the old days times a man who committed a crime could not be arrested in a church, convent or monastery."

RENEWS BLUE LAW DRIVE.

Lord's Day Alliance Asks for Nine Summonses.

Renewing its campaign against violators of the Sabbath laws, the Lord's Day Alliance of 156 Fifth Avenue yesterday obtained nine summonses from Magistrate Edgar V. Frothingham in Jefferson Market Court.

The organization employed the Consolidated Detective Bureau of 68 Willoughby Street, Brooklyn, to gather evidence of the Sunday violations, following receipt of complaints from merchants who kept their shops closed. In issuing the John Doe warrants, Magistrate Frothingham said that he would issue none are unless the alliance produced a letter from Police Commissioner Enright saying that the police needed the aid of the alliance in the enforcement of the law.

Dr. Cofer Joins Labor Department.

State Industrial Commissioner Shientag yesterday announced the appointment of Dr. Leland E. Cofer of New York as Director of the Division of Industrial Hygiene of the State Department of Labor. Dr. Cofer has been an officer in the United States Public Health Service for more than thirty years.

BUYING IN THE SUBURBS.

Two Big Tracts at East Norwich, L. I., Sold.

Wheatley Hills Real Estate Corporation sold at East Norwich, L. WHITE STAR BLAMED FOR ALIEN SURPLUS

Immigrant Commissioner Holds Line Responsible for Threatened Deportation of 524.

LIABLE TO HEAVY FINES

Company Officials Deny Husband's Charges and Give Out Figures to Prove It.

The blame for the threatened deportation of the 524 British immigrants who arrived in excess of the quota aboard the liner Baltic Monday morning, was placed at the door of the White Star Line by W. W. Husband, Commissioner General of Immigration, yesterday in an interview at Ellis Island.

"Neither Commissioner Curran, nor myself, nor officials in Washington can be held responsible," said Mr. Husband. "No one in the world is to blame for the plight of these people except the steamship company who brought them here. The companies know that they have twelve months in which to bring immigrants over, and there is no reason why they should break their necks to do it in five."

Immigration officials said that the White Star Line had rendered itself liable to a heavy fine if it should be proved that although acquainted with the quota situation they deliberately took a chance in bringing the immigrants over here. Not only will the steamship company have to refund to each immigrant his passage money to Europe, they said, but the company will also have to furnish free transportation home for the immigrants and pay the cost for keeping them at Ellis Island. In addition to this a fine of $200 per head can be levied by the United States Government for bringing in immigrants in excess of the quota.

According to Commissioner Husband all steamship companies are notified daily of the exact status of quotas. A report is issued at Washington at noon each day, he said, and is telephoned or telegraphed immediately to all immigration offices in the United States for transmission to the steamship companies.

Officials of the White Star Line expressed the opinion that there would be no fine. They said that when the Baltic sailed from Liverpool on July 7, only 9,000 immigrants had been admitted under the British quota, which was 15,468 for July, an ample margin for the 524 immigrants aboard the Baltic.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—High atmospheric pressure covered the Lake region and surrounding areas Tuesday night and the pressure was relatively high from Florida eastward into the Atlantic Ocean and off the Nort Pacific Coast, and it was relatively low over the remaining portions of the country, with centres of depression over Newfoundland, off the South Carolina coast, in Northeastern Wyoming and Southern Arizona. Within the last twenty-four hours showers and thunderstorms have occurred from Arkansas eastward across Tennessee and the East Gulf States to the Atlantic Coast, in portions of the northern Plains States, the northern and middle northern Rocky Mountain regions and over the Far Northwest. In several cases the amount of precipitation exceeds one inch, 3.34 inches having fallen at Little Rock, Ark.

Moderate temperatures have prevailed from the lake region eastward to the North Atlantic Coast, while in most other portions of the country readings have been normal or above. A maximum of 102 degrees occurred Tuesday at Miles City, Mont.

The outlook is for continued fair weather with seasonable temperatures during the next forty-eight hours in the North and Middle Atlantic States, the lower lake region, the Ohio Valley and North Carolina, while unsettled, showery weather is indicated in the remaining States of the Washington forecast district, except that fair weather is probable on Thursday in Tennessee.

RUMANIAN VOLCANO ACTIVE.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, July 17.—Krijamau, a mountain near Darna Watra, Rumania, supposed to have been a volcano in prehistoric ages, is showing symptoms of activity, spouting copious quantities of earth clods, boiling water, smoke clouds and gases.

The inhabitants are terrified, fearing a serious eruption, and some are preparing to leave the zone of danger.

ONCE AN OWNER ALWAYS A FRIEND

"Please send me your July Security List"

A CUSTOMER recently wrote us that he was considering the purchase of a block of railroad equipment bonds and several long-term bonds of foreign governments.

Our Bond Department immediately sent him its Security List for the current month, offering the assistance of its specialists in the selection of the most suitable issues.

Later, a representative of the Bond Department, who called at the customer's office to perform this service, was able to make some suggestions, which resulted in desirable readjustments of securities the customer already owned.

We endeavor to serve all of our clients in the same manner. The Equitable's Investment Service aims, not merely to sell bonds, but to sell those bonds which best suit the requirements of the individual investor.

A copy of our July Security List will be sent upon request.
